

Pair Held For Baby Trade Try

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—A policewoman arrested a Salt Lake City couple Wednesday and said they tried to trade their youngest daughter for a late-model used car.

Auto dealer J. S. Baker told police the man and woman had approached him with the proposition.

Baker and Policewoman Fran Kari, posing as Baker's wife, were waiting when the couple returned with their children—a boy 3, a girl, 2, and a 6-month-old daughter—to complete the deal.

Mrs. Kari said the man told her he needed a car to find a job.

"I told the people it was worth it to me if it was worth it to them," said Mrs. Kari. "They both replied, smilingly, that it was."

Jailed for investigation of attempting to sell a child, a felony, were Clark Lynn Evans, 30, and his wife Betty Lou, 19.

Five Missile Subs Patrol

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. James B. Van Zandt, R-Pa., said today the United States has three to five missile-firing submarines on patrol in the Norwegian Sea and may increase the number to 10 within a year.

Van Zandt, a rear admiral in the Navy Reserve, has just returned from a 10,000-mile, two-week active duty tour as commander of a congressional reserve unit that inspected key defense bases.

He said this country has a total of 176 missiles — at sea and on land — armed with nuclear warheads, "ready to go" and within range of Russia. Others could be made ready shortly, he added.

Van Zandt said that Russia's missile strength is much less, and that the Soviet Union is not likely to start a general war.

Minor Auto Crash Reported

Two cars collided Tuesday morning at the intersection of Highway 97 and Memorial Drive. Damage was slight to both vehicles and neither driver was injured.

Drivers were Charles L. Riggen, 54, Coulee Dam, Wash., and Perry D. Titus, 43, 2710 Angle Street. State police said Titus was stopped behind another car, which was turning onto Memorial Drive, when Riggen, traveling north, came over the crest of a slight hill and struck Titus' car in the front end. Police said the front end of Titus' car was apparently over the center line.

Both cars were drivable after the accident.

271 Forest, Range Fires Start In Hunting Season

Oregon hunters started 271 forest and range fires in the season just closed, according to reports made by federal, state and private protection officials at a special meeting of the Keep Oregon Green Association trustees in Portland recently.

The special meeting was called, according to Arthur W. Prialux, president of KOG, to study the hunter fire problem which in recent years has become a source of major concern to forest and range landowners, as well as to sportsman groups.

Dwight Phipps, state forester, and Ed Schroeder, assistant state forester, reported 67 hunter fires with 1,820 acres of forest land destroyed. Ken Burkholder, fire control officer or the Bureau of Land Management, said there were 20 hunter fires in eastern Oregon and five in western Oregon on BLM lands. Clarence Edgington, fire dispatcher for the U.S. Forest Service, said hunters left 179 fires on federal forest lands during the short hunting season, and burned 482 acres.

In addition to hunter fires reported, Prialux pointed out that fire protection authorities put out hundreds of warmup fires and campfires which hunters had walked off and let burning. On forest service land alone, he said, 416 unattended campfires were abandoned, and hundreds more were found and extinguished on state and private lands.

Keep Oregon Green trustees, Prialux said, made no effort at this time to make recommendations for legislative action to help landowners solve this knotty problem. He did name a committee chairmanship by Robert Conklin and composed of Gene Knudsen, Dallas; Dwight Phipps, Salem, and Ken Wilson, Portland, to study the hunter fire problem. Clark Walsh, assistant state game commissioner, was asked to meet with the committee, which will report to the annual Keep Oregon Green meeting in January.

It is our devout hope, Prialux said, that hunters and landowners can get together and solve their problems without further legislative action. A hopeful sign is the reduction of hunter fires in areas where landowners and hunters have excellent understanding of each other's problems.

Although no specific recommendations were made at this time, it is understood that a number of Keep Oregon Green trustees, as well as fire wardens, urged a later opening date for the hunting season. They pointed out that fire conditions were generally severe at the time the season opened. Permit systems have worked in some areas and served to acquaint the hunters with fire conditions.

One warden urged that a hunter's license be suspended for three years if he were convicted of starting a fire or committing vandalism. Another warden urged a

Woman Held After Fight

City police arrested a 60-year-old Klamath Falls woman for being drunk in public Tuesday night after a reported fight at Vern's Tavern on South Seventh Street.

Arrested was Mrs. Pearl McNair, 60. She pleaded guilty Wednesday morning to a drunk charge and was sentenced to pay a $25 fine or spend five days in jail.

When police arrived at the tavern, they found Mrs. Patricia Lee Brown, 27, 1711 Wall Street, with a bloody left hand. She was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital, where some stitches were required to close a gash above her hand.

According to witnesses, the two women had argued about Mrs. McNair's son when Mrs. McNair allegedly began swinging a broken beer mug at Mrs. Brown. Mrs. McNair was disarmed by a bartender, Bill Sherry.

Mrs. Brown told police she would sign an assault complaint.

Planes Hunt For Survivors

BOSTON (UPI)—Navy planes and destroyers searched today for possible survivors of a P2V Neptune patrol bomber which crashed in the sea 300 miles east of Norfolk, Va., Wednesday.

Eleven men were aboard the craft which was headed back to its Brunswick, Maine, base when it disappeared.

The Navy said two bodies, plane debris and a liferaft were recovered by the carrier Lake Champlain Wednesday.

The P2V, a twin-engine bomber, was returning home after taking part in air-sea exercises with the carrier.

None of the men aboard the plane were residents of the Far West.

Integration Edict Need Pointed Up

PORTLAND (AP)—President Kennedy should issue a second Emancipation Proclamation, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said in Portland Wednesday night.

"The hour has come for the President to issue an order bringing to an end all discrimination and basing it on the 14th amendment of the Constitution," the Negro integrationist leader told an audience at Portland's public auditorium.

"Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was an executive order," added King.

The 32-year-old Baptist minister has been a leader in non-violent forms of resistance to segregation.

"In the days of guided missiles, it is no longer a choice between non-violence or violence," he said. "It is a choice between non-violence or non-existence."

He said the end of segregation must be brought about by legislation, education, and non-violent protests by the Negro.

"There is need for both education and legislation," said King. "It may be true that morality can't be legislated, but behavior can be regulated. Legislation can't make man love me, but it can stop him from lynching me."

As an example of the success of non-violent direct action, King said lunch counters in 150 cities were desegregated in less than a year by sit-ins of Southern students.

He expressed the opinion that the recent Freedom Rides were responsible for the Interstate Commerce Commission ruling which forbids all forms of racial discrimination in interstate travel.

Americans must get rid of the notion that there are superior and inferior races, King said.

"I'm convinced that segregation is as dead as a doornail," he said. "The only thing I'm uncertain about is the day of its burial."

John Weber, Ashland, Oregon State Aerie president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will visit the Klamath Falls Aerie No. 2099 at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10, according to Vincent Van Uden, Aerie president.

A class of candidates for membership will be initiated in his honor. Mrs. Weber, a state auxiliary trustee, will accompany her husband.

The state Eagles official travels extensively in his job as president and promoting the Oregon Eagles Hearing Aid Program for needy children.

Power Group Praises BC

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—A proposed resolution presented to the legislative committee of the Northwest Public Power Association Wednesday would praise British Columbia's action for provincial ownership of the B.C. Electric Co.

In the resolution, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, the provincial parliament, and the people of British Columbia are commended for "the takeover of the B. C. Electric Co. as a crown corporation."

The privately owned power company was expropriated by the provincial government, last summer.

The resolution and 18 others were to be presented today to the 26-member board of trustees of the association for action.

The legislative committee will give the board its recommendation for action.

In another proposed resolution, the committee urged the construction of electrical power generators at the Hanford atomic plant in Washington. A similar proposal this year was rejected by Congress.

Construction by the United States government of power intertie lines between California and the Pacific Northwest was urged in another resolution.

The resolution specified, however, that legislative and contractual protection should be assured "to limit the use of any intertie to surplus power."

Surplus power was defined in the resolution as that for which there is no market within the region at the time of export.

Car Plunges Into River

ESTACADA, Ore. (AP)—Seven loggers escaped serious injury on their way to work Wednesday when a truck plunged into the Clackamas River north of Estacada.

Joseph Bergevin, 55, Molalla, the driver, said he swerved to avoid a rockslide in the highway after rounding a curve at about 50 miles an hour.

The truck landed in four feet of water.

Bergevin, Samuel Glen Gray, 33, Colton, and Harry C. Beck, 33, Molalla, were treated for cuts and bruises.

Bruce Bergevin, 19, Molalla, Hiney Lindberg, 57, Colton, and Glenwood F. Miller, 28, Molalla, were taken to Silverton hospital. Lindberg and young Bergevin suffered fractures.

Lottie Deballa, 26, Molalla, was not injured.

Psychiatrist Needs Help In Own Life

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I married a psychiatric social worker who is in private practice. I've seen him untangle emotional problems for desperately unhappy couples. He has worked miracles for people in need of counseling, but I can't get him to help me with my problem—him.

We've been married four years and I don't know of another wife who is alone as much as I am. He is busy from morning until night. I'm sick of competing with his patients for time and attention. When I tell him I need more time with him he pretends not to hear me.

You would think with his knowledge and training he'd understand my needs; instead, he acts as if I don't exist. Please help me.—NEGLECTED

Dear Neglected: Those who possess knowledge and training don't always have the ability to apply that knowledge and training to their own lives.

We all know physicians who warn their patients against obesity while they themselves lug around 30 pounds of excess weight. And what woman has not seen a beauty operator who can do wonders for a client when her own hair looks as if it had been stirred with a stick?

Your husband ought to work out his unresolved problems with another therapist. Tell him the shoe-maker's wife is tired of going barefoot.

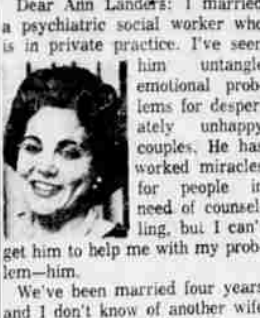

Dear Ann: A friend of mine has a two-year-old child who eats dirt out of potted plants, crayons, lead-pencils, paper—almost anything he can get his hands on.

I raised four children and none of them behaved like this. I think there must be something wrong with the boy. Is there a chance that he is retarded? Please reply in the paper because the child's mother is a faithful reader and I want her to see it.—A FRIEND

Dear Friend: Most very young children put all sorts of things in their mouths as a means of exploring the world around them. This child, however, may have a deficiency in his diet. I hope the mother will see this column and take him to a physician.

Dear Ann Landers: Our beautiful daughter is seriously considering throwing herself away on a fellow who is from the wrong side of the tracks. Her father and I are beside ourselves.

Campus Show Seats Held

Contrary to prior announcements, there will be reserved seating available Nov. 16 for the Ray McKinley Glenn Miller Band presentation on the Oregon Technical Institute campus.

Dean Bernice B. Andrews said Wednesday that student admission for those with Associated Student Body cards from OTI or Southern Oregon College will be 50 cents less than regular stated admissions, rather than just 50 cents as previously announced in the Herald and News.

New ticket prices, Dean Andrews said, are main floor reserve, $3; main floor general admission, $2.50 and balcony, $2. Approximately 1,400 seats total will be available for the concert, she said.

The change in ticket prices was "due to circumstances beyond our control," she said, "and I hope we haven't inconvenienced anyone."

A packed auditorium is expected for the concert. Tickets may be reserved by calling Mrs. Andrews' office at TU 2-3486. If seats remain, tickets may be available at the door.

First Nuclear-Powered Merchant Ship Readied

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—The NS (for nuclear ship) Savannah, sleek and slim, is in its Delaware River slip today—just days away, it may be only a few hours, from having its concrete-circled boiler loaded with radioactive fuel.

This white-painted vessel is the world's first nuclear merchant ship—a $45 million U. S. experiment.

Today was "rehearsal day" for the atomic technicians at the big New York Shipbuilding Corp. yards where the Savannah was born, in 1957, and built. They went through the motions of filling the pressurized water reactor—regarded as the world's most advanced atomic power plant—with the hot fuel that will make the Savannah go. Newsmen were allowed to watch the simulated loading operation.

Sometime in the next 10 days—the date is secret—the real stuff will be loaded. Only authorized personnel will be there then—and the Atomic Energy Commission will announce the loading when it is an accomplished fact.

The reactor in the Savannah—actually nothing but an intricate boiler—is the same basic type that since 1953 has powered the world's first nuclear submarine, the USS Nautilus.

But it has some new designs that makes the Savannah power plant different from any others.

The task of firing the reactor is a tricky, dangerous business. Extraordinary safeguards must be taken.

A spokesman says the 22,000-ton, 395-foot Savannah will remain tied up here for possibly three months while the reactor is checked and double-checked. Then the sea trials will begin.

The vessel will be operated by the United States Lines of New York and will be captained by Gaston R. DeGroot, 56, from Huntington, N. Y. It will carry a cargo load of 10,000 tons plus 60 passengers and a crew of 110.

It is expected that the hot atoms produced by the uranium encased in some 164 stainless steel rods in the reactor core will produce power for 3½ years before refueling is necessary.
