Included in the outdoor shots are close-up pictures of huge Kodiak bears, large bull moose and tigers and leopards. Bond hiked some 300 mountain miles for 90 days to get these action pictures. He worked with two men who captured mountain lions alive, "and some of the fights you'll see are just unbelievable," Bond said.

With the fishing season not far away, there probably will be a lot of interest in Bond's films on some of the world's finest rainbow trout fishing, the Jaycees said.

Snow Misses Fort Area

FORT KLAMATH—For the first time in many years, Fort Klamath and the Wood River Valley had a "green" Christmas instead of the usual white mantle of snow blanketing the hundreds of acres of fenced range lands and the town itself.

The highlight of Christmas week was the annual Christmas program and tree, held Thursday evening, Dec. 20, in the Fort Klamath Community Methodist Church. Mrs. Frank Strahan and Mrs. Hollis Kizer, local elementary school teachers, presented their pupils in a delightful program.

Two plays were given, the first portraying the Nativity and the second a skit, with Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus (acted by Jerry Latzy and Donna Jenkins) and many toyland characters in their various costumes and parts.

Rounding out the program were selections by the children's choir, and a special number, a piano solo by Chiloquin student Mary Brattain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Brattain. Climaxing the evening, Santa Claus arrived with his sack of goodies and distributed bags of candy, fruit and nuts to those present.

Congressional Critics Denounce Congo Action

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional critics of United Nations policy in the Congo have stepped up their fire at U.N. military action against secessionist Katanga Province.

In separate statements Monday Sens. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., denounced the U.N. action to force Katanga into the central Congo government.

Dodd called the drive by U.N. military forces through Katanga "a flagrant, inhuman act of aggression" and an "unspeakable tragedy." Goldwater labeled it "an unjust war."

The senatorial opposition came as the State Department reaffirmed its support of U.N. Secretary General Thant's policy in the Congo.

The department endorsed Thant's demand that Katangese President Moise Tshombe negotiate integration into the Congo within two weeks or face "other measures."

State Department spokesman Lincoln White said the United States was stepping up three types of aid to U.N. forces in the Congo. They are transport equipment, the U.S. logistical airlift, and food to relieve a shortage which appears to be in the making.

Both Dodd and Goldwater have supported Tshombe's efforts to maintain Katanga Province as a separate state and have criticized U.S. support of the U.N. policy of unification.

Goldwater condemned U.S. support of "the arrogant aggression of the United Nations in Katanga." He said bitterness generated by the action "against the only full-fledged pro-Western leader in the Congo (Tshombe) will last for a long time and make effective unification of the area a total impossibility."

Junk Used For Model

REDLANDS, Calif. (UPI)—An impressive scale model, fashioned from "junk" material, of the largest diameter solid fuel rocket motor yet test-fired in the United States drew praise today from Lockheed Propulsion Co. officials.

Lockheed technician Orville Dart, 45, built the tiny version of a three-segment 120-inch applied research solid fuel rocket motor that was fired by Lockheed at its nearby Putrero test facility last spring.

Dart used such materials as coffee cans, the top of an Aerosol spray can, a dime store funnel, and assorted bits and pieces to build the 18-inch model.

"I did it just to see if it could be done," explained Dart.

Lockheed officials said they found the model most useful for demonstrations to potential customers and the military.

How many of these appliances work for you in your home?

Here's what Mrs. Robert L. Wobbe of Medford says about electric living...
"Living's happier for the whole family because we use electricity in so many ways"

"Our county home economics extension group makes a study of the most effective ways to use electricity in everyday living. We've learned dozens of ways to save time and effort in our homes. For example, by putting automatic appliances to work, I can do six household jobs at one time! And the hours I save give me more time to spend with my family and in outside activities. I'd say there is no bigger help nor better value for today's homemaker than electric service."

Thousands of other Pacific Power & Light customers, like Mrs. Wobbe and her family, live better because they make generous and effective use of modern electric service.
