

Two Men, Woman Face Oregon Death Chamber

SALEM (AP) — Two men and a woman now face death in Oregon's gas chamber. That total doesn't set a record. But Jeannette June Freeman, sentenced at Madras for the slaying of 6-year-old Larry Jackson, is the first of her sex to be sentenced to die.

LeRoy Sanford McGahey, Jackson County logger who killed a woman, is now on death row. Larry West Shipley was convicted at Newport Monday for slaying a young girl.

In 1956, there were three men on death row, but the sentences of all were commuted.

They are George F. Sack, Portland, who killed his wife; and two Jackson County slayers, Billy Junior Nunn and James Norman Jensen.

Nunn killed a 14-year-old boy, and Jensen killed a woman during a house burglary.

But in 1952, there were four on death row at once. Since the prison started executing in 1903, there have been 85 persons received on death row.

Only 57 of them were executed. There were 40 hangings. In 1937, the gas chamber replaced the gallows. There have been 17 killed by gas.

There was a triple hanging Dec. 13, 1912. But the gas chamber can seat only one person at a time. When two persons are sentenced to be gassed on the same day, one follows about an hour after the other.

Two men were gassed on the night of Jan. 9, 1953. They were two Portlanders, Morris Leland and Frank O. Payne.

Leland killed a 15-year-old high school girl, and Payne killed a grocer in a holdup.

Then, 14 days later, Albert W. Karnes paid with his life for the slaying of an old lady in Salem. No one has died in the chamber since Karnes.

Warden Clarence Gladden took over his job three months after Karnes died. Gladden opposes capital punishment. He says it is unfair, arguing that the ones who die often are people who can't afford to hire good lawyers.

The three people now awaiting death will get automatic appeals to the Supreme Court.

If the court upholds the death sentences, then the pressure will be on Gov. Mark O. Hatfield to commute the sentences.

Hatfield agrees with Gladden that capital punishment should be abolished. But he says he would not let his personal feelings interfere with actions of a court or jury.

Hatfield says the largest number of those who are sentenced to die are from the lower income brackets. And he says the death penalty is too final, not taking into account the possibility of human error, and there is no room for flexibility.

"However, I want to make it perfectly clear that I will uphold the Oregon law which provides for capital punishment."

He says he would commute a sentence only if there were new evidence, or irregularity or error in the judicial proceedings.

When Miss Freeman comes here, she will be placed in a private room in the women's quarters. Gladden says there are no facilities for a woman on death row.

Death row is in the prison's segregation building.

No Help Needed To Write Column

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column ever since it started, which must be at least five years now. You have a terrific sense of humor and I think it's a shame that you waste your time and talent on squirrely teenagers and nutty housewives who are sunk anyway.

With my personality and your brains the two of us could be a winning combination. I have some tremendous ideas which would put both of us right in the big-time. Are you interested?—MR. SUCCESS

Dear Mr. Success: I don't think you need me. Judging by your signature you've already got it made. If you don't mind I'll just stumble along alone and do as good a job as I can without you.

Dear Ann Landers: Clyde and I have a profitable drapery business which we've worked hard to build up. His brother usually does the final delivery and hangs the draperies.

Yesterday Clyde said he wanted to hang the draperies "personally" for some lady who is very social because it would be good for business.

He was gone four hours and I began to worry. He finally showed up at home—half crumpled. I asked him where he had been and he said they got to visiting over a few highballs and he forgot what time it was. Also he said his brother had better go hang the draperies tomorrow as he never got around to it.

If Clyde had been picked up in the truck for drunken driving it could have ruined us. He claims that personal attention is good for business, and that I can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear D.C.: You're not cracked. You're bored. A vacation spot is always more glamorous than the working terrain but since you seem to have fallen in love with Europe I suggest you transfer for a year and see if the shine wears off.

From the tone of your letter you have little to lose. Your passport doesn't even have to be renewed.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

124 Oregon Students In Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
One hundred twenty-four Oregon high school students in 38 cities are semifinalists in the 1961-62 National Merit Scholarship competition.

The National Merit Scholarship Corp. at Evanston, Ill., made the names public today. It said there were about 10,000 semifinalists nationally. They qualified for this as a result of outstanding performance in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last March in 15,000 high schools.

This group will now take another examination, lasting three hours, on Dec. 2. Those whose scores bear out the promise of their first examination scores, will become finalists.

In April, the scholarship winners will be named. They will have four-year college awards, ranging from $100 for those who have adequate financial support, average $800.

John M. Stalnaker, president of the non-profit corporation handling the scholarship program, said the total number of awards would depend on the support the program gets. Since 1955, nearly 5,000 students have received financial aid.

Among Oregon semifinalists: Klamath Falls, Henley High School—Judith A. Baumgardner, Klamath Falls, Klamath Union High School—Sharon M. Russell.

Dinner Has 200 Guests

More than 200 guests arrived to eat beef stew at the fourth annual dinner Sept. 23, sponsored by the Klamath County Cow Belles. Dinner prepared by Bev Lyons, Pacific Power and Light home economist, featured the use of cheaper cuts of beef. Guests were served in the Altamont Junior High School cafeteria. Mrs. Lyons was assisted by Golden Swartzler, Mrs. Dayton Hyde and Mrs. Clarence Gansberry decorated the rooms in fall colors.

Mrs. Louis Randall, Cow Belle president, was assisted by past presidents, Mrs. Inez DeLamater, Mrs. Dave Campbell, Mrs. William Marshall, Mrs. William Goulden, Mrs. Don Johnson, Mrs. Ted Hyde, Mrs. Vern Howard, Mrs. Bob Rhodes was cashier.

Music during the dinner hour was by Mrs. Martin Gift.

Funds from the dinner are used to promote the use of beef.

The Cow Belle group is the auxiliary of the Klamath County Cattlemen's Association.

No Hunting On Refuge

TULELAKE — No deer hunting or camping will be permitted on the Klamath Forest National Wildlife Refuge during the 1961 season which opens Sept. 30.

In announcing the restriction, Refuge Manager Robert F. Russell said the Klamath Forest National Wildlife Refuge is a water-fowl area administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It is principally a marsh surrounded by lowland meadows with some timbered land within the refuge on the east and south sides.

The entire refuge boundary is posted with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service "Blue Goose," National Wildlife Refuge signs at one-quarter-mile intervals.
