

Variety Of Opinions Greet Taylor In Viet Nam

By JOHN GRIFFIN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor will hear a mixture of opinions in South Viet Nam about the need—or advisability—for sending U.S. troops to help crush the Communist threat.

President Kennedy's announcement that he is sending his personal military adviser to make an on-the-spot survey brought the first open mention in Saigon newspapers of the possibility of using American troops.

President Ngo Dinh Diem's government was silent, however, on the reports it had previously censored from the papers.

The South Vietnamese obviously would like to win their own war with the Viet Cong rebels supplied and reinforced by North Viet Nam. Some officials fear the propaganda capital the Communists would make out of American troop intervention.

But there is a feeling, too, that direct American help on the battle field may eventually be needed.

U. S. officials and military men here generally take a more optimistic view of the over-all situation than the concern shown in reports from Washington. They consider the situation serious but not critical—and certainly not grave enough to justify sending American forces.

These Americans do not generally feel that the situation has deteriorated in the past few weeks to the extent some Vietnamese have indicated.

Taylor's visit also comes in a period of disagreement between the Diem government and the United States over some important new military and economic development programs.

This reportedly has delayed the announcement and action on some key provisions of the so-called Staley report—the joint U. S.-Vietnamese crash program designed to break the back of the Communist campaign in 18

Some Western diplomatic sources—and a number of Asians—have doubt about the ability of President Diem's government to win support of the people in the countryside. These sources feel U. S. officials, in their desire to support the Diem regime, fail to give enough weight to its weaknesses.

Silverton Turkey Man Seeks GOP Senate Post

SALEM (AP)—R.F. Cook, Silverton turkey grower who calls himself a "Goldwater conservative," said Thursday he will seek the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Cook's candidacy will turn the race for the Republican nomination into a three-man contest. Other announced candidates are Sig Unander, Portland, and Fred Brixey, Corvallis.

The three will bid for the nomination to oppose Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who said he will seek reelection.

Another Republican, Dr. Harold Livingston, Oregon State University speech professor, said he may also seek the Republican nomination. He is 46.

Cook was a candidate for the same office in 1960. He is expected to formally announce his candidacy Friday.

Cook will be making his sixth bid for office. He previously campaigned unsuccessfully for Congress in 1956 and for the legislature in 1952, 1954 and 1958.

Cook said he hoped to give the voters a "clear choice" between liberal and conservative philosophies.

presumably Vietnamese—during a recent visit that the Viet Cong had the support probably of 25 per cent of the population. But some observers rate the Red strength at closer to 75 per cent in some areas.

President Diem reportedly told Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson last May that he did not want American troops, but there is considerable expectation that he will make a request as soon as American officials think it is necessary.

Nixon Talks JFK Shoo-In

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Close friends of Richard M. Nixon say the former vice president has told them he thinks it would be impossible to beat President Kennedy in 1964.

Nixon's economic advisers have told him, the friends say, that the current economic boom will probably be near its peak in 1964, providing tremendous impetus for the President's reelection.

One source said that Nixon, a candidate for California's governorship next year, had no intention, money or organization to challenge New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller or Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater for the GOP nomination in 1964.

He also said that Nixon believes even war would tend to support Kennedy's reelection.

The friend added that Nixon believes there is a strong possibility of a Rockefeller-Goldwater ticket, since both men have moved toward the center of the political spectrum in Nixon's thinking.

Nixon is also said to think there is an outside chance that the GOP might choose a dark horse in 1964, possibly George Romney, president of American Motors Corp.

In revealing his thinking to associates Nixon repeated firmly that he does not think there is such a thing as a presidential "draft."

He fully intends to serve the complete four-year term in Sacramento if elected governor of California, they said.

Nixon also made it clear that he is more concerned about a possible battle against incumbent Gov. Edmund G. Brown than about his expected primary fight against former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

Mental Patient Not Good Company

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: My husband's brother is in a mental hospital about 20 miles from here. He isn't violent or harmful, but he has the mentality of an 11-year-old.

Every weekend we drive over to get him and he spends Saturday evening and Sunday with us. He sleeps in the same bedroom with our 10-year-old son and this worries me sick. Our son asks why Uncle Gerald talks to himself and why he laughs so much.

We can't accept any invitations on weekends and we don't want to ask anyone over here. When our children's friends come over we worry for fear they'll offend Gerald. The atmosphere is terribly tense.

I hate to complain to my husband, but I just can't take his brother every weekend of my life. I don't want to seem unsympathetic but we have a life of our own to live.—S.O.I.

Dear S.O.I.: Your husband is asking too much of his family. Every other weekend is often enough for Gerald to come to visit. And he should not share your son's bedroom under any circumstances. He should be driven back to the hospital to spend the night.

Explain to your children and their friends that Uncle Gerald is mentally ill and that he needs understanding. Tell them to treat him as they would any other adult and to make allowances for his peculiarities.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman with three lovely children. The man I've been going with for two years is a widower. His has four of the wildest, most ill-mannered kids I've ever seen in my life. His youngest child is so mean and destructive that they can't even keep a canary in the house. Something "mysterious" has happened to every pet they've ever owned.

The only arguments Clayton and I have are over the children. He says my son is a sissy and he thinks my girls are stupid. I've told him that his children are savages and if I was in charge of them they'd do the mark or else.

Do you think we could have a good marriage in the light of these facts? I want to marry him but I'm worried.—JANGLED NERVES

Dear Jangled: There are seven

PORTLAND (AP)—The Pacific International Livestock Exposition will open Saturday for what is expected to be its biggest show since World War II.

The number of entries is twice as big as last year's, said president Thomas Kerr. There will be more than 350 dairy cattle, 500 beef cattle and 900 sheep entered in the competition.

As a preliminary there will be a parade in downtown Portland Friday. The parade will include 35 Hereford steers.

Suburban Area Planning, Zoning Discussion Scheduled For Tuesday

The first in a series of meetings to explain suburban planning and zoning to interested citizens will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Peterson School under sponsorship of the school patrons' association.

Bob Beach, county planning commission chairman, and David DeVoe, planning technician, will represent the planning commission at the meeting. At least six monthly meetings are in the offing.

Purpose of the meetings, according to the planning commission, is to introduce the subject of urban planning to suburban residents and to explain in particular the purposes and effects of zoning and building regulations.

The county court has directed the planning commission to prepare a zoning ordinance and map for the South Suburban area and have them ready for adoption within two years. Pelican City is the lone suburban area presently zoned.

First step in planning is to draft a land use plan or development pattern. After this is adopted by the planning commission and county court, a zoning ordinance and map are prepared using the development pattern as a guide. Zoning must be approved by the commission and court and discussed at a public hearing before it becomes law.

"Zoning of Klamath Falls suburbs such as the South Suburban area would be beneficial," DeVoe said Thursday. "It would stop hodgepodge development and assure orderly development of the area." DeVoe said most people approve of zoning when they understand it and that is the purpose of the series of meetings.

Klamath Falls already has a zoning ordinance and the city planning commission is cooperating with the county group to develop a master plan of development. A joint city-county planning group is also working on an urban service needs study. These projects have won endorsement from the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce.

Asphalt Grass Brings Frowns -- Kids Like It

PORTLAND (AP)—John A. Burtis, who lives in a Southeast Portland suburban area, recently paved his front yard with asphalt.

This brought protests from some of his neighbors, who have ordinary grass-covered yards.

Burtis insisted the pavement was an improvement to his property. His neighbors were not so sure of this and asked the county if there were some action that could be taken against Burtis.

Paul Northrup, county engineer, said the only thing he could do was to make Burtis remove the blacktop from the right-of-way reserved for the sidewalk.

Burtis' attorney, however, said he didn't think the county could require removal of the strip, since the area has no sidewalks anyway.

Meanwhile, the neighborhood children have taken over the 2,000 square foot area for a playground.

Burtis said he was going to save his money "and next summer I am going to paint the entire area a vivid green."

Missing Local Lad Located

A 16-year-old North Dakota youth was picked up by city police Wednesday night and at the same time a 17-year-old Klamath Falls youth who left home last week was located in Little Rock, Ark.

The North Dakota youth was picked up after he wandered to the Klamath Falls Gospel Mission, 823 Walnut Street.

David Dow, 17-year-old son of Bert Dow, 427 Alameda Street, was located in Little Rock with a companion. He was reported missing last Wednesday by his father and had allegedly told friends he was going to Arkansas.
