Fire Blamed On Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. investigators figure that last Saturday's fire in the bedroom of Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov was caused by the Soviets themselves. But the State Department is remaining diplomatically mum about it, at least for the time being.

The aid funds are included in an over-all money bill of $4.42 billion, carrying funds for foreign assistance programs and related projects. One item is $40 million asked by Kennedy for his Peace Corps.

Marital Fidelity Not Impossible

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: May a new American ask a question? Why do married couples here pretend that they are faithful to one another when the truth is that they are having love affairs left and right?

In Europe there is no such fakery. Please understand that I am not criticizing what Americans do. I criticize only the dishonesty. In Europe we are more mature. We put all our cards on the table.

By nature male animals are polygamists. Why should there be so much guilt about a normal biological drive? How much healthier to show an honest face to the world. No wonder the psychiatrists here are so busy. People are sick from pretending.

I have a beautiful wife and four lovely children. I've had several harmless little affairs of am'our and hope to have more. It is against all laws of nature for a man to be true to one woman so I do not attempt the impossible. Just sign me—ANONYMOUS

Dear Anonymous: No name? Not even an initial? How much healthier if you would show your honest face to the world—and put all your cards on the tablecloth. The polygamist argument has been dragged around until it's pretty tired. Man is supposed to be different from the alley cat because God has given him the power to reason and the ability to control his biological urges.

Fidelity is one of the major supports of the family in our culture. We know not every one achieves it, but it's an absurdity to say that marital fidelity is impossible to attain.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a career woman who will be marrying for the first time in October. The man is perfectly grand—an advertising executive who lost his wife five years ago.

The problem is this: I will be moving into his home which is beautiful. But it is furnished in his first wife's taste — which is very different from mine. She went in for ornate furniture, representational art and brocaded draperies. I'm afraid I'll feel overpowered in such surroundings.

Should I suggest redecorating and refurbishing before we marry? I've been careful not to criticize his home so of course he doesn't know how I feel. A close friend tells me if I don't speak up now I may be stuck with the old decor forever.—UNSURE

Dear Unsure: Live in the house for a few months then run a few ideas up the flagpole and see if he salutes.

A gradual transition, perhaps one room at a time, would probably be less jarring.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman I will call Brenda was married to my brother. They had a few separations but were never actually divorced. My brother passed away three months ago. The day after the funeral she went down and changed her name back to Miss...

Last week we were at a party together and when I introduced Brenda as my sister-in-law she took me aside and said, "I am no longer your sister-in-law so please don't introduce me that way."

I say once people are related they are related forever. I will continue to introduce her as my sister-in-law until you say I'm wrong.—STELLA

Dear Stella: Well, you're wrong, so you can stop now. Blood relatives are related forever, but when relatives are acquired through marriage the status is altered when the bond is broken.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
