Editorial Page

The Race For Power

America's economic superiority over other nations can be ascribed to many things, not least its abundant energy sources and its ability to convert these remarkably into work accomplished.

This is why we have to be concerned when the Soviet Union puts itself into a headlong "power race" against us. If we were to be outpaced, for example, in the production and use of electric energy, our economic laurels might be seriously threatened. And they represent the strength which is our security.

Interior Secretary Udall, reporting on a late-summer tour of Soviet power developments, says the United States delegation he headed was much impressed by what it heard and saw in this field.

He thinks the Soviet Union may well realize its 1965 goal-an electric generating capacity slightly more than half what the United States has today

Yet he suggests that the Russians may find it much harder to reach their 1970 and 1980 objectives, since these demand very steep increases in the pace of power develop-

If his skepticism proves justified, it could turn out to be an important stroke of luck for this country. Growth of our electric energy capacity has slowed somewhat in recent years. We, of course, rely heavily on coal, oil and gas as direct energy sources. But we could hardly be happy if the Russians were to tap soon their immensely superior hydroelectric power potential.

Many economists say that the mechanical or electrical "horses" an individual worker can bring to bear on an industrial task are crucial in determining economic superiority.

For instance, in 1961 the United States consumed more than three times as many kilowatt hours of electric energy per person as did the Soviet Union. This obviously is no small factor in explaining our heavy industrial advantage, though the state of our tachnology, the inventiveness of our economic organizers and the priceless freedom of our system play big roles

Our highly developed energy sources show up as key elements, too, in comparisons between the United States and such advanced industrial nations as Japan and those in West-

If United States per-man output in steel were no better than Japan's, we would need 900,000 steel workers instead of the 400,000 we have. We likewise surpass the whole of Europe in this regard.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev understands what power sources have to do with such superior performance. He told Udall in a private talk last summer: "Whoever has the most mechanical robots will be the richest." The Red leader forecast that ultimately Russia would perform its work more cheaply than

Few things are more important to us than to make this particular Khrushchev predic-

Property Tax Relief

(Oregon - Statesman, Salem)

A Benton County tax study group recommends a three per cent sales tax, with the money to be allocated to counties to relieve property taxes. Exemptions on the sales tax would extend to agricultural and industrial materials, medical prescriptions and food other than restaurant meals. The committee called the ad valorem property tax unfair and as "old-fashioned as the horse and buggy."

This is the season of the biennium when sales tax ideas start to circulate; and this year there is a little more soil for them to strike root in, with property taxes high and the state income tax not yielding enough to enable the state to live in the style to which it has become accustomed.

But Rep. Eymann, who probably will head the House committee on taxation, came up Thursday with another idea; local income taxes to offset local property taxes. This poses a choice; but it is doubtful if the Legislature will find either palatable.

It may be that when a sales tax comes it will arrive as an offset to the property tax. That was the way we got an income tax in 1929. After the war, after the state had taken on the basic school support burden, the offset feature, which by that time had become a bookkeeping procedure, was dropped. And it may be that not until the property tax rally becomes oppressive that the people will approve of a sales tax. As far as the ad valorem property tax is concerned, as applied to real property it is not unfair, especially if property appraisals are kept current. The complaint now is more about its amount than over inequities.

As for local income taxes, communities will be loathe to apply them. They are used in some large cities but they excite a lot of controversy with those who reside outside the city but work inside.

Property tax relief may come by increasing state grants to counties, cities, school districts, rather than by adding new locally imposed taxes. As for a state sales tax, it has been defeated so many times that it is usually rated a dead duck whenever it is suggested. But legislators recall that the last tax to be referred and defeated was one raising the income tax. Memory of that raises a "caution" sign on adding to the income tax

THESE DAYS ...

Farmers Resent Controls

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

It's big news when a pressure group says that it would like a Washington, D.C. Vet that is just what the huge and prestigi American Farm Bureau Federaing in Atlanta, Ga, the Farm, ureau bigwigs served notice on Secretary of Agriculture Ovville L. pose the Kennedy program in 1963 for stricter "supply management in wheat and other agricultural

The Farm Bureau Federation has not taken its man-bites-dog stand because of any noble decision to stand by an abstract economic principle even though it causes a painful inflammation of the average farmer's pocketbook nerve. Manifestly, the Bureau still favors a floor under prices. Just for once, however, a big pressure group has balanced long-term advantages against the lure of Immediate gains, and has made a decision in favor of freedom in far future. What President Charles B. Shuman of the Farm Bureau has firmly grasped is that control of any one part of a murket drives inexorably toward control of all phases of that market. of free market principles has its totalitarian potential, and the point comes where if you don't turn back, you go the whole way. As one who follows the news in farm publications, I have often wondered how anyone can believe that you can hope to tie a farm-er to a restrictive program with out eventually taking all of his decisions out of his hands. A little item in the January, 1963, issue of the "Farm Journal" should help to illuminate the point. In Washington, D.C., they worry about the general problem of overproduction, with its attendant storage difficulties. But out in Indi-ana they go blithely shead with contests to see who can raise the most corn on a given acre. The "Farm Journal" tells the story of Paul E. Morse, a Vigo County, Ind., farmer who is a part-time railroad worker. Entering a corn contest. Mr. Morse produced 243 hashels of No. 2 shelled corn per acre on five acres-pow sibly the higgest yield ever to corded in that part of the world

How did Morse do it? He took chance and spent $150 extra for fertilizer. For $10 worth of phosphate and potash and other soil ingredients. Morse got 100 ahels more corn per acre. Biglit. behind him in the contest came 17-year-old boy, Philip Wilcox of Tippecanoe County, Ind., who grew bushels an acre. Elsewhere in Indiana 172 other Hoosiers went over the 200-bushel mark in the contest, which was sponsored by the Purdue University Extension Service and the Indiana Crop Improvement Association. The strange thing about increased corn yields this past year is that they have been extracted particularly good weather. The tecondity has been achieved by planting better belond need and is a more artful application of chemicals to the soil.

Thus the local university agricultural extension services, the by held seed experimenters, and the big chemical companies, work to increase yields while Washington, D.C., strives to keep overpro anyone skilled in Aristotelian logic to see that crep control, under such electrostances, is an impos-To make controls effective. Washington would have to tipulate the amounts and the kinds of tertilizer a farmer is permitted to use: It would have to confine new hybrid seed de velopment to greenhouse lat tories. And, finally, it would have fall. Having achieved all this, and having taken out an insurance policy with the Almighty against any interruptions of the plan by curn berers, grasshoppers, or a plain, ordinary dry spell, the Washington planners might hope to keep supply and demand in balance at a parity price.

Where would the farmer be in all thus? He would be reduced to playing the role of a routine clerk. That is what the American Farm Bureau Federation has seen at the end of the road.

Respect

In a recent editorial published in a Portland newspaper, discuss-ing the Oregon State Patrol and the Washington State Patrol? the following statement is made, we quote in part: "That an officer wearing an impressive uniform commands more respect than one dressed like a Greybound Bus Driver." We would like to have the following letter published in the Herald and News for the benefit of the people of this area. The original copy of this letter with 46 names signed to it is being sent to the Portland newspaper that wrote the editorial. We, the undersigned Greyhound drivers take exception to this re-mark. We do so for the following pressive uniform" is not the in-gredient which demands respect. It should be the officer, the one wearing the uniform, who "warrants" the respect of those tact. By this, we mean this offi-cer must "earn" that respect.

In the article you mention the Royal Canadian Meunted Police. If you will analyze the reasons why the Mounties are respected as they are, you will find that, over the years, these men have earned the respect of not only their fellow citizens, but of the citizens of other countries as well. It doesn't make any differ-ence whether a Mountie is dressed in α parka tollowing a dog sled in the far north, or dressed in the plain brown uniform they wear as their regular work uniform: that Mountie is respected because he is a Mountie.

We know that, if one of these men were asked this question: "Does your uniform, by itself, command respect?" his answer would be: "No, it is to be re-spected only as far as I, myself, conduct myself as an officer and a gentleman; only as far as I earn this respect in the performance of my duties according to

STRICTLY PERSONAL

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As I write these lines, the House Un-American Affairs Committee is questioning members of "Women for Peace" movement, trying to snift out any possible Communist influence or dipection within the group.

No doubt, a few Commies will turn up in the ranks—and so would a few vegetarians. Esperantists. nudists, Zen Buddhism devotees, and a handful of Gold Star Moth-

But it has been my personal cago that 95 per cent of the "Women for Peace" are composed of ordinary American citizens, passionately concerned about preserving peace, and better in-formed about what is happening in the world today than many Right or wrong-and I happen to think they are more right than wrong-these women are taking their responsibilities of citi-zenship seriously; unlike the bulk of us, who awaken out of our turpor once every lew years 10 vote, and then subside into selfcenteredness.

What we desperately need are many more groups who are as earnestly concerned with the world's plight, and who are making an effort to read, study, disand ventilate the basic problems tacing human survival Apathy, not "sus-Americanism," is our greatest national enemy

The House Un American Activities Committee may have grasped tiger by the tail this time These women will not be intimdated, they have more moral courage than most men, and they are not afraid for their jobs, as so many men are.

Peace is everybody's business No one is sure exactly how we can achieve it; and, by the same token, every viewpoint must be explored and encouraged. It can-not be felt to that abstraction a representative government such as ours is supposed to be respon-sive to the will of the people. But what is the "will of the people"? Most Americans are pur-aled and confused and frightened

When government officials disagree, when scientists disagree, when military strategists disagree -then it is time for the people themselves to throw open the doors of discussion and inquiry to all who fear for the safety and survival of their children.
In a part of his Farewell Address that is not usually quoted, George Washington warned us to Guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism." Some selfstyled patriots today would like us to accept the "official line" on war and peace without question and without dissent. To do so would be to abdicate our responsibilities as American citizens And to suggest that such questioners and dissenters are "un-American" is to make a vicious mockery of the democratic pro-

POTOMAC FEVER

Ode to the Chief: Our leader's brains, we'll ne'r impeach. When winter reigns, he's in Palm Social security taxes go up. That may be all right for security, but it ain't very social.

Khrushchev calls for concessions by both sides in 363. For his part, all he wants is the concessions on

A survey shows it costs $128 to outfit a college football player-or about twice what it would cost the pollisters to think up a survey that means something

Postage stamps go up to a nickel. One thing about the Demorgats. They're not a bunch of cheap politicians, Surreme Court Justice Douglas says newspapers waste space on unimportant items. Proving his point, a lot of newspapers used New Jersey's state university? A-Rutgers University, New space to quote him verbatim FLETCHER KNEBEL Brumswick.

ANSWERS Q-What institution serves as ungs and evenings.

Rockefeller Heads The List Of Possibilities

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. WASHINGTON (NEA)-A sampling of Republican leaders across the country generally sees New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller topping the 1964 GOP presi-dential list. But ideas on a pos-sible serious rival just haven't

With Republican professionals about to gather in Washington to start making hard plans for 1964, this correspondent conducted a coast-to-coast survey by telephone to gauge the early senti-ment. Their responses cannot be attributed to them by name.

In assigning Rockefeller a commanding front position, those leaders who were queried tended, in one sense, simply to con-tirm a widely held notion in and out of politics, But they fleshed out the impression with interesting detail.

For one thing, it is abundantly clear that Rockefeller not only leads in the more liberal Northeast but already has made a sizable dent in the conservative Central, Plains and Mountain states. The South and Southwest are, of course, the chief regions where the governor's name stirs expresns of distaste and hostility.

For another, not a single politician tapped in this survey sug-gested Rockefeller had been hurt by the fact that his 518,000-vote margin in 1962 fell below both the forecast and his 1958 showing The matter was never even men-

Not surprisingly, other names offered as 1964 possibilities were Governors-elect George Romney of Michigan and William Scranton of Pennsylvania, and Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater. One leader tossed in Sen. Thruston Morton, recently re-elected in Kentucky.

the highest traditions of the Roy-

We further believe this is one of the things wrong with America t o d a y. Politicians, executives, and many others, think that just because they have a "title" they are able to "command respect." They are to be considered the "oracle of wisdom." Their every word, their every order, is

They seem to forget that in our American way of life, one does not "command" respect, one "earns it. According to their position, they

It should make no difference whether one is decked out in gold braid from one end to the other.

or whether one is dressed as "a Greybound bus driver." If that in-dividual, or group of individuals, has earned the respect of those around him, then and then only,

We, sir, as Greybound drivers, are proud of the fact we are Greybound drivers. We believe that, particularly here in the Pa-cific Northwest, we have the finest drivers you can find. Further, if you will check the records, you will find that of the 3,100 drivers in the 11 western states over 1,800 of them have over 10 years seniority. Also, by far the greater majority of these men are family men. They try to do their job to the best of their ability, and they work hard to warrant the respect they should Again, if you will check the records, you will find that our safety record is second to none. We further believe that the Greyhound drivers are (as is expected of (as), the safest, the most reliable, the most courteous driv-ers you will find on the high-

By this letter we do not mean that we are "throwing rocks" at these officers. No matter what belong. We are merely trying to say that we believe we, too, warparison made would have been

We repeat once again. It is not a campaign hat or a cowboy hat that commands respect-it is the man under the hat who must

I note that on Alameda Ave-between Esplanade and Main St. it is frequently difficult, if not in muny instances dangerous, to get onto Alameda Ave, by those who live here on account of the speed

Most motorists travel safely, and at a reasonable speed, where as a few drive at a speed very much into the 35 to 45 per hour bracket, which in turn, not only makes it difficult but in many instances dangerous for ones who live here to get onto Alameda

I might add that Alameda Ave.

between the above points, is narrow and curves are involved, traffic being quite heavy morn-

QUESTIONS

AND

L. E. Hubbard.

227 Alameda Ave.

rant respect. We believe the combetter left unsaid.

carn that respect.

Dangerous

some motorists.

on is to which they

Harvey B. Lee.

421 North Seventh Street.

should that respect be given.

may command "obedience

-they cannot command spect.

be accepted without question.

al Canadian Mounted Police."

The over-all view on Romney and Scranton was, however, that in national terms they are still pretty much unknown and totally Goldwater, the deep South's overwhelming favorite, is fondly mentioned in nearly all parts of the country, but often by men who say in the next breath that he could not be elected and may not be a serious candidate respondent talked as if he had vet made more than a mental commitment to Rockefeller, if that Some said they were "open-minded" on the 1964 race, wanted to see more of him and others, but nevertheless felt he is today far and away the leader.

In this connection, it is not widely known that George Hinman, Rockefeller's chief forager in national pastures for the last two years, recently wrote GOP leaders in several major states disclaiming any present Rocke-feller intent to seek 1964 commit-

In substantially identical letters. Hinman said the gover-nor not only is not now seeking support but for the time remains personally uncommitted to running-and thinks the party should keep itself free on the subject. This can hardly brake for long-the expected early moves toward the 1964 nomination. These com-ments illustrate Rockefeller's still improving position out front: From a Midwesterner: "He has served with ability, got his bills paid, showed fiscal responsibility. can't see anyone else right

A Plains State politician: "This stuff about Rockefeller not being where they're getting it. Not from the people I talked to. Most think he's the logical and the

A Mountain State leader: Goldwater is well-liked here, but I find an increasing acceptance of the idea Rockefeller is ahead and may well be the nominee. On one visit he did a terrific job converting a conservative legisla-tor who had threatened to boycott his talk."

Southern leaders' disapproval of Rockefeller is perhaps best summed up by one spokesman who said: "He is poison in the

But, after Goldwater, the southerners say little about alternative choices. One mentioned Romncy, another Morton, Usually they stop with Goldwater.

Party leaders in other regions are, however, just about as vague on second choices.

Romney gets somewhat more attention than Scranton, but most seem to agree with the New Englander who said: "He's going to have to go through the fire first."

WASHINGTON REPORT . . .

House Liberals Seek Controls On HUAC

By FULTON LEWIS JR. Foes of the House UnAmerican Activities Committee may alter tactics this week in another elfort to destroy the Congressional group.

In recent years, only a tiny handful of extreme liberal Democrats have possessed sufficient courage to vote against HUAC appropriations. On the last such roll call, in 1961, six Congressmen out of 4181 voted against funds to run the committee.

These six members the called hard core) feel that several new Congressmen, including three from California, will vote against HUAC. That would make only nine of 435 members, how-ever, who would publicly oppose the House group. Five of the six "hard - core" members therefore feel that different strategy must be used this HUAC-new a standing independent committee-into a subcom tee of the Judiciary Committee. This would give Brooklyn's Emanuel Celler, a liberal Demo-crat who is Judiciary chairman, absolute control over committee operations. It would, in effect, completely emasculate the Congressional group that helped send Alger Hiss to jail.

A sizable number of liberal Democrats—and one Republican -are thought likely to buy the compromise" idea. Rep. Celler, of course, is one.

So is California's James Corman. New York's Abe Multer, and Ben Rosenthal Others thought likely to support a transfer of HUAC to the Judiciary Committee are several freshman Congressmen from California

Three of those have vowed to support the platform of something called Californians for Libera Representation, which opposes "Congressional investigative power for non-legislative purposes or violation of the Bill of Rights That literary doubletalk is a notsthinly-disquised attack upon HUAC

These three Congressmen are Laonel Van Deerlin, Edward Roybal and George Brown. Another California Democrat thought hos-tile to HUAC is Augustus Hawkins, possessor of a Communist

Only one Republican is reported to think that HUAC should be transferred to Judiciary. He in Manhattan's John Lindsay, who was endorsed for re-election by the ultraliberal New York Port.

from abolition to transfer has not yet been made. Five of the six hard-core members favor such a move. Only New York's William Fitts Ryan insists upon abolition. He told a Los Angeles rally Dec

This is the year we can do something about abolishing the House Committee—not just transferring it to another branch of government, but completely abolishing it." Outside Congress, anti - HUAC leaders are whipping up enthusi-asm for the kill. Frank Wilkinson, the identified Communist who serves as Field Secretary of ish HUAC has traveled extensively, setting up local chapters.

In one recent month he reached almost 20 Midwest colleges. They included: Antioch, Wayne State. Oberlin, Kenyon. lege, the universities of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. A group known as the Midwest Student Civil Liberties Coordinat ing Committee has been formed Chicago. It will help bring students to Washington next week to buttonhole home-town Congressmen, and picket the committee. Local "abolition groups" are functioning in various critics across the country. In New York, identified Reds run the show, and will descend upon

Washington next week.

Flifty six leftists in Chicago banded together to attack HUAC. In Milwaukee, a similar committee was set up. The usual professors at major schools have been persuaded to lend their names to Operation Abolition,

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Monday, Jan. 7, the 7th day of 1963 with 358 to follow:

The moon is approaching its

The meruion stars are Mors and Venus The evening stars are Jupiter

Those born on this day include the 19th president of the United States, Millard Fillmore, in 1800.

A thought for the day-American educator and writer James Frank Dobie, said: "The average Ph.D. thesis is nothing but a transfer of boxes from one graveyard to apother