

Ancient Lava Blast Produces Geological Freak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hole-in-the-Ground, Ore., is a vast circular depression, nearly a mile across and more than 400 feet deep, in northern Lake County.

It is one of Oregon's unique geologic formations, easily reached by automobile but unknown to people generally.

Hollis E. Dole, director of the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industries, says it looks so much like a meteorite crater that a mining claim was staked out years ago in the hope of finding nickel or other mineral remains.

But there is no foreign mineral there. Hole-in-the-Ground resulted from a great volcanic explosion, not from the blow of a meteorite.

The story of its formation is told in the October issue of Ore-Bin, the department's publication, by Edward A. Groh, Portland geologist, and Norman V. Peterson, field geologist for the department. The two recently completed a detailed study of the area and established that the hole was produced — some thousands of years ago — when a great mass of molten rock surged up through a vent, came in contact with water-saturated rock, and exploded.

The force to create such a hole, the geologists say, would be the equivalent of about five million tons of TNT.

The water, in that now parched country, came from an ancient lake that covered the land to a depth of 200 feet.

Fort Rock, a semi-circular rock mass that juts up startlingly from the arid plain about six miles southeast of Hole-in-the-Ground, was formed the same way, Peterson and Groh report, but one wall of it was washed away by the lapping waves along the shore of that old lake.

But Hole-in-the-Ground is right at the dividing line of timber and desert. It is so close to the line that along its western wall, where shadows hold snows longest and result in moisture, there is a stand of trees. The eastern wall, a mile away, is in the desert.

The Ore-Bin says motorists can reach Hole-in-the-Ground by driving 30 miles south of Bend on Highway 97, turning southeast on Highway 31 and going 25 miles to a well-marked Forest Service road, then going east about two miles. A road bulldozed through the pumice soil circles the hole along the top of the rim.

Shown is the second grade class of Mrs. Orin Perkins at Fairview. Art Talks To Be Held A panel on "The Philosophy of the Arts: What are Their Goals and How are They Attained?" will be presented Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 8 o'clock at Klamath County Unitarian Fellowship Meeting House on the Lakeview Highway. Hall, head of the Art Department at KUHS, discussing contemporary art, will be joined by Mrs. Edna Howell, director of the Normandeau Dance Studio, on the dance as communication, and Normandeau Poulshock, instructor of music in the Klamath Falls City Schools, on music. Hall has a master's degree in fine arts from the University of Oregon; Mrs. Howell has studied modern dance at the Theater Arts Colony, San Francisco and ballet at the San Francisco Ballet School; Poulshock received a master's degree in music from Long Beach State College in California. This program, second in a monthly series of evening discussion meetings, is sponsored by the Klamath County Unitarian Fellowship. Mrs. Frank W. Johnson will moderate on the panel. The public is invited, according to Ben Kerns, president. Local Man Qualifies BAUMHOLTER, Germany—Sp. 4 Percy E. Langston Jr., son of Mrs. Edna M. City Opposes Senate Change In California DUNSMUIR—Dunsmuir City Council passed a resolution opposing reapportionment of the California Senate. The resolution rejects any steps to apportion the Senate on the basis of population rather than by district containing the interests of rural and mountainous counties would not be served. This resolution will be forwarded to the Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors. The council also heard the commendation of Charles T. Baker, district manager of the State Compensation Insurance Fund, who awarded the city a framed certificate noting the second year of no disabling injuries to city employees while at work. The offer of Southern Pacific Company to assist in surfacing the road to the city barns (the old SP roundhouse) to the amount of $500 was accepted. John Petty, superintendent of public works, estimated the job at $1200. The railroad and its employees will use the road jointly with the city. Harold Beale, civil defense director, and John Metzler, building inspector, were authorized to attend a Nov. 2 CD conference in Sacramento. A bid of $580.50 was accepted by the city for replacing and tiling the police department office and adjacent hallways. Joe Alles, contractor, submitted the low bid. Petty reported the D6 tractor purchased by the city has been delivered. Elizabeth Cavin, city clerk, reported that funds for its payment should be available in the general fund after Dec. 15. The tractor cost $8,400. Mayor Dave McClintock commended parents and children of Dunsmuir for a safe and uneventful Halloween. No rowdy behavior or vandalism was reported he said. Citizens were asked not to burn leaves in the street as this destroys the surfacing. Alarms Sound On Halloween DUNSMUIR—The trick or treaters at large on Halloween night were treated to the sound of fire alarms and sirens Tuesday night. The first alarm shortly before 6 o'clock brought three trucks and the volunteer firemen to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Les Fuller in North Dunsmuir where firemen watched soot burn in a chimney. The second alarm about 7 p.m. blazed firemen to a small brush blaze just off the new freeway. Firemen conjectured it was caused by a cigarette. The third alarm was firemen tinkering with the alarm. Not Guilty Plea Entered DUNSMUIR—Celia M. Harold, 30, pleaded not guilty to a battery charge at a preliminary hearing on Tuesday in the court of Judge A. A. Smith. Mrs. Harold was involved in a fight in Molto's Cafe with another woman, the complaint stated. Jury trial was set in Dunsmuir Justice Court at 10 a.m. Nov. 28. ALTURAS—Radio station KCNO of Alturas experienced an eight hour power failure Monday, Oct. 31, due to the complete breakdown of their power transformer. The station went out at 6:40 a.m. and was back on the air by 2 p.m. Mainz, Germany, the cradle of modern printing, will celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of its founding in 1962.
