DUNSMUIR SCHOOL
DUNSMUIR — Emphasis was placed on the introduction of teachers at the first meeting of the 1961-62 school year of the Dunsmuir Elementary School PTA.
 In presenting the school staff to the parents attending, Mrs. Harold Walsh, vice president and program chairman, gave something of the background and role of each teacher.
 Mrs. R. G. Christison, president, gave each teacher a paid membership in the PTA as each was introduced.
 PTA officers and members of the board were also presented. In addition to Mrs. Christison and Mrs. Walsh, they are Mrs. Thomas Flannigan, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Gray, secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Griffith, financial secretary; Mrs. Jack Miller, parliamentarian; Mrs. James Evans, membership; Mrs. Jess Hamilton, publicity; Roger Ellis, legislation; Mrs. James Weldon, room mother representative; Mrs. Hazle Pleasant, magazine chairman; Mrs. George Furtado, historian; Mrs. Neal Kluckman, Mothersinger representative; Mrs. R. R. Jordan, health and safety. Someone to serve as hospitality chairman and someone to represent the Canvassers, the school music boosters, have yet to be named.

 School children in Thailand have used books sent them by the children of Dunsmuir as a PTA project last year. Mrs. Jack Miller, past president, has reported. The folder of thank-you letters, carefully written in English, will be circulated around the classrooms so the children may realize how much their gifts were appreciated.

The budget and program outline for the year were approved. Members were invited to attend the district PTA workshop from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Church of Latter Day Saints in Mount Shasta, Sept. 27.

Throw-Away Clothing Would Spoil Shopping

Ruth Millett
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Ward Cannel keeps his regular readers (of which I am one) right up to the minute on what's going on where we're not looking. Recently, the Newspaper Enterprise Assn. writer gave us a run-down on what's happening in the relatively new field of disposable clothes—the kind you wear once or twice or three times, and then throw away.

It seems these disposable clothes are working out fine in plants, laboratories and even in some hospitals. But I doubt that disposable clothes will ever take up much room in a woman's wardrobe.

Why, buying clothes to be thrown away after a few wearings would take all the excitement and challenge out of shopping!

When a woman shops, she is betting on her fashion sense to guide her to a wise choice. With a calculating eye, she turns down one dress because she is sure a particular style is on its way out; another, because she thinks the color is so good this season she'll hate it next year. She rejects still another because it has been mass-produced to such an extent that wearing it would be like wearing a uniform.

She is betting that the dress she settles for will be in good style for several years, that it won't be one she'll tire of quickly, and that it will bring many compliments her way.

The great thrills in shopping are provided by the occasional "gems" a woman finds—the garments she can feel "right" in for years, the ones that lead a long and active life until worn threadbare.

These are the "finds" women brag about to each other — the treasures that long and careful "looking" now and then unearth. These are the clothes that reassure a woman that she has real fashion sense and is a smart shopper, besides.

In a recent fashion magazine, a group of women (all with enough money to wear a Dior only once if they wanted to), posed in favorite "finds" they were still wearing after 5, 10, or even 20 years.

But throw-away clothes would take all the challenge out of shopping. No more real finds, no more lucky guesses, not even any more costly mistakes to make clothes buying an exciting gamble!
