

Start Now To Survive Nuclear Attack - Congress Will Help In Mid-Sixties

By RAY CROMLEY WASHINGTON (NEA) - To make it 85 per cent sure that you and your family would live through an all-out atomic war in the mid 1960s or after, you must start work now.

through a war if one should occur this year over Berlin. The Russians are relatively weak now in their ability to make heavy intercontinental nuclear attacks. Most of the strikes would be with not-too-fast airplanes. For such planes, U.S. defenses are not bad. But by the middle and late 1960s, the strikes would be with intercontinental missiles or high-speed planes. Relatively U. S. defenses would be much weaker then unless there is a major breakthrough. The Russians in the middle and late 1960s, however, would have more and tougher military targets to hit before they would be able to spare missiles and planes widely to destroy large numbers of American cities.

only a small proportion of Americans by blast. Yet 100 to 400 million more could be killed by radiating fallout unless Americans were prepared. The government has plans to help. If Congress approves President Kennedy's new civil defense program, the first step will be to identify every possible natural shelter in office buildings, schools, churches, basements, subways - in every building near population centers. The experts say they expect to find natural shelters for 45 million to 50 million people, not including caves and mines. The Defense Department will then mark all these shelters. This marking is expected to be completed by the end of 1962. The next step would be to supply these shelters with the minimums for survival - food, toilet facilities, blankets, medicine, first-aid kits, radiation dosimeters.

Then defense men will push the improvement of these thousands of shelters - with forced-draft ventilation operated from standby power sources, with better emergency toilet facilities, with running water where possible. They will push plans too, for making first-rate shelters out of second, third and fourth-rate shelters. In some places a few sandbags will make the difference. They will start making changes in government buildings to provide shelter space wherever possible. They will encourage the building of fallout shelters in all new federal buildings.

Civil defense experts expect that this forced air ventilation, other improvements in second, third and fourth-rate shelters, the changes in government buildings, will combine to more than double the adequate shelter space. They say these improvements would mean total marked shelter spaces eventually for 100 million Americans.

State, county and city governments will be encouraged to provide for fallout shelters in all new office buildings. There may eventually be federal aid on a 50-50 basis. The Pentagon will rush a nationwide home buzzer system for warning every household in the country that an attack is imminent. This National Emergency Alarm Repeater system - NEAR - has already been tried out in one town. Within the next few months, NEAR will be tried out statewide in Michigan. Then it will be organized, area by area, through the nation.

The experts say that $30 million will transform the nation's electric power stations for NEAR. After his local power station has been equipped, a local householder will be able to buy a buzzer about the size of two cigarette packs for $5 or so. He can plug it into any household electric outlet, move it from the living room or kitchen to the bedroom at night. Or he can have one in every room. In case of an alert, the buzzer will sound in every plugged household over the nation. A householder would then turn on his radio for instructions. This NEAR buzzer system will help remedy one of the worst weaknesses of today's civil defense system. School districts will be encouraged to transform school rooms into fallout shelters where possible, and to build the auditoriums and cafeterias in new schools so they can also be used as fallout shelters.

ALARM REPEATER - National emergency alarm repeater (NEAR—shown in picture) would be plugged into wall socket in all U.S. homes.

FALLOUT SHELTER - This is a floor plan of a basement fallout shelter. Details on construction may be obtained from your nearest civil defense headquarters or from the federal office at Battle Creek, Mich.

Greeks Had Everything—Even Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) - Those ancient and remarkable Greeks thought of everything. They even had their own version of a Peace Corps. Dr. John F. Latimer, professor of classics and associate dean of faculties at George Washington University, said today a somewhat similar idea was first thought of five centuries before Christ. "And, my soul," Latimer said, "it worked."

No comparison can be pressed too far, and this is no exception. The Greeks thought service should mean that the young men would contribute not only their time and talents but also their money. This limited Leitorgia to the wealthy. Nor did the Greeks have eager young ladies racing out to do their bit. With all their pioneer thinking—a misogynist might say possibly because of it—the Greeks had little room for women in their great plans. Nor were the jobs to be done exclusively for peace. Indeed, one chore was the exact opposite. A wealthy young man could equip a ship for war. Or he could train competitors for the gymnasium contests. Or, if artistically inclined, he could fix up a chorus for musical competitions for the great public festivals. Or he could superintend the sacred embassies to the four great national festivals, or to Delos and the other holy places, an operation, Latimer believes, that closely parallels the spirit of the Peace Corps. Incidentally, classical languages have no more ardent public relations man than Latimer, who for years has been insisting that the position U.S. education should adopt is not science vs. the classics, but science plus the classics.

As president of the American Classical League, he's pleased to report: "Latin in high school and classics in college have been holding their own in the past 10 years and a little more than their own in the past four or five years." Latimer can't reassure dubious congressmen that the Peace Corps will work. But he can say, it worked fine with the Greeks. "These young men did perform needed public services, at home and abroad," he said, "and, my soul, they set a good example for all citizens to follow."

Musicologist Gets Works SEATTLE (AP) - A University of Washington musicologist has acquired about half of composer Anton Webern's works. Dr. Hans Moldenhauer said Monday he became friends with the heirs of the noted contemporary Austrian composer while doing research on the circumstances of Webern's death. The University faculty member said he has completed the purchase of Webern's manuscripts, including unknown compositions, literary works and autobiographical materials. Moldenhauer is the president of the Spokane Conservatory, which he founded after coming to the Inland Empire city in 1939.

Klansmen Jeer Police Chief At Race Rally ATLANTA (AP) - A jeering group surrounded a car containing Police Chief Herbert Jenkins during a segregation rally sponsored by the Ku Klux Klan, apparently in the belief he was an FBI agent. About 25 persons clustered around Jenkins' car Monday night while a larger band half a block away in West Atlanta was protesting the arrest of a man identified as Roy E. Frankhauser Jr. of Reading, Pa., on charges of assaulting an officer and disturbing the peace. In the police car were Jenkins, unarmed and wearing slacks, and Atlanta Constitution reporter Keeler McCartney. "Pull them out," the men shouted, apparently thinking Jenkins was an FBI agent. "I know it's the FBI," a man said. "One of them arrested me last week." Additional police officers pushed through the gathering and cleared the way. The police chief and the reporter drove off and the crowd dispersed. The jeering and the arrest occurred after an estimated 300 persons gathered in Almond Park for a rally sponsored by the United Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Grand Dragon Calvin P. Craig compared Atlanta to a police state. Also criticizing the police

Mother Cross With Dog In Bed

By ANN LANDERS Dear Ann Landers: My name is John. I am 10 years old. I have a dog. His name is Beat. We named him that because that is how he looked when he was born. My problem is that I like to have Beat in my bed at night when I go to sleep. My mother is against it. I sneaked him in a couple of times and she caught me. She was very cross. Mom says dogs should not be in bed with people because it is not healthy. I am in good health. So is my dog. What is wrong with a nice clean dog being in bed with people? We give him a bath every week.

Please print my letter in the paper so my mother can see it. Thank you.—JOHN Dear John: If your mother doesn't want you to have Beat in your bed, that should settle it. I can understand why she feels as she does because I feel the same way. On the other hand many of my friends tell me that when they were children their mothers didn't mind the dog sleeping in their beds and nobody got sick from it.

snapped "If mama paid you $20 a week that's all she thought you were worth." Can I sue the estate? Please answer in print. I don't care if the whole town reads this. —QUEEN OF THE CHUMPS Dear Queen: It's easy to be a Monday morning quarterback but the agreement should have been in writing. Now you must hire a lawyer to see that justice is done. Dear Ann Landers: We just returned from our vacation and I have been reading the back issues of the newspaper. Your column which printed all those heart-warming letters in praise of the mothers-in-law really touched my heart. I am so happy for all those great people who wrote. What fortunate women they are to have been blessed with such terrific mothers-in-law! If you ever decide to give a medal to the daughter-in-law who has taken the most guff, please let me know. I am Number One in the country when it comes to having been abused, pushed around and dominated. Several of my friends have suggested that I deserve a medal. So, if you would like to send one, here is my name and address.—CLINTON, IOWA Dear Clinton: Sorry, there are no medals for abused daughters-in-law—only scars!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a practical nurse, 48 and unmarried. Four years ago my grandmother's sister became bedridden. She was a well-to-do widow, but so disagreeable they couldn't get a nurse who would stay with her for more than a week. They asked me, as a favor to the family, to take the case. I agreed. Aunt Hattie told me she was putting me in her will for a large part of her estate and therefore I would receive only "pocket money" ($20 a week) plus room and board. She said I'd never have to work again after she died. Two weeks ago they buried her. Yesterday the family gathered around for the reading of the will. My name was not mentioned. I told her daughter, who inherited the bulk of the estate, about Aunt Hattie's promise. She replied, "That's ridiculous. You were paid weren't you?" When I told her of our arrangement she

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
