

Baptist Seminary Holds Special Luncheon Here

Graduates and ex-students of the Golden Gate Theological Seminary, now residing in Oregon, Washington and Western Canada, will attend a special luncheon at Rickfells' Restaurant Oct. 19.

An alumni team from California will attend the annual convention of Southern Baptists in Oregon and Washington, Oct. 18-20, and assist in organizing the first district chapter of the national alumni association.

The present Oregon-Washington alumni group will be renamed and chartered the "Northwest District Chapter," according to Carl M. Halvarson, assistant to the president at Golden Gate Seminary and executive secretary of the national alumni organization.

Headlining the dignitaries is the Rev. John Hines, president of the national alumni association, who will deliver the principal address to the graduates and ex-students at a luncheon to begin at 12:30 p.m.

Hines is pastor of First Southern Baptist Church in Garden Grove, near Los Angeles, and is also serving as a member of the institution's board of trustees.

Leaders of Baptists groups in Oregon, Washington and Western Canada attending the annual state convention have been invited to attend the luncheon, Halvarson said.

The new organization is expected to name a new slate of officers who will serve for the coming year, the executive secretary said.

Golden Gate Seminary is operated by Southern Baptists in California and is located at Mill Valley, near San Francisco, on a 126-acre site.

Dr. Harold K. Graves is president of the institution and will attend the annual convention of Oregon-Washington Baptists in addition.

The United States and Brazil are the two most populous countries in the western hemisphere.

ASHLAND (special) — Casting for the Vining Repertory Theater's fall production slate was announced Monday in Ashland.

Former Oregon Shakespearean Festival actors, remaining in Ashland to prepare Vining's fall season, will combine with Rogue Valley residents to present the four Vining productions — "The Boy Friend," "Rashomon," "The Miser," and "Night of the Auk."

Sponsored by Southern Oregon College in cooperation with the Oregon Shakespearean Festival, the Vining season will open Nov. 11 at Ashland's Varsity Theater with William Kinsolving's staging of "The Boy Friend."

Following on Nov. 12 will be the starkly beautiful Oriental drama "Rashomon," as directed by Angus L. Bowmer.

Tuesday, Nov. 14, will see the opening of Bowmer's staging of Moliere's riotous comedy "The Miser." The foursome will be complete on Wednesday, Nov. 15, with Carl Ritchie's production of "Night of the Auk," the powerful and prophetic drama by Arch Oboler.

The season will continue through Dec. 9.

Patricia Crawley, Klamath Falls, also of the 1961 Festival Company, will portray Maisie in "Boy Friend" and Brindavoine in "Miser."

Halley's comet made its last appearance in 1910 and its next visit to our skies is scheduled for 1996.

Pimples, Emotions Don't Need Notions

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is too personal to discuss with my mother so I am writing to you for an answer.

I've been dating since I was 18. I'm almost 19 now and my boy friend is 20. We've been going steady for three months. It's becoming awfully hard to keep our emotions in check.

Several weeks ago my face began to break out. I've tried not using soap, as my girl friend suggested, but it didn't help. My steady told me last night that my pent-up emotions are making my skin break out. He says female prudishness is unnatural and that my glands are rebelling.

It sounds very logical. Is this true or false?—MISS MESS

Dear Miss: Are the fellows still using that one? I thought it went out with the Stutz Bearcat. If your boy friend's theory was correct, I'd have to be worried about all the girls with lovely complexions.

See a dermatologist. And while you're there ask him if what your boy friend has in mind will help your complexion. You can then set the guy straight with the information you get from the physician.

And by all means thank him for offering himself up for purely medicinal purposes. It was indeed noble.

Dear Ann Landers: You make me sick. That letter from "Doc's Old Doll" who was married to a man younger than herself was just darling. And then you came along with that crummy answer and spoiled everything.

I happen to know of several cases where the woman is older and the marriages are wonderful. Your statement that "some women at 40 look like 50 and their young husbands are running like 60" was downright mean. Are you implying the men don't age?

I attended a 25-year high school reunion in June and I recognized every woman there. But the men had changed so much I had a hard time figuring out who was who. Women may put on a little weight, but at least they don't get bald. These men are all in their early 40's and I was shocked at the billiard-ball heads.

And by the way, Buttercup, how old is that picture of you at the top of your column?—FORMER FAN

Dear Former: I made it abundantly clear in my letter to Doc's Old Doll that I, too, knew of some exceptions and that she and Doc certainly sounded content. As a rule, however, I don't recommend marriage between a man and an older woman.

As for me, I don't know which picture you're looking at because the newspapers change them around, but no picture is more than two years old. And incidentally, I'm 43, Petunia. Any more questions?

Dear Ann, My husband operates a business from our home. I work in an office and I'm excellent at detailed book-keeping. I've offered dozens of times to set up an efficient system for him. I even bought ledger cards, but he insists on doing things his own way.

"His own way" is half-baked and it takes forever. His accountant has told him his methods are sloppy and that he ought to let me help him. But the man is plain stubborn. How can I get him to change his mind?—W.B.S.

Dear W.B.S.: You can't, so give up. You and your husband sound plenty competitive and I suspect he'd prefer to stumble around forever rather than allow you to show him how to do something. Ask his accountant to help him set up an efficient system. And stay out of the act yourself.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The girl has written a book. The girl is Ann Landers. The publisher is Prentice-Hall. The book is called "Since You Ask Me." Your book store has it.

Latin Club Holds Sale

Committee members helping with the annual Klamath Union High School Latin Club rummage sale say customers will be able to "outfit the whole family," during the sale Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27-28. Items will be on display at the former location of the Piggly Wiggly Store on Pine Street. Doors will be open from 9:30 a.m. to evening.

Mothers of club members will be on hand the opening day to assist.

Mrs. Helen Hossman, head of the KUHS foreign language department, asks anyone who has rummage to donate to call TU 4-8978 evenings.

Money from the yearly sales is used for worthwhile purposes. Students are assisted with financing education, scholarships are provided and in the past the club adopted and gave care for a period of months to an Italian boy.

Cafe Fight Jails Pair

Two transients were arrested by city police early Sunday morning for fighting inside the Anchor Cafe, 330 South Sixth Street.

Police said they were called to the cafe to break up a fight between Louis Estrada, 33, and Anastasio Montoya, 36. Both were booked for disorderly conduct at the police station. Montoya failed to appear for court and forfeited $25 bail while Estrada pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a $25 fine or spend five days in jail.

Another fight was investigated early Saturday morning by city police. A teletype report was received from Bend that four men had beaten some other men and thrown them out of a boxcar.

The four men were located in Klamath Falls and questioned. They admitted fighting but said they were only protecting themselves. Police released them when they learned no complaint would be filed in Bend.

Ahmad, Happy Camel Cart Driver, Visits Harry

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Bashir Ahmad, the Pakistani camel cart driver with the infectious grin, stopped in mid-America today to see a prize steer and visit with former president Harry S. Truman.

Bashir is on a tour which grew out of chance encounter with Lyndon B. Johnson when the vice president visited Karchi in May. Johnson singled him out of a crowd, shook hands and invited him to visit the United States.

Today's schedule begins at the American Royal Livestock Show for the auction of its grand champion steer.

Maybe it, a big and blocky 1,000-pound Angus owned by Judy Vining, 17, of Osage, Iowa, won the honor Tuesday.

Bashir's schedule also includes a visit to the Liberty Memorial, receiving an honorary Kansas City citizenship, and the trip to the Truman Memorial Library in nearby Independence to see the former president.

Bashir arrived in Kansas City by jet tourist flight Tuesday night after a busy day in Texas.

"I am so tired I can hardly keep my eyes open," he said through an interpreter. "My face is full of fatigue."

He flashed his big grin. It is a production. The ends of his long mustache turn up. He shows his teeth. He looks straight into your eyes, and his face is all warmth.

"They told me when the camel cart driver got on the jet Comet he would have a heart attack," he said. "So I told them: 'I am going to see my friend Johnson. If I have a heart attack, then let it go down in history that this man had a heart attack while going to see his friend."

Before he left home, Bashir said he wanted to meet ordinary people in this country, not just big shots.

"I can not differentiate between them," he said Tuesday night. "Their love and affection toward me has been the same."

In Dallas Tuesday Bashir received a new pickup truck.

"With this I can do in one hour what it took one day to do with a camel," he said.

But he will not sell the camel. "It was through the camel that I met Vice President Lyndon Johnson," said Bashir. "I will not sell him. He will stay with me always." Bashir and his entourage—the interpreter, a State Department escort and a member of Johnson's staff—will fly to Baltimore this evening. Bashir will start seeing Washington Thursday morning.
