SALEM (UPI)—The Oregon Supreme Court today in a rush of year-end decisions permanently disbarred two attorneys, reversed one lower court decision, and affirmed nine lower court rulings.

Another upheld Hedrick's conviction on a charge of rape for which he was sentenced to a term not exceeding 20 years by Multnomah County Circuit Judge James W. Crawford. The court had overruled Hedrick's claim of misconduct by the district attorney in prosecuting the case.

The third decision involved Hedrick's plea of guilty and sentencing to 20 years in prison on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape. Sentence was made by Circuit Judge Charles W. Redding. Hedrick had attempted to prove the court erred in sentencing him.

Risky Bid Gets Results

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Ass.

North's one no-trump response is not recommended as a steady diet, but he felt that he should bid in view of the opponent's vulnerability. He failed to shut out East, but nevertheless his bid succeeded beyond all expectations.

East overcalled with two clubs and South jumped right to four hearts. West doubled and North gave his preference to four spades. East's double of four spades was doubtful because he knew South had to have a tremendous two-suit, but after all West had doubled four hearts.

West thought about going to five clubs and had he done so East could have made that contract. Finally he decided against it. He also puzzled over his opening lead. Had he opened a trump he would have had a chance to beat the hand, but West opened his partner's suit.

South took the club trick, led a heart to his ace and continued with the jack. West rose with the king and led a club. South discarded a diamond and ruffed the next club. Then he ruffed a low heart in dummy and led trumps with the announcement that his opponents could take the ace any time they wished. He had made his doubled contract.

What do you do?
A—Bid three diamonds. You aren't quite strong enough to jump to four spades, but a mere three spade bid is inadequate.
