READ THIS: "I've had psoriasis 10 years. Recently I had a serious attack, my whole body being covered, causing torturous suffering. My druggist suggested Cuticura Ointment. Affectionately and Neatly Yours

*Dear daughter in that distant dorm,
I can see your sprawling form,
The scattered textbooks, notes,
swirled smoke,
Candy wrappers, bottled Coke.*

*At home your room now rests serene,
Desk uncluttered, ash trays clean;
And, darling, though for you I pine—
This arrangement suits me fine!*

—Martha H. Freedman

The boys at the office had given the new husband an earful of advice on how to handle wives. "Action," they told him, "speaks louder than words. Right from the start, show her what you insist on."

That night the bride served a meal that was burned to cinders. Taking his friends' advice, the husband quietly took the plate and tossed it out the window. The bride never said a word—she just took all the plates, silverware, even the tablecloth, and hurled them out the window, too.

"It's fine with me, John," she said, "but the next time I wish you'd tell me when you want to eat dinner in the garden."

The trouble with some movies today is that there's too much

The newspaper reporter was interviewing a man on his 100th birthday. "And what are you most proud of this day?" the reporter asked.

"Well," the old man said, "I've lived 100 years, and I haven't an enemy in the world."

"What a beautiful thought—truly inspirational," the reporter said.

"Yep," the centenarian cackled, "out-lived every danged one of them!"

A stranger spotted a boy standing near the emergency entrance of a hospital and asked what he was doing there. "I'm waiting for my Pop," the boy replied.

Just then an ambulance raced up the driveway and screeched to a halt. A handsome interne jumped out, waved to the boy, and dashed into the hospital. "That's my Pop!" the boy said proudly.

"It must be pretty exciting to have a father who's a doctor and rides an ambulance."

The boy's jaw dropped and tears welled in his eyes. "He's a doctor?" the youngster asked in obvious disappointment. "He told me he rode shotgun for the driver!"
