Eager Dads Spoil Toys

NEW YORK (UPI) — Too many fathers choose toys they want themselves — and spoil Christmas for the youngster, according to a leading maker. Furthermore, Dads should not be over-eager, says A. C. Gilbert, Jr., president of the A. C. Gilbert Co. of New Haven, Conn. Let Junior discover for himself how those mechanical toys work. One purpose of a toy is to stimulate a child's curiosity and self-expression through use of his imagination.

If you deny your youngster the privilege of exploring and discovering his new toy, you cut down on the pleasure and educational value it contains. Most children open up the new toy on Christmas morning — look it over — and think to themselves, "How does it work?" Unless they ask for help, let them have the fun of figuring it out themselves, says Gilbert.

Old Santa Is Stranger To Eskimos
 ST. LAWRENCE ISLAND, Alaska (UPI) — Santa Claus is a stranger to many Eskimo children who live practically beneath the shadow of the North Pole in the land of the midnight sun. But each year the dark-eyed children in many Eskimo villages in Alaska get a little bit more acquainted with the man in the red suit with the long, white beard.

"Kuweanotwok Kusamassic" (the Eskimo version of Merry Christmas), they squeal to the jolly fat man, who is the friend of all children.

For several years the men of the Alaskan Air Command at Elmendorf Air Force Base near Anchorage have been sending Santa Claus in the remote villages across the state.

Each year the men volunteer to gather, repair, wrap and pack toys and gifts for air shipment to the remote radar installations and nearby Eskimo villages for distribution to the children.

More Special
 Santa's visit to St. Lawrence Island this Christmas season was more special than usual. Maj. William L. Dow, commander of the Northeast Cape Air Force Station here, said a number of Eskimos are still living in a temporary summer camp because of a hepatitis epidemic in their home village of Savoonga, 100 miles north.

With a poor hunting season, the temporary villagers have been living on wild ducks, seagulls and some small game. So an added treat to supplies brought by Wien Alaska Airlines was the visit of Santa Claus loaded down with toys and gifts for the children from the men of the Alaskan Air Command.

In this case, Santa was Lt. Col. Jay Thomas, a veterinarian stationed at Elmendorf AFB.

Travels By Plane
 Transportation wasn't quite the same as a reindeer driven sleigh, but an Air Force C123 transport plane from the 504th Air Transport Squadron at Elmendorf flew Santa Claus to the island with a regular supply mission.

From the Northeast Cape station, Santa chose a more conventional method to make his way to the village—a dog sled.

An Air Force spokesman said by the time "Operation Santa Claus 1962" is completed, gifts will have been distributed to about 1,250 children living in the vicinity of the 14 radar stations scattered across the state.
