AROUND THE WORLD

A PICTURE IS WORTH A MILLION WORDS—Like Hansel and Gretel arriving at the gingerbread cottage, these two skiers come upon a cabin under snow-covered trees at Oslo, Norway, a winter wonderland that defies description.

ROADSIDE FISHING—Natives of Bengal, India, supplement their food supply by fishing in irrigation ditches and roadside streams. This boy carries his "catch" on his head.

A REAL COW PALACE—This husky creature doesn't seem impressed by the 3½-ton chandelier gracing the ceiling of this West German slaughterhouse. The firm that produced the some 532-bulb lighting fixture found that this was the only place to store it until shipment.

DOING A DOUBLE TAKE—That's the reaction of Laconia, N. H., skiers when Charley, the (stuffed) kangaroo, skims past them on the slope.

'ALL THE BETTER TO HEAR WITH'—New York's Diana Lawrence models the tiniest of all transistor radios. The miniature device just loops over the ear as demonstrated.

UNUSUAL PET—Bringing the old Mother Goose rhyme into reality is Sally Parkin as she leads her lamb by a leash at Stoke D'Abernon, England.

MAKING FRIENDS—Gina Lollobrigida and her son cuddle a lion cub named Milko at the actress' Rome home. She purchased the animal for a lion-tamer friend as a gift.

A ROARING PERFORMANCE—This 170-pound giant is "Donny Boy," a polar bear at a Washington, D.C., zoo, giving a stand-up performance. He doesn't seem to like his new home and is making every effort to break through the bars that surround him.

FATHER AND SON—Japan's Crown Prince Akihito watches his son, Prince Hiro, at play on a pile of logs in the palace garden in Tokyo. The occasion was Akihito's birthday and he took time out to play with his 2-year-old son.

RETURN OF THE PRODIGALS—Sid Caesar has returned to Broadway in the musical "Little Me," after a 14-year absence, and now Jack Benny has decided to take the plunge. Here he gets a few tips from Sid.

ADMIRATION SOCIETY—As the saying goes, "There's nothing like a uniform!" and Cub Scout Jeff Watson, 8, found this out when he appeared at school in full uniform as part of his district's "Scout Uniform Day" at Salinas, Calif. Jeff nonchalantly undergoes the admiring glances.
