

Director Claims Delinquents Different Breeds Of Cats In Rural, Urban Areas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report submitted to a presidential committee suggested today that juvenile offenders in rural and urban areas are different breeds of cats.

Dr. Kenneth Polk, director of a group planning an all-out attack on youth problems in Lane County, Ore., told the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime that a different approach was needed in rural areas.

"My impression is that in rural areas a large proportion of what is called delinquency could be more accurately called bell-ringing," Dr. Polk said.

"The boys here (in Lane County) don't consider themselves delinquent, in fact they are insulted if you use that term," he said.

"To them, a delinquent is one who wears a black leather jacket, has a switchblade knife, has long hair combed into a ducktail, and wears motorcycle boots.

"The urban slum youth knows well that his behavior is criminal," he said. "The youth in the rural area may have serious problems, and may get into a lot of trouble, but it has a different meaning to them."

All present data, he said, indicate a great increase in delinquency in Lane County and other rural areas.

"Yet these problems are very different than those found in the big cities," he said. "We don't have narcotics use, or large fighting gangs — they're just non-existent."

For example, he said, statistics show that the top youth offense in Lane County — drinking — accounts for 22.3 per cent of the juvenile arrests in the area. In Los Angeles, he added, drinking is far down the list, accounting for only two per cent of court referrals.

"I don't think there's any actual difference in the amount of drinking by juveniles in the two areas," Dr. Polk said. "I think there's just a difference in the perception of the problem.

"In Lane County, drinking is considered serious enough to warrant court attention. I suspect that in Los Angeles, if the boys were just drinking, the police don't worry too much about it."

The Lane County youth study board, which Dr. Polk directs, has been given a $129,000 grant by the President's committee to study youth problems. Similar grants have been made to 14 larger cities across the country.

BROTHERS REUNITED — Two brothers who had not seen each other for 48 years were reunited in Grants Pass this week because nurse Doris Williams, at left, at Josephine General Hospital was struck by resemblance of Roy Parker, center, current patient, to one she had a few weeks ago. She asked Roy if he had a brother and learned he had one he had not seen since 1915 and presumed dead. Checking hospital records, she located Harry Parker, right, and effected the reunion. Oddity was that both men had lived in Josephine County for the past 21 years. Separation came when the family moved West after Roy joined Canadian troops during World War I. — UPI Telephoto

Congress Gets Request For Big Arms Spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress was asked today to approve the biggest military authorization bill in U.S. history, a $15,358,691,000 measure to purchase new missiles, aircraft and warships.

The record measure was offered by Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee.

He said it represented "another step toward making this country so strong—both defensively and offensively—that an attack by the Soviet Union would be unthinkable when viewed in any reasonable context."

Landscapers Hold Meet

CORVALLIS—The newly organized group known as the Amateur Accredited Landscape Design Critics Council held its second study meeting at the Country Kitchen in Corvallis Jan. 14. Members from the Klamath area are Mrs. Crystal Cheyne, Mrs. Hugh O'Connor, Mrs. E. C. Schweitzer and Mrs. Verne I. Bader.

Each member of this select group has attended at least four of the National Council of State Garden Clubs accredited study courses, successfully completed the outside reading, and passed an examination.

The National Council Amateur Accredited Landscape Design Critics are valuable in serving on park boards, city councils, planning commissions, etc., to safeguard planning in the hope that future projects will have good design and make America more beautiful.

Study topic for the day was "Forms and Textures of Plant Materials," conducted by George Freden, associate professor in landscape design and architecture from Oregon State University. He stressed that all plant materials are three dimensional in quality and must be thought of as forms, outlines and textures, before using at all in design. Beauty is the desired result, but chaos could easily result unless all aspects of the design and materials are taken into careful consideration, he said.

The next meeting will be a luncheon in the Country Kitchen, Corvallis, on April 8. Associate Professor Blakey from OSU will be the guest speaker.

Goldwater Raps Robert For Rewriting History

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., charged today that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy appeared to be trying to rewrite history in the "latest example of 'news management' by the New Frontier."

Goldwater was referring to a newspaper interview in which the attorney general said no U. S. air cover was ever planned or promised for the ill-fated Bay of Pigs Cuban invasion attempt in 1961.

The Arizona Republican said the statement ran counter to everything the American people had been led to believe for 21 months.

"I suggest it is proper to inquire into this latest example of 'news management' by the New Frontier," Goldwater told the Senate. "Has this practice of the administration now been extended to the rewriting of history?"

Goldwater said he talked with President Kennedy at the latter's request shortly after the invasion fiasco and "I certainly got the impression then that an air cover had been part of the original invasion plans."

Also, he told the Senate, "I am sure the entire American public has understood that the air cover was definitely in the invasion plans until the President was persuaded—by some still unidentified advisers—to cancel it."

92 Survive Shelter Stay

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI)—Ninety-two men, women and children spent 36 hours in an underground fallout shelter near Livermore during the weekend. They emerged Sunday, cold but otherwise healthy.

The experiment was the first full-scale shelter drill of Survival Associates, Inc. Taking part were 30 adults and 42 children, ranging in age from five months to 65.

Dr. Duane Sewell, a nuclear physicist at the University of California's Livermore Radiation Laboratory and vice president of Survival Associates, pronounced the experiment a complete success. "I wouldn't hesitate to take 150 people in there for three weeks," he said. The 25 participating families entered the shelter at 8 p.m. Friday and came out at 8 a.m. Sunday.

The shelter, which cost $50,000, is 125 feet long and 23 feet wide, with a concrete floor, steel ceiling and 34 one-family compartments measuring seven by seven feet.

The shelter temperature ranged between 55 and 62. The ground temperature outside was 42 when they emerged Sunday. Individual families used hot plates to cook their own meals, consisting of cooked wheat, raisins, chicken noodles, coffee and canned milk.

Most of the participants in the experiment are attached to the Livermore laboratory. Family memberships in the corporation cost $1,600 plus $10 a month dues for taxes and upkeep.

Entomology is the branch of zoology concerned with the study of insects.
