

HALLOWEEN FUN — Obviously, these dogs do not believe in signs. And, since three of the four are really people, not poodles, there is no reason why they should. Dog masks, and complete costumes for Halloween, can be made of aluminum foil, and an inflated balloon. Spray paint, construction paper, and felt, were used to attain these simply wild features.

Foil Costumes Make Ideal Trickster Garb

Halloween has not "gone to the dogs," but why not let the children venture forth this year disguised as cute canines?

Any type of animal mask can be made, simply, of aluminum foil. In most cases, one 25-foot roll is sufficient. An animal body can be made from two rolls.

Inflate a large balloon to a size larger than a child's head. For the body, make the balloon about 30 inches across.

Place the balloon—spout end up—on a stack of sheets of foil. The foil should be torn into sheets about three feet long.

Start with the top sheet, and mold it up both sides of the balloon. Turn the balloon slightly, and bring up another foil sheet. Continue turning and covering, until the balloon is completely covered. Crush the ends of the foil sheets together around the spout end of the balloon, making the opening large enough for the head to fit through the opening you leave.

Add more foil sheets for strength, tucking them around the head opening. When all foil is used, release the air from the balloon, and remove it from the foil sphere.

Add a ball of foil for a nose, and secure it into place with a sheet of foil, wrapped around the mask. Add more foil to build up face features. Ears are made from crushed foil, and set into holes punched into the foil head at either side. A little glue will hold the ears in place.

Cut holes for eyes, and decorate with construction paper or felt. Spray can paint works well on foil for facial features.

The animal body is made the same way, but in a larger size.

SEEN'S BELIEVIN' — The rummage sale sponsored by Quota Club of Klamath County will include so many items for sale that the only way to be convinced is to go and take a look — so believes young Susie Soran, whose mother, Shirley Soran, is sale chairman. These toys will be among the bargains to be found when the doors open at 9 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 20, and again on Saturday at Clyde's Towing Service on Klamath Avenue. Proceeds will be used for the club's aid to the hard of hearing program and for an Ore Tech scholarship.

New Idea

Have you ever wished you could get a drink of really cold water right out of the faucet when you're thirsty instead of having to break out a tray of ice cubes and "manufacture" your own cold drink?

If you have, an ingenious manufacturer has the answer for you. He's designed an automatic water cooler small enough to fit under the kitchen sink. It works on the same principle as your refrigerator and uses the same "freon" refrigerant as the cooling agent.

The cooler hooks into your cold water line and has its own push-down spigot, which can be placed alongside the cold water faucet on the drainboard. It simply refrigerates your tap water down to about 40 degrees and keeps it there ready for you to draw off whenever your thirst needs quenching.

Cut holes for arms, and one for legs.

Once again, spray paint can be used for body markings. Add a long tail of crushed foil, and the costume is complete!

The pair honeymooned in Reno and are now residing at 335 Commercial Street in Klamath Falls.

We The Women

Marriage For A Price Is Practiced Here, Too

Ruth Millett
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You perhaps read where three British Tommies had advertised themselves for sale as husbands. Seems the trio were tired of the army and wanted to take advantage of the British policy of letting a soldier buy up the remainder of his service time.

Not having the money to buy up their army contracts, they hit on the idea of offering themselves in marriage. Two priced themselves at $700. The third offered himself at the bargain rate of $420, since he owed the army less time than the other two.

Said the enterprising three: "They buy us out. We marry them and we'll get jobs and keep them for the rest of their lives. Our brides will find us cheerful, sober and industrious. Girls may think we've got a nerve to make this offer. But we think it is a bargain for them."

Maybe it is a bargain. At any rate, at least one found a taker.

After all, what's so different in a girl's buying a young man's army contract in order to make marriage possible, from a girl's saying, "We don't have to wait until you get through college to get married. I'll take a job and put your through?"

That happens all the time over here. Girls promise to earn a paycheck until a young man finishes school, or puts in his time in uniform. To be sure, our young men don't advertise that they're for sale. But all the same, it's the girl who promises to help earn a living, who gets a young man to the altar before he is financially able to support a wife.

If army contracts could be bought up in this country we might even have a few GIs for sale as husbands over here.

NO HOT AIR FOR HAIR

The best method of drying hair is to towel it dry. Next, brush it thoroughly. But if you haven't the time to wait, make sure that your home dryer is set on warm, not hot. Heat dries the oil out of your hair.

Some outdoor cooks like to charcoal broil frankfurters wrapped in aluminum foil. Count on cooking these about 10 minutes.
