

One More Try Before Human Trip But Orbit Solves Space Problems

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—America's drive to haul a U.S. astronaut into orbit by the end of the year has received vigorous impetus from the successful recovery of a Mercury space capsule after it circled the globe.

An Atlas missile propelled a two-ton capsule carrying a mechanical man into a 17,519-mile an hour sweep around the earth Wednesday. Braking rockets sent the spacecraft out of orbit and it parachuted safely into the Atlantic Ocean 161 miles east of Bermuda after a 109-minute trip. The destroyer USS Decatur retrieved it.

A few minor electronic difficulties cropped up on the flight, including a faulty electrical inverter, a possible leak in the oxygen supply system and loss of contact with the robot spaceman's tape-recorder "voice" halfway through the test.

ENDS TRAINING — Pvt. Evan D. Sloan, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Sloan, 5131 Bristol Avenue, recently completed recruit training at San Diego training depot. He will receive advanced combat training at Camp Pendleton and aviation training at Memphis, Tenn.

Robert Gilruth, Project Mercury director, reported these failings alone would not necessitate another preliminary shot before man is sent aloft.

"We'll have to look at the capsule and into the problems to see if they were serious," Gilruth said. "But we feel that no matter what we find, we want to fly a capsule with a quick-release escape hatch once more before putting a man in orbit."

The quick-release hatch has been flown on only one capsule—that which carried Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom on a suborbital space flight in July. The hatch, designed to blow out under pressure of explosive bolts, flew off prematurely when the capsule impacted. Water rushed into the craft and Grissom had to swim for his life. A manually-operated hatch was on Wednesday's capsule.

NASA Administrator James E. Webb said in Washington there definitely will be one more unmanned orbital flight before an attempt is made to orbit a human pilot. He said this would come in six to eight weeks.

Gilruth said Wednesday's flight demonstrated that the "Atlas has the capability to fly a man in orbit; it brought in for the first time the Mercury worldwide tracking network, and demonstrated the ability of the capsule and its systems to operate completely unattended."

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A measles vaccine has been successfully tested in field trials among 605 children in the Philadelphia area. Children's Hospital said today research on the vaccine "suggests that the 200-year search for a method of immunization against measles is now over."

The vaccine still must be approved by the U.S. government. If accepted, it might go on sale sometime next year, says the drug firm which plans to market it, Merck, Sharp & Dohme Laboratories.

A team of clinical investigators from Children's Hospital and the University of Pennsylvania reported on the vaccine, developed by Dr. John F. Enders of Boston and his colleagues, in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

They said it has given 100 per cent protection from measles in children during epidemics in recent months in a controlled field trial.

Half of the children in the field trial were injected with attenuated measles vaccine of the Enders type concurrently with human gamma globulin, the report said. A large percentage of children in the trial who did not receive this type of immunization caught the measles.

A primary question which remains to be answered is the most desirable balance between the amount of standardized gamma globulin and virus in the vaccine, said Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman, a member of the research team.

Police Capt. J. L. Ray, who has handled more of the more than 300 "Freedom Rider" arrests in this Mississippi capital city was summoned. He ordered the arrest of the priests on breach of peace charges after they again refused to move on.

The 15 were participating in a "Prayer Pilgrimage" which left New Orleans Tuesday and proceeded without incident until they reached Jackson. Twenty-three white and five Negro Episcopal priests started the pilgrimage.

It was the first arrest for Pierson, 35, of New York City and Evanston, Ill. His wife is Ann Rockefeller, one of the New York Governor's five children.

Walter L. Rice, vice president of the Reynolds Metal Co., told delegates the outlook for aluminum is bright because of the administration's stepped up domestic and military spending program.

Rice predicted that aluminum shipments for the year will total 2,450,000 tons, an increase of four per cent from 1960, in spite of the fact they were down four per cent during the first half of the year.

TIME TO BEAT THE BUSH — Klamath County United Fund solicitor Margaret Davies finds the time, we found the bush, on the face of Bob Scholl, owner of Bob's Jewelry, Town and Country. Margaret is a busy mother of two girls; teaches piano for 15-20 sessions each week; is superintendent of her church's Sunday school program; is in the midst of canning, fall cleaning and has, on occasion, taken on substitute teaching. United Fund solicitors are busy people, but they have taken time out from their private lives to perform this community service. They will be calling on Klamath County businesses all this month in an effort to raise their goal of $135,309.

Integration Jails Rockefeller Kin

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi authorities jailed The Rev. Robert L. Pierson—son-in-law of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller—and 14 other white and Negro Episcopal priests Wednesday following their attempt to desegregate a Jackson bus terminal.

After a meal in jail of cornbread, peas and meat, the minister said that police had been polite and that the treatment was satisfactory.

in New Orleans, traveled by chartered bus to Jackson where they stayed overnight at nearby Tougaloo Southern Christian College, a Negro school.

He said he had no plans to get out of jail but hoped that "churches" around the nation will be concerned enough to come to our help.

"I admire all of them," Rockefeller said in Rochester, N.Y. "I admire the courage and dedication of these young people to the basic precepts on which this country was founded and their dedication to the cause of making a reality out of these precepts."

Those arrested had tickets for Chattanooga, Tenn., where they had planned to visit the church's University of the South at nearby Sewanee.

Police Capt. J. L. Ray, who has handled more of the more than 300 "Freedom Rider" arrests in this Mississippi capital city was summoned. He ordered the arrest of the priests on breach of peace charges after they again refused to move on.

The New York governor, asked if he planned to intercede, replied, "I know he wouldn't expect any special treatment or want it."

Seven of the ministers, including one Negro, flew to Atlanta, Ga., Wednesday night with plans to be in Sewanee today. The others were expected to stay in Jackson until the arrested ministers were out of jail.

Trial for the clergymen was set for 3 p.m. today.

"In view of your request to American clergy to exercise leadership in these areas," the telegram said, "we urge you immediately resolve problems of interstate travel for Americans."

Reds Grab Two Yanks In Smuggle

BERLIN (UPI)—American and British officials today sought confirmation of Communist claims that they arrested "several foreigners" on the barricades of the East-West city border.

The East German Interior Ministry said Wednesday night the foreigners included two 20-year-old Americans, a Briton and a Dutchman.

All were said to face charges of attempting to smuggle East Berlin women into West Berlin.

The Communist Interior Ministry announcement identified the Americans as Victor Searles Pankey and Gilbert Page Ferrey, both born in 1941 in California.

The name of the Briton was given as Bernard Joseph Colett, 30, of Birmingham, and the Dutchman as Henri Johannes Petrus Marie Pierrot, 56, of Leyden.

The Communist announcement said the two Americans had been arrested while trying to smuggle an East Berlin girl through the Friedrichstrasse crossing point in the luggage compartment of their car.

Untutored Girl Worry To Mother

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter will be going away to college soon and I know only too well that the next step is marriage.

What worries me is, how will she be able to manage a home of her own when she can't fry an egg, much less put a meal together?

Before you jump down my throat, let me tell you that I've tried to teach her but she's never shown any interest in learning how to sew on a button or prepare a roast. In this day and age there's a lot of teenage activity—early dating, parties, swimming, skating, TV—and naturally, every girl must have her own telephone.

You'll have to admit, Ann, that teenagers are different today than when you and I grew up. How can we teach a daughter to be a home-maker when she won't stay home long enough to learn?—OLD SCHOOL

Dear Old School: Teenagers are different than when we grew up—but so are parents. They are at home less, they are occupied with outside interests, they are often too permissive (and sometimes downright collapsible under pressure).

There are 24 hours in every day. If you've allowed your daughter to spend all her time entertaining herself then you must accept the blame for her deficiencies.

Of course a 12-year-old would rather munch popcorn in front of a TV set than peel potatoes or set a table. But as her mother you should have insisted that she give you a hand with the cleaning and cooking and ironing—not because you needed her help, but because she needed to learn the domestic skills.

Dear Ann: I hate a stool pigeon and I refuse to be one but I can no longer sit silently by and ignore a sickening and vicious practice which has been going on under my nose for much too long.

I work in a fine office. The building is beautiful and the working conditions are first rate. It's a great organization and the employees are treated extremely well by management. Yet I see people walk out of here with typewriters, adding machines, photographic equipment—and table lamps and potted plants from the reception room. They carry off framed paintings, hat-racks and just about anything that isn't nailed down.

Is there something I can do about this sort of turning in the names of the stealers? This I refuse to do.—I. C. PLENTY

Dear I. C. Plenty: Yes. You can write a signed letter to the management, detailing your shift and department and suggest that they post deputized guards at the exits. In this way employees can be stopped if they try to walk out with company property.

Dear Ann: A woman in our crowd took a trip to Europe (she said) and was away for two months. She came back looking 15 years younger. She said she had the most marvelous rest of her life. I'm sure she had her face lifted.

I've spent too many summers (and winters) in the sun and have many unwanted wrinkles. I've flirted with the idea of having plastic surgery but until now I was afraid of the results. Shall I ask her who did it or would she be insulted?—N

Dear N: Ask her—but make certain no one else is present.

"Confidential" to SUSPICIOUS BEN: Me, too. She's trying to get on your good side, all right—the side with the wallet. Stop bragging about how "well off" you are and this may help to discourage future gold-diggers.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hydraulic Use Solves Coal Mining Problems

SEATTLE (AP) — Hydraulic techniques being tested at Roslyn, Wash., may solve the problem of mining the Pacific Northwest's steeply pitched coal seams profitably, the American Mining Congress was told Wednesday.

David L. Francis, president of Princess Coals Inc., Huntington, W.V., said the area has "fabulous coal deposits." He listed Washington's recoverable reserves at more than 31 billion tons.

Most good hydroelectric sites in the Northwest are already developed, Francis said.

"As the demand for energy increases," he added, "the production of coal in the region will boom."

Francis said plans for a proposed atomic generator at the Hanford Atomic Works, turned down by the House Wednesday, would have provided "another step in a campaign to build a federal power grid which would spread like a spider web across the whole country."

Walter L. Rice, vice president of the Reynolds Metal Co., told delegates the outlook for aluminum is bright because of the administration's stepped up domestic and military spending program.

Rice predicted that aluminum shipments for the year will total 2,450,000 tons, an increase of four per cent from 1960, in spite of the fact they were down four per cent during the first half of the year.
