

Arkansas Eyes Upset Of Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-sized effort apparently is going to be made by conservatives to unseat Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., in next year's Arkansas senatorial primary.

Fulbright, who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, took notice of this Monday when he announced in Little Rock that he will be a candidate for reelection "unless it is obvious the people of Arkansas no longer want me to represent them."

Fulbright added that he was aware of some dissatisfaction among state voters because of his involvement with foreign affairs. Because he is outspoken in his views, Fulbright has raised some State Department eyebrows with recent comments. His statement in London last week that the West bears heavy responsibilities for the situation in Berlin disturbed Kennedy administration leaders.

Back in this country, Fulbright called an airport news conference to say that his remarks were directed at the "dilatory tactics" employed by Western leaders in 1944 and 1945 and not at current talks about Berlin.

This may have left the Arkansas senator in a sort of hair-shirt classification, so far as the administration is concerned. But few politicians thought it disturbed the Arkansas voters materially.

Much more important from a state standpoint, perhaps, may have been Fulbright's memorandum to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in which the senator complained about military sponsorship of public forums which featured "extremist speeches" about alleged Communist infiltration in schools, churches and government.

In the storm over the alleged muzzling of military leaders, Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., has won an inquiry by a special Armed Services subcommittee into the situation.

Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., who has aligned himself with several conservative groups, has given every sign that he intends to contest Fulbright for the nomination. In the background is Gov. Orval Faubus who might decide to go after the senatorial nomination.

Eugene Race Stays Open

EUGENE (AP) — Eugene's lower millrace will remain open to University of Oregon canoeists.

The Eugene City Council Monday night heard City Atty. Herman Hendershott say that it had no choice under terms of a 10-year contract with the university but to replace a bridge which collapsed at the Alder Street crossing.

Council members had been urged by Mayor Edwin E. Cone to consider, instead, installing a much less costly culvert at the crossing. A 30-inch culvert would handle the relatively small flow of water but wouldn't let canoeists through to enjoy the millrace below Alder Street.

Hendershott cited a provision in the contract which requires the city to maintain all bridges across the millrace as well as spend up to $2,500 a year in keeping the millrace clean. In turn, the university operates pumps which keep water flowing in the millrace.

The council awarded a contract for a new $17,000 bridge.

4-H NEWS

SPRAGUE RIVER
The Sprague River children organized a 4-H Club on Sept. 29. The officers elected were: president, Donna Barney; vice president, Darcel Atchley; secretary, Donna Schonchin; news reporter, Corinne Walker; and song leader, Melva Cook.

There will be three different projects carried this year, which are sewing, cooking and crafts. The first project for crafts we are going to try is soap carving.

We shall have our Achievement Program along with the PTA meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 6 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Mr. Skinner or Miss Armstrong will be here to present the awards.

Corinne Walker, News Reporter.

QUEEN COOKS OUT
LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth has adopted an American custom—the cookout.

The Queen has taken to serving guests at Balmoral Castle steaks and chops cooked by Her Majesty's over an outdoor grill. British newspapers reported today.

PRECILLIA POP

I wish we'd be less eager in our probes of Outer Space.

To learn what kind of people might be living there some place...

For surely you agree it's not a happy picture, is it.

To think of all those folks in Space returning us our visit.
