Stoic Berliners Unmoved By Show Of Tanks, Guns

Editor's Note: Gene Kramer, veteran, widely traveled foreign correspondent of The Associated Press, took a stroll Friday night down Berlin's Tank Alley, as described below.

By GENE KRAMER
BERLIN (AP)—Take a walk between Soviet and American tanks in a 200-yard no-man's land of Berlin.

On one side are 10 Soviet tanks with their guns pointed straight down Friedrichstrasse into West Berlin. Ahead, in the glare of Communist searchlights, are five U. S. Patton tanks trained on the Communists.

The armor from both sides rumbled into position in the dispute over the right of U. S. civilians to enter East Berlin without identifying themselves to East Berlin police.

If the crisis-hardened Berliners were frightened by this unprecedented confrontation of U. S. and Soviet forces, they hardly showed it.

A sparse crowd of East Berliners stood on the curbstones of Friedrichstrasse, stolidly watching the Soviet tanks come, almost automatically they shuffled backward when green-uniformed East Berlin People's Police—Vopos—ordered them to a point a half block away from the tanks.

Many straggled to their East Berlin homes after a brief stop. Buses and trams cut through the lines of tanks, and commuters aboard pressed their faces to the window for a better look.

Two East Berlin girls in slacks joked with a policeman. I asked

Negroes Held On Trespass

BALTIMORE (AP)—Five New York area Negroes denied service Friday night at a nearby diner on U.S. 40 were arrested, charged with trespass and released in $100 bond each pending a hearing Friday.

The group, consisting of four men and a woman, was motoring south to Washington to attend a human rights convention when they stopped at the restaurant. The owner read aloud Maryland's law governing trespass before 10 Baltimore County officers arrived.

The woman, identified as Evelyn C. Haynes, editor of the New York Courier, a Negro newspaper, said she and her companions knew nothing of a U.S. 40 "Freedom Ride" scheduled by the Congress of Racial Equality Nov. 1.

I walked on down Friedrichstrasse across the white-painted boundary white line and past the American tanks in West Berlin.

In contrast to the silent staring of the East Berliners, a tightly packed crowd of 500 West Berliners stood animatedly discussing the scene.

A pretzel salesman made his way through the throng, selling to tank crews.

Said a West Berliner, "It will work itself out. Nobody is going to start shooting. They are just feeling each other out."

As midshipmen, 1,600 future Navy officers took part in summer training with units of the U.S. Pacific Fleet in 1961.

"Now, Walter! Let's not get carried away!"
