Herrera Assault Trial Hears Ex-Wife's Story

Delores Marie Tracy, 20, ex-wife of Ymael C. (Smiley) Herrera, testified Monday about the night of Sept. 15 when Herrera broke into Crank's home at 2130 Vine Street.

Herrera, 19, 636 Owens Street, is on trial in circuit court for burglary in a dwelling. Eight women and four men were selected to sit on the jury as the trial began Monday in Judge David R. Vandenberg's court.

Miss Tracy said she and Crank had been on a date the 15th before they went to Crank's house. She said she had known Crank for 2 1/2 years and added that they were "pretty serious."

The defense apparently will admit that Herrera broke into Crank's house but is expected to deny that Herrera intended to commit assault and battery, which is charged in the indictment. The state introduced pictures to show that Crank was struck in the back of the head.

Miss Tracy also testified that she lived with Herrera for more than nine months after their divorce became final in May, 1960. She was given custody of their two small daughters and Herrera will argue, according to the defense attorney, that he wanted to see his children when he went to Crank's house.

Fire Danger Light Here

A moisture condition which ranged from "light and spotty" to "general" in some parts of Klamath County, lessened fire danger Tuesday as only one blaze was reported in local timber.

The fire, spotted by a KFPA lookout on Yalnox Butte, was located on the Fremont National Forest and was quickly controlled by forest service personnel. Located on the Bly District of the Fremont, the fire was small and caused by a hunter. It was near a road.

Suburban firemen extinguished a grass fire at 3:45 p.m. Monday in a vacant lot near the 6600 block of Alva Street. Firemen said it was caused by children playing with matches.

Mothers Protest

graders in the schools. They took no action on her request.

Superintendent of Schools Ray Hunsaker said he was opposed to the program on two counts: first, that it was pushing teenagers into social situations too young; and second, that it opens a "pandora's box" of administrative problems in that the schools would soon be besieged with requests from commercial studios to teach other subjects such as guitar and accordion.

Hunsaker said it had been his experience that at this age "the girls are dancing with each other while the boys are out playing dog pile around the edge of the dance floor."

The board also announced plans for dedication of Lucile O'Neill School.

Francis Smith, chairman of the Oregon State Board of Education, will be the key speaker at the program scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 22, at 2 p.m.

2 Accidents Told Police

Two rear end collisions Monday morning at the busy intersection of South Sixth and East Main streets resulted in citations being issued to three drivers.

City police said a car driven by William W. West, 26, 4715 Onyx Street, ran into the rear end of a car driven by Mrs. Paula M. Sonntag, 18, 3045 Western Street. West was cited for following too closely. Neither driver was injured.

Forty minutes later, two more cars collided at the same corner. In similar circumstances, Lawrence H. Ewert, 27, of 3875 Barry Street, was cited for following too closely. The other driver was Joseph Wekkin, 46, of 4224 Onyx Street, who was found to be driving with an expired license.

Mrs. Short Dies Oct. 8

Mrs. Arthur (Nellie) Short, 83, former Fort Klamath resident, died Oct. 8 in Osteopathic Hospital in Central Point following a month's illness. Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday at Siskiyou Memorial Chapel in Medford.

Born near Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 16, 1876, she was married to the late William Elmore Nicholson Oct. 11, 1898. They moved to Fort Klamath in 1898 and engaged in cattle ranching. They turned their holdings over to their three sons in 1929 and moved to Medford where Mr. Nicholson died in 1935.

She subsequently married Arthur Short of Medford. They were frequent visitors to Klamath Falls through the years. Mrs. Short was an honorary pioneer member of Wood River Pioneers and Old-timers and belonged to various organizations in Medford. She was one of the original trustees of Fort Klamath Community Methodist Church.

Survivors include the widower, Arthur Short, Medford; a daughter, Mrs. Milton A. Houston, Applegate, Ore.; and two sons, Stewart and Lloyd Nicholson, both of Fort Klamath. Also 10 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Council Lets Contract For Buena Vista Sewer

Construction of the Buena Vista sewer is now assured. The City Council awarded the contract for the long-awaited sewer line to the Inter City Construction Company of Eugene at its regular Monday night meeting.

The Eugene firm's bid was $99,998.95 and calls for completion by April 23, 1962.

Of the total bid, the city will pay not to exceed $45,000 as its share of the laying of the trunk line to serve the area. The balance is assessed against property owners involved in the sewer district.

The council's plan to finance the construction includes a proposal to issue warrants that draw five percent interest in the interim between construction and the sale of the bonds of the project.

Bids were also opened Monday for three vehicles for the city, an automobile, a half-ton truck and a three-quarter ton truck. Low bidder on the automobile was Jim Olson at $1,839.56; low bidder on the half-ton truck was Balsiger Motors at $1,389.21; and Klamath Motors on the three-quarter ton pickup at $2,060.38.

The council moved to refer the bids to the city manager and the various department heads with authority to award the bid if the low bid is accepted, otherwise report back to council.

They also authorized the calling for bids for two vehicles for the police department. At first, it was asked that compacts be purchased for the juvenile officer and detective, but the council decided instead to ask for bids on a standard automobile with a compact alternate.

Dave DeVoe, planning technician, informed the council that he was resigning effective Oct. 20, to accept a similar post at Anchorage, Alaska.

City Manager Bob Kyle reported that a planning technician replacement is being secured from Eugene and should be available about Dec. 1.

A discussion arose over the wording of a sidewalk repair ordinance when Councilman Lyle Kellstrom objected to the use of the word "liability" in the ordinance. The law made the property owner "liable" in the event someone was injured on sidewalks needing repair.

The word was changed later to "responsible." In other changes, the provision for a jail sentence was deleted from the enforcement portion of the ordinance, leaving a fine up to $300 as the penalty for violation.

Kellstrom said, "We have enough people in jail as it is." He said he didn't feel that the jail term was appropriate nor needed.

Councilman Ladd Hoyt remarked about sidewalks adjacent to city owned property and suggested that they be checked to make certain they are all in good condition. "We can't expect citizens to do it, if the city doesn't do it," he said.

A hearing date of Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m. was set for a supplemental budget which would transfer about $7,000 from the general fund to the park department fund. The money comes from the sale of the old Klamath County school site and has been earmarked to pay for the cost of filling in the swamp area across the highway from the ice skating rink on Lakeshore Drive.

A total of $13,000 was received for the property, and $6,000 of that has already gone into the park budget. The supplemental budget would authorize transfer of the balance.

The council approved the sale of lots 7 and 8, block 309, Darrow Addition to D. W. and Olive Starkey for $2,600, and okayed the putting up for sale of lots 3 and 4, and lots 23 and 24, all in block 309, Darrow Addition.

Hallie C. Head, 2030 Erie, appealed before the council to register a complaint about the condition of Haskins Street. He asked that action be taken to have the trash, garbage and fence posts removed from the street. He also called attention to a trailer parked in the street and maintained it should be moved also. The council instructed the city manager to have the police department check into the situation and get the street cleaned up.
