Marriage Counselor Advised For Battlers

By ANN LANDERS
 Dear Ann Landers: I'm 24, been married less than a year, and I'm ready to give my bride back to her father. Things I once considered cute now get on my nerves. When she used to get mad at me and pout I thought it was a darling. Now I'd like to paste her one in the mush and put her lower lip back where it belongs.

Last night we were watching TV. I sat through two hours of real junk because she wanted to watch certain shows. Then I said, "O.K., now I want to see Lassie." She said, "That's not a real dog. It's a person in an animal outfit and I don't want to see it." I insisted on getting the channel so she pulled the plug out of the wall and said, "All right, then let's both read."

I have never hit a woman in my life but I came close that night. Should I talk to her parents?—DUTCH
 Dear Dutch: No. Talk to a marriage counselor—together. If you two have been married less than a year you're still in the adjustment period. Maybe you do a few things which irritate her and she retaliates via the boob tube. A professional counselor can provide you with unbiased and useful advice.

Dear Ann Landers: Are you on vacation or what? Who gave that rotten advice blaming the parents of young boys who get into trouble? And that idiotic phrase from your reader about "robbing a young girl of her maidenhood." He's got to be kidding. In most cases this could scarcely be called a robbery.

During the 11 years I've been a juvenile court officer I've seen dozens of these "innocent little shrinking violets." Most of them at 16 have been with so many boys that they can't remember half their names. When they get into trouble they point a finger at some dumb yokel who had too much to drink so the court takes her word against his.

And what about the tramps who get pregnant intentionally—so they can wring a nice settlement out of a young guy who has rich parents, or a married man who can't afford the publicity?

Since you frequently boast that you print all shades of opinions I'd like to see you print this.—SEEN IT ALL
 Dear Seen: Having a baby out of wedlock is a tough way to make money. This maneuver (extreme, you must agree) is not a favorite of the experienced tramp. Only a young and stupid girl would try it. Incidentally, Bub, vacation or not, every word that appears in this column is written by me. When I do take a vacation the work is done before I leave.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a widow 50 years of age who is dating a fine man whose wife died in 1959. He has three children under 15.

The man has asked me to marry him and I have said yes. I'm not sure now that I can go through with it. The deceased woman's clothes are hanging in the closet. Her personal belongings are still in the dresser drawers. The furniture is exactly as she left it. There are pictures of her in every room.

I love the man and want to marry him but will I feel as if I am living with a ghost? I hesitate to express my feelings for fear of appearing disrespectful to her memory. Please, help.—KATHERINE

Dear Katherine: No second wife should move into a home under the conditions you describe. Have a frank talk with your clergyman and ask him to speak to your fiancé.

Of course you should leave the pictures and furniture as they are (for a while) but the clothing and personal belongings of his first wife should be disposed of before you move in.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BOOKS APPROVED—Despite vigorous protests by parents such as Mrs. Sigard Hanson, above, at a meeting of the Board of Education in Edgerton, Wis., books such as "Catcher in the Rye," "1984," "The Ugly American" and "Brave New World" were given the green light for an advanced English literature class. The parents termed such books "vulgar" and "demoralizing."—UPI Telephoto

Girl Scout Tells Story Of Roundup

A picture, "Story of the Girl Scout Roundup," will be presented in the Roosevelt School girl's gym on Friday, Jan. 25, at 7 p.m.

Kathy Cooper, one of the two Senior Scouts from the Junior Girl Scout Council selected to attend the national conclave in Button Bay, Va., will relate her experiences through the use of slides taken at the roundup.

A camp atmosphere will prevail at the program as all Brownies, Girl Scouts, parents, and guests will be seated on the floor to sing camp songs before the presentation. It is recommended that everyone attending the event bring a cushion or sit-upon regular equipment in Girl Scouting for camp functions.

The one-hour story of the roundup is open to the public without charge.
