

Miami's Hurricane Being Recognized

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The University of Miami Hurricanes are beginning to think they're the "best unknown" college basketball team in the country.

The Hurricanes aren't really unknown—they're rated 15th in the country—but they certainly aren't getting their share of publicity considering their perfect 9-0 record which includes a victory over ninth-ranked Duke and four victories on the road.

The Hurricanes made it nine in a row Thursday night when they defeated St. John's, 67-53, in the New Yorkers' gym. They'll be on the road for four more games before returning to Miami, Fla., Jan. 19—by which time they hope to have cracked into the nation's top 10 teams.

Rick Barry scored 26 points and Mike McCoy added 16 for the Hurricanes, who nevertheless had a mild scare when St. John's rallied to within a 61-54 deficit with 2:30 to go. Then coach Bruce Hale reinserted his starting five which matched the Redmen point for point the rest of the way.

McCoy Controlled Boards

McCoy, a 7-foot, 1-inch senior who Miami experts consider of All-American caliber, scored 10 of his 16 points in the second half and was a giant of strength under the boards. Frank O'Hara and Jerry Houston scored 14 and 13 points, respectively for St. John's. Loyola, the nation's second-ranked team, cleared the 100-point mark for the seventh time this season with a 103-56 rout of Marshall of Chicago. The Ramblers raced to a 12-2 lead and had a 34-29 halftime margin. Ron Miller scored 24 points and Jerry Harkness had 17 as Loyola

MUSIAL SIGNS 22ND PACT — Signing his 22nd contract with the St. Louis Cardinals in St. Louis Thursday, Stan Musial begins his 25th year in pro baseball. As Cardinal owner, August A. Busch Jr., and general manager, Bing Devine, center, nod approval. Musial told reporters that at his age, he would play one year at a time and if he has a good season this year, he will consider a 1964 contract. —UPI Photo

Fit Stan Musial Signs 22nd Card Pact, May Play In '64

By United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals and Detroit Tigers have shelled out $122,000 for two players and consider it a "steal" because the men who will receive the money are Stan Musial and Al Kaline.

Musial, amazingly fit and looking much younger than 42, signed his 22nd contract with the Cardinals for a reported $70,000, the same salary he made last year.

And the 28-year-old Kaline, who was given a raise by the Tigers, signed his 11th contract with them Thursday for an estimated $52,000.

The Boston Red Sox also signed four of their key players in pitcher Dick Radatz, shortstop Ed Bressoud, outfielder Lou Clinton and catcher Bob Tillman.

Just Stan Musial rather startled newsmen who showed up at the Cardinals' offices for his signing by revealing he had just come in from running a mile "just for exercise" and that he might even decide to play again in 1964 if he hits .300 this year.

Stan the Man batted .330 the past season. Among other records he needs only three more extra base hits to tie Babe Ruth's record.

Only four pounds over his usual playing weight of 190, Musial said he thought he "can play 100 games easily" this year.

And if his hitting stands up, he said "I would think of playing" again the year after this one.

Cardinal owner August A. Busch Jr., repeated there would be a job for Musial in the club's front office after he hangs up his spikes for good.

Kaline was as happy over his contract as Musial was over his. "Considering the circumstances," said the Detroit outfielder, "it's the best I've ever had."

Refers to Collarbone

The circumstance Kaline undoubtedly referred to was the broken collarbone he suffered while making a diving catch to save a game at Yankee Stadium last May 26. He was out of action almost two months but he still batted .304 and hit 23 homers.

"My arm feels as good as it ever did," Kaline said. "In fact, it might be stronger because I worked harder this winter to get it in shape."

Kaline said that a couple of fingers on his right hand were numb even at the end of the season, "but on our trip to Japan the hand started coming around again."

The Red Sox' signings were announced during the first showing of the World Series' movie in Boston. Among the viewers was Giant pitcher Jack Sanford, who lives in Duxbury, Mass.

Pro Football Players Can't Afford To Be Injured; May Lose Their Job

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Soft-spoken George Wilson, coach of the Detroit Lions, summed up the situation for almost anybody in any line of business today when he explained that "you can't afford to get hurt because as sure as you do somebody will take your job."

The Lions are exhibit A. Chief talk in football circles is their "fearsome foursome," the four-man defensive line which made gridiron history by upsetting the all-conquering Green Bay Packers in beating the world champions, 26-14.

But they couldn't have done it without four guys named "Joe." Namely: Fullback Ken Webb, offensive center Bob Whitlow, pass catching Pat Studstill and defensive end Sam Williams, who has gained his measure of recognition as one of the fearsome foursome.

Pietrosante Was Hurt

During the middle of the season the Lions' all-time leading ground gainer Nick Pietrosante was injured. There was nothing left to do but call on Webb, the 5-foot, 10-inch, 210-pounder from Presbyterian who last year carried the ball six times for a net product of a minus eight yards. This is not a feat calculated to make a man an all-pro league choice, let alone a valuable piece of grid machinery.

But Webb came through like gangbusters. Right now, as the Lions prepare to face the Pittsburgh Steelers in Sunday's nationally televised Pro Bowl playoff game from the Orange Bowl, Pietrosante still hasn't been able to win back his job.

Then, as the season started, the Lions had traded off defensive end Bill Glass in the deal that brought them quarterback Milt Plum from Cleveland. Williams had ridden the bench for two years and there were some doubts as to whether he would be brought back. But, given his chance, the former Michigan State star moved into the lineup and made the fearsome foursome along with Darris McCord, Alex Karras, and Roger Brown, the six foot, five inch 300-pounder with the 34 inch thighs.

Whitlow Considered Taps

Meanwhile, the Lions had moved Bob Scholtz from center to tackle. They did this because Whitlow decided to give Whitlow a shot at offensive center. The 240-pounder from Arizona—rejected by the Chicago Bears and Washington Redskins—now is considered by the Lions as the best offensive center in the league.

Which brings us to Studstill, a mere 163-pounder who played but 10 minutes of ball in his senior year at Houston. As a rookie, the previous year, he had been used chiefly returning kickoffs.

Studstill was riding the bench when Terry Barr, the Lion pass receiving star who had completed 25 passes in the first five games, suffered a knee injury which sent him limping to the sidelines. Studstill took over and caught 39 passes, while also leading the league in punt returns.

So as the Lions go into the Pro Bowl playoff Sunday, they have much more going for them than the fearsome foursome. They have—in addition to Williams in that big defensive four—the three other guys who came from nowhere and who, almost ignored, made this a big year for the Lions even in their second place finish.

Proud of Performance

This game will be no fancy Dan demonstration. The Lions, as well as the Steelers, are a gang who take pride in their accomplishments and, while the payoff isn't too big financially, as one of them put it Thursday while playing in the NFL golf championship "We have pride in our performance."

"A few belts in the kisser," added another, "and you forget that this is for fun."

Wilson simply smiles.

"This," he said happily, "is an even better team than our '52-'53 and '57 championship clubs. That takes in a lot of talent, guys like Doak Walker, Bobby Layne, Leon Hart and Tobin Rote.

"These guys," he added, "are real pros."

It was, to him, the final accolade. And it was the four guys named "Joe" who made it all possible.

MacArthur To Mediate Sports Factions' Mess

NEW YORK (UPI)—Old soldier General Douglas MacArthur faced one of the toughest battles of his career today when he stepped in as mediator between the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

Specifically requested for the job by President Kennedy, it will be up to Gen. MacArthur to bring together two warring athletic bodies in time to assure the United States a representative team for this summer's Pan American games and the 1964 Olympics in Japan.

But if the veteran of many historic battles should fail to settle the fight for control of amateur sports, many athletes will lose their eligibility and the U.S. will be left with a sub-par team to carry its flag in international competition.

One thing was made clear by the rival factions in recent days—victory won't come easy for the old general.

The AAU, for example, initiated a move toward peace on one front Thursday but then threw the issue into further turmoil with a surprise attack on an unguarded flank.

Early in the day, the White House announced that it had received a telegram from AAU President Louis J. Fisher agreeing to accept MacArthur as a mediator. In the telegram dated Dec. 29, Fisher wrote to President Kennedy that the AAU "welcomes the opportunity to evidence its respect and cooperation with

LA Rams Sign USC's Wilson

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams, who have seen a flock of their draft choices run to the American Football League, happily announced Thursday the signing of University of Southern California fullback Ben Wilson.

Wilson was drafted as a future by both the AFL, San Diego Chargers and the National Football League Rams in 1961.

Wilson said the Chargers offered more money, but that he was "more than happy" with the Ram offer, terms of which were not disclosed.

"The 230-pound power man was slowed down early this season by a knee injury suffered in spring practice. But Wilson sparkled in the last two games of the regular season, being awarded the game ball after the UCLA victory and making holes in the Notre Dame line.

He also scored a touchdown in USC's Rose Bowl win over Wisconsin, 42-37.

Wilson averaged 4.31 yards per carry in his Trojan career.
