Panel Scores Lack Of Leadership; Calls Leaders 'New Deal Retreads'

cit, he said, range up to as high as 13 billion.

"If it were a matter of spending for our survival, I don't think any of us would criticize," he said, "but the fact is that over 60 per cent of the increase has been for non-defense spending, merely to increase the welfare effort with little done to reduce unemployment."

Griffin labelled the officials of the Kennedy administration as "retread new-dealers," and pointed out that such officials as Adlai Stevenson, Averill Harriman, Oreville Freeman, George Docking and G. Mennen Williams, were defeated politicians, rejected by the people, yet prominent in the Kennedy administration.

Co-sponsor of the Landrum-Griffin labor bill, Representative Griffin listed opposition by then Senator Kennedy to the first article of the bill, known as the "bill of rights for the working man."

He itemized these points as guaranteeing union members free speech, right to become a candidate and be elected to union offices, right to have a voice in dues and assessments, to protection against arbitrary union official sanctions, and guaranteeing a legal right to sue the union if he suffers at its hands.

"If Senator Kennedy had had his way," Griffin said, "seventy per cent of the unions would have been exempt from these provisions."

He applauded the right of working people to organize into unions, adding that his brother was president of a local union, but added that the rights of the union member must be protected.

Rep. John Anderson agreed with General Van Fleet's recent condemnation of Adlai Stevenson for his part in the Cuban fiasco, and added that he felt Kennedy was trying to do right, but would be better if he "quit listening to the council of despair that surrounds him."

Admitting that foreign problems were present when Kennedy was installed, Anderson stated, "Kennedy said things would get worse before better, and they have gotten worse, and unless he begins to listen to the American people it will grow worse."

He scored Senator Fulbright for recent statements that America could not expect "total victory," and pointed out that the doctrine of co-existence left Khrushchev free to continue his "salami-slicing technique."

"We need something more positive," Anderson said, pleading that "the United States take advantage of this opportunity to marshal world opinion against the Soviet Union." He recommended that the nations of the world be enjoined to quarantine Russia. "In lieu of a foreign policy," he added, "we have had weakness and vacillation."

He listed the administration's foreign policy as based on "trial balloons," and suggested that if Red China is admitted to the U.N. we seriously consider withdrawing from the organization.

In later questioning, the panel agreed that if Red China is admitted, there will be a positive move in Congress to cut off funds for the organization.

Rep. Charles Goodell, who just recently returned from a tour of educational facilities in Russia, said he found Russians schools operating on double shifts, and in many cases, in buildings that would be condemned over here.

"Let's not underestimate them, however," he said, pointing out that they place great emphasis on mathematics and science.

He sounded a warning, however, on the trend to federal aid to education as a means of securing centralized controls of our educational system.

"The worst thing we could do is to try to copy the Russian educational system," he added.

He related that in one Russian secondary school he visited, which had an enrollment of 760 students.

they were all being trained to be lathe operators.

He listed at "least one-half" of those supporting federal aid to education do so because they want to get control of the schools. "This is the only way they can get their ideas adopted," he added.

Goodell turned his sights on the domestic scene, pointing out that there were 6.8 million unemployed when Kennedy took office, and that there are 6.8 million unemployed now, despite the additional big government spending. "The present administration has added 92,000 persons to the federal payroll in 10 short months," he said, adding that this meant 373 new federal employes every day.

"Contrast this," he advised, "with the fact that under the Eisenhower administration's eight years, the federal payroll was cut 10 per cent."

"The administration says one thing during campaigning, then does differently when in office," he concluded.

"Freedom can die in many ways," he told the audience, adding, "it can die on the battlefield in blood and heroics, it can die from ignorance, selfishness and cowardice, but the most ignominious death of all is to die in its sleep."

All three panelists agreed, in later press conference, that America should resume atomic testing in the atmosphere. Representative Goodell said, "We should have resumed tests long ago," and added, "we must test to the degree necessary to protect our security. We could test 10 years and never pollute the air as much as Russia; has during her recent series of tests."

All were unanimous in terming the Russian tests as "blackmail" and "intimidation."

All three also strongly opposed the recent move in the U.N. whereby the administration sanctioned the admission of Outer Mongolia. Representative Goodell termed it, "the first step in a move to admit Red China to the U.N."

Ben Adair, Klamath County Republican Central Committee, endorsed the program. Representatives George Filtratt and Carroll Howe shared the speakers platform as did George Davis, Oregon Republican Committee chairman.

The three-man panel, called the "Paul Revere" panel, left Klamath Falls by air at 11:15 a.m. for Medford, next stop on their two-day invasion of Oregon.

Halloween Pranksters Spray Cars With Cream

Halloween, the traditional holiday of not-so-innocent pranks and trickery, isn't like it used to be in "the good old days" but there were still a few evidences of vandalism when the Klamath area awoke Wednesday morning.

Klamath Falls police reported that Halloween pranksters had shown little originality. Cars full of youths drove up and down Main Street spraying push-button shaving cream on cars and pedestrians. Other missiles such as water bag and eggs also flew through the air.

Downtown streets were littered with a variety of fruits and vegetables. In residential areas, trees festooned with toilet paper were not an uncommon sight. More destructive vandals threw rocks through windows, shot windows with BB guns and marked on windows and walls with soap, wax and color crayons.

John Mathews, city fire marshal, said no fire hydrants were turned on, a familiar prank in bygone days. Mathews did add, however, that his car was decorated with shaving cream. Menthol shaving cream bleaches auto paint.

State police said they had a "relatively quiet" night. There was a report that some vandals threw rocks through the windows of the Keno Store. And some youths decided to celebrate in Merrill by having a rotten egg fight.

Keno Man Faces Murder Charge In Dahl Stabbing

DORRIS—Elmer J. Becker, 32-year-old Keno man, was held to face a first degree murder charge Tuesday afternoon following a preliminary hearing before Les Chase, judge of the Dorris Judicial District.

Judge Chase ruled the evidence sufficient to hold Becker on the charge. Becker will be lodged without bail in the Siskiyou County Jail in Yreka to face trial at a later date.

Becker is accused of the knife murder of Roger Dahl, 21-year-old Dorris man, in the early morning hours of Oct 15 in front of the Star Inn in Dorris.

Only three witnesses were called at the preliminary hearing by District Attorney Albert H. Newton Jr. They were Theodore C. Smith, David G. Otey and Melvin J. (Johnny) Dahl, brother of the slain man, all of Dorris. The defense declined to make a statement and called no witnesses.

Investigation by the Siskiyou County Sheriff's Office had disclosed that a group of about nine young men had been arguing and fighting from shortly after midnight until about 2:30 or 3 a.m. on the 15th. The group included Becker, the Dahl brothers, Smith and Otey. At the time of the stabbing, however, witnesses said two other men were fighting. The Dahl brothers were standing outside the inn while Becker was sitting in a pickup truck. Smith testified that he had seen Becker with a knife earlier and had asked him to put it away.

None of the witnesses called Tuesday actually saw the stabbing, according to Judge Chase.

They realized Roger Dahl was wounded after he slumped to the ground.

The alleged murder weapon, a hunting knife with a seven-inch curved blade, was admitted into evidence. Smith and Otey said they had taken it away from Becker and turned it over to Clarence Houston, acting Dorris police chief.

Becker and Albert W. Canfield, 29, Klamath Falls, left the scene after the stabbing, according to sheriff's office reports. After his brother died, Melvin Dahl pursued Becker and Canfield and located them at the Worden Truck Stop south of Klamath Falls. Oregon State Police were called to Worden, where they arrested Dahl for vagrancy. The charge was later dismissed. Becker was treated at Klamath Valley Hospital for apparent bruises from a beating.

Becker was charged with murder by Siskiyou County Sheriff A. B. O. Cottar. The Keno man first wanted extradition but later signed a waiver and was returned to California.

elsewhere in the county Tuesday evening and at least one person was injured as a result of what sheriff's deputies called "tasteless jokes."

Mrs. Robert Novy, wife of Assistant Bly Ranger Bob Novy, was returning to her home at the ranger station near Bly late Tuesday evening. At a cattle-guard entrance to the station, heavy timber had been placed across the gateway, barring entrance by car.

In attempting to remove the timbers, Mrs. Novy fell through the guard, spraining her knee and incurring minor abrasions. Deputy Sheriff Jack Hunton of Bly was called to remove the timbers and set out on patrol of the area around the ranger station.

Shortly after Hunton left the scene, to investigate more reports of "timbering"—this time across busy Highway 66, the lumber was replaced at the cattle guard. Hunton spent the entire night clearing heavy boards from roads and driveways in the Bly area.

Impeding flow of traffic or placing hazards on a state highway are offenses punishable by law.

So while Halloween ain't what she used to be, many Klamath County home and car owners were digging out of the debris Wednesday morning while young trick-or-treaters from the night before nursed sore tummies—a sure indication that more of them treated than tricked.

13th OTI Homecoming Starts Friday

Alumni of Oregon Technical Institute arrive here Friday, for two days of party rounds interspersed with football, parades and a giant bonfire rally in celebration of 13th Annual Homecoming.

But institutions of higher learning found long ago that homecoming isn't just for graduates. A complete round of student affairs and activity for both grad and undergrad are slated for Homecoming 1961.

As living groups on the OTI hill put finishing touches on house decorations Friday afternoon, arriving alumni are asked to register and take a turn of the campus. Registration will be at the Student Union on Friday only, 4-9 p.m.

The first "integrated" (student and alum) activity will be the rally-bonfire at 7 p.m. Friday. The blazing timber, coupled with spirit-shaking cheers and a tug-of-war between upper and lower classmen, will be held on Bielen Street, just off the North Entrance.

Immediately following the bonfire-rally, a committee of alumni will begin judging living group decorations. The rally dance begins at the Student Union on campus about 9 p.m. Winners in the decoration contest will be announced at intermission at the dance. Music will be by the Dennis Coffee Combo; admission by Homecoming button.

Alumni headquarters Saturday will be set up in the Winema Hotel. Registration for alumni arriving for Saturday events begins at 8 a.m. and will be held throughout the day.

The noise parade, featuring floats by student groups and one non-competitive entry from the alumni, begins at 11 a.m. Route begins on Klamath Avenue, between First and Second streets. The parade will go down Klamath to Third Street, north to Main, east to Esplanade Avenue, to Spring Street and ultimately to Modoc Field. Parade awards will be announced at halftime of the 2 p.m. football game.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, the Technicians of OTI meet the Oregon College (Monmouth) Wolves on Modoc Field. Details on sports pages.

Also at halftime, the 1961 Homecoming Queen will be selected from a bevy of beauties composed of Kathy Voight, Sue Haney, Karen Doty, Judy Wheeler and Karen Nickell.

Miss Voight, from Etna, Calif., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Voight. She is an electronics major at Oregon Tech.

Miss Haney, from Orofino, Idaho, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Haney. She majors in dental technology.

Miss Doty, from Coquille, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Doty. She is a medical technology major.

Miss Nickell, from McMinnville, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Nickell. She also is a medical technology major.

Miss Wheeler, of Powell Butte, Ore., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler. She is in dental technology at OTI.

Alumni President Herman Gumbert (class of 1949) will crown the queen.

Win or lose, following the homecoming grid clash with Oregon College, OTI alumni will hold their business meeting at the Winema at 6:30 p.m. A free buffet and social hour follows for alumni and guests.

The high point of Homecoming Weekend will be Saturday night when the annual ball will be held from 8-12 p.m. in the Oregon Tech gymnasium. Music for the affair will be by the Starlighters. Alumni and students invited to attend. Admission $1.50 per couple; $1 stag.

Lightning Hits Plane In Air

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A twin-engine, turbo-prop airliner bound for Los Angeles was struck by lightning after it left Phoenix, Ariz., Tuesday night. There were no injuries.

The plane made a scheduled stop at El Centro, Calif., then flew to San Diego where its 13 passengers were transferred to another plane.
