Fiddle Arts (making decorations and favors), started Sept. 20 and will run through Oct. 11; four weeks for a $2 fee. Both are cheerleaders at KUHS. This is a continuous course and the course of eight lessons is offered for a $1 fee.

Dr. Brooks, superintendent of Oregon State Hospital at Salem, added:

"We should not be too ready to accept as a fact that our own self-discipline in abstaining will necessarily support, encourage or uphold those who are alcoholics and cannot safely drink at all.

"In fact, the alcoholic may react against abstinence... (in others) when he interprets abstinence as a reproach to his own drinking. If I had a broken leg, I would find no comfort from everybody walking around on crutches."

In an address prepared for a noonday service held here in connection with the Episcopal general convention, Dr. Brooks said:

"It is important that a person drink or not drink for the right reasons, and these same reasons should apply to both the clergyman and the layman."

However, if a person decides to abstain altogether, it ought not to be because he thinks this is "necessarily the better way of life," Dr. Brooks said, adding:

"Such a holier-than-thou attitude is not only unchristian but alienates those we most desire to help. 'The Episcopal Church declares itself against the abuse of alcohol without insisting that the only remedy is total abstinence.'"

Without giving the idea much thought, it seems that if there can be a Chinese New Year in February and a Jewish New Year in September, then there can also be an Oregon Tech New Year on some date other than Jan. 1. This writer will usurp the authority to proclaim it as last Wednesday, Sept. 20, when some 550 freshmen flocked onto the campus for new student orientation activities. Blue and gold freshmen beanie separated the freshmen from returning students who were registering during the three-day period. Two freshmen were accosted from far-away Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

There are also new faces on the Oregon Tech faculty. Jack Churchill, new head of Student Personnel Services, has been assistant to the dean of students at the University of Denver during the past three years while completing the course work for a doctoral degree. Mrs. Churchill is teaching at Mills School.

Jim Partlow, from Lincoln High School in Portland where he has been head of the social science department, has built an enviable record in the development of league-leading high school basketball and baseball teams. He is replacing Wally Palmberg and will be director of physical education as well as coach of both basketball and baseball.

Mrs. Vaden May as assistant librarian is coming to Oregon Tech with a broad background of experience and training as librarian and teacher in high schools. She has taught the past two years at Weston, Ore.

Harold Young has joined the staff in the metals division. He has been operating the McVay Machine Shop in Klamath Falls for several years. He brings to the department both academic and practical experience in a particular area.

Mrs. Lorraine Furby, a certified dental X-ray technician, and currently editor of the regional dental publication will be in charge of the dental assistant curricula. She will replace Mrs. Lura Noel Scott who resigned during the summer.

A Chiloquin laundry operator, Donald B. Jones, 46, was arrested Thursday morning by Deputy Alvie O. Youngblood on a fugitive warrant from the state of Louisiana.

Jones was jailed and held for Louisiana authorities in lieu of $3,500 bail. Youngblood said Jones is wanted for allegedly embezzling more than $500 from a laundry. He also said that Jones is under suspicion for some bad checks.

Rules on farm wages

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg has ruled that farms which supply goods or services to the government under contract must pay their workers $1.15 an hour for the work done under the contract. The new minimum-wage law provides a $1.15 hourly rate for workers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Jaycees Push Seat-Belt Program

Klamath Jaycees, Friday, will begin their big push to install National Safety Council-endorsed seat belts in 1,500 Klamath County automobiles.

The program as outlined here, which retail for $7.95 per set, will be sold by the Jaycees for $4.75; metal to metal types, which are quickly removable, the Jaycees will distribute for $3.75 per set, they retail at $12.50.

The Jaycee price does not include installation; however the two outlets for the belts in Klamath Falls, have agreed to install them for $1 per set.

Belts will be available Friday from Dick's Richfield on Esplanade and Wall Street and M.J.R. Muffler Shop on South Sixth, across from the Tower Theater.

Recently, a similar campaign in Corvallis, put 1,400 belts on local automobiles. Gov. Mark Hatfield has endorsed the program and the National Safety Council recently released information in support of the belts.

"Nearly 70 per cent of the fatal accidents could have been non-fatal if occupants of the vehicles had been wearing seat belts," Dimmit quotes the council as saying.

"This is one of our campaigns in the interest of public safety," Dimmit explained, "we sincerely hope the public will support the program."

Following the car across the 1912 vintage bridge when the span dropped out.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Lefler of Kellogg, who were the first on the scene after the accident, said they heard a "terrible noise" and came running out of the house. They saw the debris on the river bank and called police.

Those injured were Alfred A. Wheeler and his wife, Ida, of Gaston, an unidentified passenger and truck driver Bob Farsan of Cottage Grove.

Farsan was driving an unloaded short-haul logging truck for Jeffers Logging Co. of Veneta.

The three injured in the car were taken to Douglas Community Hospital in Roseburg. Farsan was taken to Cottage Grove Hospital. State police said the truck was following the car across the 1912 vintage bridge when the span dropped out.

Officers were elected Tuesday at this year's first meeting of Faculty Wives. Those elected were Shirley Douglass, president, Barbara Rowe, vice president, Barbara Olson, secretary, and Elgie Dodge, treasurer. Hostesses for the evening affair, which was held in the Student Union Lounge were Dorothy Cordial, Ruth Biber, Barbara Rowe and Ruth Geiss.

Fred Foulon, Julian Ager, Wayne Rawson, Jesse Crabtree, and A. V. McVey from the engineering associates faculty and Dean Paul Meier attended a full day and evening session of the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping at Salem recently.

Incidentally, Mae (A. V. McVey) who was division head until he retired in the summer of 1960 is returning to teach part time in the surveying area.

The dean's coffee hour on Wednesday afternoon and the director's reception Thursday evening were two highlight events of the week for new students. More than 350 freshmen went through the testing program on Wednesday and Friday. Almost 200 had taken the tests during the summer. On Thursday, 35 returning students registered. Both enthusiasm and attendance indicate a good year on the "mile-high" campus.

Florida and Georgia welfare officials said they knew of no specific cases such as Wood described.

Director Frank M. Craft of the Florida Department of Public Welfare said in Jacksonville: "It's a little hard for me to understand how anybody can make a charge like that because there is no possible way for us to advance a year's assistance payment until a person is qualified in another state."

Washington (AP)—President Kennedy ceremonially signed Saturday a bill under which he said the federal government will help local communities stem the tide of juvenile delinquency.

The measure sets up a 3-year, $30 million program of federal grants for work in that field.

The bill provides for $10 million of federal money a year for three years to help pay for demonstration projects to develop new ways of cutting down youthful offenses, for training personnel and for other aid.

States, local communities or nonprofit groups participating would have to make matching contributions.
