

Older Woman Sets Trap For Bachelor

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I am 33, have never been married but I've had many romances. I've been dating a woman who is 43 but she doesn't look it. If she didn't have grandchildren she could pass for 35. Kitty has had rotten luck with men. Her first husband died and she has been divorced three times. She's smart with finances and with her settlement money she bought three different businesses. They are all doing well. I run one of her businesses, which is how we met.

Kitty tells everyone she's going to marry me or die in the attempt. My brothers tell me I'd be insane to marry a woman with her record, but they don't understand her. She is really a sweet kid, and quite helpless. You are a pretty sensible dame. Do you have any advice for me?—TY

Dear Ty: This woman sounds about as helpless as A. T. & T. I agree with your brothers that a three-time loser is a poor marriage risk. And the 10 years difference in your age could be a real problem in 10 years—or sooner. From here you get a veto.

Dear Ann Landers: The problem concerns our adult son who is highly intelligent and has an excellent family background. He has been going steady for three years with a young lady who has neither intelligence nor family background. He cannot decide if he wants to marry her.

Our problem is this: If we continue to extend our warm hospitality (he brings her to dinner often) and he then decides to drop her, she will feel that we gave her false hope. If we stop having her over, and she later becomes our daughter-in-law, she will feel that we were against her.

Also, she did not graduate from high school and is virtually illiterate. Her thank-you letter for a Christmas gift had 26 mistakes. We'd like her to hire a tutor and learn to speak and write correctly. Do we have the right to ask her to do so?—D.L.W.

Dear D.L.W.: Your home should be open to any young woman your son wishes to invite—provided she behaves herself. She comes at HIS invitation, so you are not giving her "false hope."

It's not your place to encourage her to educate herself under any circumstances. During courtship young people have a peculiar deafness. After marriage the hearing suddenly improves. This is THEIR problem, however, not yours.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who needs your help. My older brother taught me how to drive and I'm an excellent driver. I passed the test and got my driver's license three weeks ago. The trouble is, my dad won't let me have the car. He says I am too young.

If the law says I'm old enough and I earned my license isn't that enough? We had a long talk and he claims my mother is a nervous wreck when she knows I have the car. Is this fair to me? Please answer in the paper so they can see it.—S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: This is for your father. Please show it to him: Dear Dad: You can't raise your son under a glass bell. This is the machine age in every sense of the word. A boy who has earned his license should have the car a few hours every week. Let him take the family for a ride. When his mother sees that he is a careful driver she will be less nervous. If he gets a ticket or abuses time privileges then you have the right to forbid him to use the car.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Be Well-Liked," enclosing your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Committee Backs Bill For Added Portland Aid

SALEM (AP) — The House Highway Ways and Means Committee Tuesday recommended passage of a bill that would increase Portland's share of state gasoline tax money slightly.

At present cities get 10 per cent of state gas tax revenue based on their share of the total urban population of the state. However, all cities are permitted to count 100 per cent of their population except Portland, which is allowed to count only two-thirds of its population.

The approved bill would allow Portland to increase the per cent of its population it could count to share in gas tax money to 70 per cent.

The bill would be effective in 1962 and would give Portland an additional $64,700. It would result in slight decreases in other cities in the state.

Multnomah County representatives urged favorable action on the bill on the ground that it was only fair. Rep. Norman Howard, D-Portland, asked why Portland should suffer because it is larger.

It was pointed out that passage of the bill would cost Salem about $3,000, Corvallis about $2,000 and Astoria about $1,000, as examples of its impact.

The committee also called back a bill it had approved to authorize

LIKES QUIET DIPLOMACY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov subscribes to Secretary of State Dean Rusk's quiet diplomacy policy, Thursday. Menshikov dropped in on Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles to discuss what he called a routine matter. Menshikov called again on Bowles Friday over what he said was another routine matter. Pressed by reporters as to what both matters were, Menshikov raised one finger, smiled and said, "quiet diplomacy, gentlemen."
