

'This Is Life' Host Now Raising Funds

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Perhaps you've wondered what has become of Ralph Edwards since the genial host of "This Is Your Life" disappeared from television almost two years ago.

Enough people have asked, "Why aren't you on television this year, Ralph?" to merit an answer, to wit:

"I'm too busy to work!" Edwards makes that comment with a straight face and a great deal of pride. He is up to his broad smile in fund raising campaigns for charities and the battle against disease.

To give you an idea, the red-haired emcee is National Crusade Chairman of the American Cancer Society, a board member of the Southern California Symphony Association, a member of the University of California Alumni Council, and deeply involved in good works for the Presbyterians, the Methodist Family Life Conference, the YMCA, the Wabash College Development Board and Senior Citizens Medical Wings.

Other Activities
There are many similar activities requiring his attention. Unlike many Hollywood celebrities, Edwards refuses to write out a large check for the Community Chest and return to self-aggrandizement in the ranking war of tinseltown egos.

In the past year he has flown tens of thousands of miles at his own expense to promote civic, health and educational programs. In all, he has raised more than $16 million.

Meanwhile, he is not starving to death personally. He owns the new radio series, "Wide Country," and after 23 years on radio and video, "Truth or Consequences" still is going strong.

Questions about his willingness to appear on the air, Edwards replies:
"I've been offered several shows, but I like to own my programs. 'Truth or Consequences' and 'This Is Your Life' came out of my own head and heart. And right now I'm too busy to think up a new property and get it on the air."

"This year when the American Cancer Society asked if I would be their national crusade chairman I felt the time was right to step into this one big job. One thing you can't do is a half-way job."

In one way or another, on the air or off, Edwards is dedicated to helping mankind. Both his long-running shows have reaped benefits for people who participated in them.

When time permits, Edwards thrashes out problems of several new television series on the planning boards, including a number of pilot shows which will need sponsors before hitting the video-waves.

Of his self-imposed sabbatical Edwards concludes: "If you knock it all down to size, the answer to 'Why aren't you in TV this year instead of being engulfed in various causes of humanity,' is a love for my fellow man, and a couple of years to indulge it."

Edwards makes that comment with a straight face and a great deal of pride. He is up to his broad smile in fund raising campaigns for charities and the battle against disease.

FIREMAN'S TRY — It has been four years since actress Jane Wyman appeared in a TV show and 12 years since her Academy Award winning song of "In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening," but as Jane says, "I'm giving it the fireman's try," in referring to her return to song and dance routines when she appeared on the Andy Williams show last week.

John Payne Decides Life Not 'Rat Race'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie stardom can be as deadly as a creeping cancer, according to actor John Payne, who says: "I'm quitting the rat race. From now on I'm going to stroll."

After seeing his friends Clark Gable and Tyrone Power die at the heights of their careers, Payne has taken it easy.

"Many actors make the mistake of forgetting the years," he said. "They start out as handsome young athletes who can do anything asked of them. For years they ride horses, climb mountains, swim rivers, stay up late, work 60 and 70 hours a week, and they die of a heart attack. If only they had stopped and said to themselves, 'My God, I'm not 25 years old any more. I'm 50, and I'm tired.'"

Starts With Goldwyn
Payne began his career in 1936 with Sam Goldwyn. He and Power were contemporaries who headed the 20th Century-Fox contract lists.

"I've been around this town for more than 25 years and during that time I made a lot of friends," he said.

"I'm shocked to look around. Death has been dashing through the streets of Hollywood too much lately. I'm going to get off the highway."

"What is the sense of having plenty of money, fame, security and all the other things that go with stardom if you lose the pleasure of growing up with your children. What is the good of seeing your wife only a few minutes a day, work until you're blind tired and grouchy, and then die of a heart attack?"

"My youngest boy is 14. He wants to be a ball player. Well, I'm going to slow down, and watch him grow. I'm going to eat, read, travel and sleep."

"I've tasted the heady wines of May, and they were great. But there still is plenty of rich autumn beer left to be sipped."

Free To Loaf
Payne works often enough in movies and such television shows as the Dick Powell drama series to insure a steady income, but he is free to loaf and dabble in real estate whenever the mood takes him.

For two years he starred in his own video series and it was that experience more than anything else that brought Payne up short.

"Television isn't worth all that hard work," he said. "By the middle of the second year of 'Restless Gun' I felt 10 years older than I have the previous season. Some instinct told me that human machinery wears down just like any other."

Payne, who is hovering around the 50-year mark, said this is a waiting period in his life.

"Maybe I'll discover that the parade has passed me by while I wait on the sidelines," he grinned. "And that's all right, too. In movies we used to work hard, but there were breaks between pictures. In TV it was a matter of meeting deadlines every few days."

Weep not for Payne under any conditions. "Restless Gun" is being rerun and he owns the series outright. It earns a fortune.

"Stardom is a wonderful and dangerous thing," Payne concluded. "But a man can't make the mistake of running at full speed all his life."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Clint Eastwood, one of the "Rawhide" series stars on CBS as Rowdy Yates, "framed" of the cattle drive, is the latest television star to join the recording brigade. Cameo Parkway Records has released his singing of "Rowdy" and "Western Wedding Song" on the same platter. He has done a little vocalizing on the TV series on rare occasions.

Singer Robert Goulet and comedian Phil Silvers will be the guest stars on Judy Garland's March 19 one-hour special for CBS. Goulet also will be available on Bob Hope's March 13 NBC special. Hope had signed the singer months earlier but in this case waived his right to the usual special time exclusivity for Goulet prior to and after his telecast.

Hollywood Boys Tell Avalon Of Army Life

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in a Hollywood movie studio, swapping yarns between "takes" before the camera.

Central figure in the conclave was youthful Frankie Avalon, boy singer, actor and tycoon, who is facing a hitch in the Army.

Advisting him were his costars, Tab Hunter, Jim Backus, Gary Crosby and Scott Brady. The entire cast was costumed in Navy garb for "Operation Bikini."

"Cop a plea," Backus advised the teen-ager idol.

That's what I was during World War II," Jim Backus put in. "Yes sir. A day before my physical I slipped and fell on my elbow. You should've seen it. I had so many broken bones the doctor said I'd never be able to bend it again."

Backus flopped his arm around to show he had recovered completely. Young Avalon was impressed.

Advisting him were his costars, Tab Hunter, Jim Backus, Gary Crosby and Scott Brady. The entire cast was costumed in Navy garb for "Operation Bikini."

"Cop a plea," Backus advised the teen-ager idol.

"That all depends on what you're doing," Crosby added. "Personally, I thought basic training was the easiest part of it. But the time passed very slowly for me over in Germany."

"I wonder which branch of the service is best?" Frankie asked.

"Boy, what a question!" Brady replied.

"None of 'em will ever replace civilian life," Backus ruminated, rubbing his elbow affectionately.

Director Tony Carras recalled the cast back to work. Frankie was the last to leave his canvas chair. He shook his head uncertainly and said, "Gee, I don't know much more about the service than I did an hour ago."

RELAXING THOUGHT — Dinah Shore, who is less relaxed than usual due to the fact she has been moving from one mansion to another, is shown with Liberace as they rehearse for her TV show. She said, "I was so concerned that my costumes might clash with Liberace's beaded jackets I forgot all about the big movie."
