Legal Decision Will Save Oregon O & C Counties Million In Revenue

OREGON CITY—"Oregon counties will save approximately one million dollars in revenue in the immediate future through a legal decision received by the O & C Counties Association," Darrell Jones, association president, reported.

The opinion from Department of Interior counsel stops tax-free logging on mining claims on O & C lands.

Jones, a Clackamas County commissioner, heads the association which is made up of the 18 Oregon counties having O & C lands, mostly timber producing, which once were privately held, then reclaimed by the government.

Mining interests have claimed surface rights and had been cutting timber on O & C lands administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

"We now have an opinion from the government attorneys declaring these tax-free raids illegal," Jones said.

Efforts of Bureau of Land Management and O & C County Association officials resulted in reversal of a previous opinion, now making it impossible to secure a mining patent on O & C timber lands administered by the U.S. Forest Service, then to cut the timber and sell it commercially without having paid for it. Most federal timber is sold to the highest bidder at auction. Without this legal bar, the mining patent could be used as a "gimmick" to escape payment.

Jones complimented Bureau of Land Management officials for their cooperation in getting the decision.

Bare Shoulders Get Jackie's Approval Stamp

NEW YORK (AP) — Cavemen started the style of leaving one shoulder bare. Jacqueline Kennedy okayed it by including a one-shoulder dinner gown in her state wardrobe.

Designer Rudi Gernreich made a good thing of it last year with his Tarzan-like bathing suits for women. Now he has designed an entire wardrobe for one-armed lady paperhangers and others who like one cold shoulder.

Suits, daytime dresses, cocktail dresses—with one sleeve cut short or off entirely and the other reaching the wrist—were introduced Monday to buyers here for the spring fashion market.

Because around the world was inspiration for trapeze dresses, the California designers' theme, Oriental and Negro models joined the garment district regulars to pace the runway in gold Paisley print denim jacket suits; sun-dresses in such shocking color combinations as pink and brass; and flame red, skintight knit sailor suits designed to make Uncle Sam's boatboys blush the same hue.

Nevertheless, Gernreich also got plenty of inspiration from around the house. He borrowed red and blue checked table cloths for crisply tailored suits, sheath dresses, and lounge pants. Possibly from bed-spreads came his gowns.
