Marshall-Case Vows Exchanged In December

Marriage vows between Mrs. Caroline H. Case and Harry J. Marshall were exchanged Dec. 29 at the First Presbyterian Church at 2 p.m. A pink and white theme was effected with the use of gladioli, carnations and chrysanthemums with lighted pink tapers in floor candelabra.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were the Rev. Robert C. Groves and the Rev. LaSalle Sibbet of Peace Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. A. F. Herringshaw was the organist and accompanist for the soloist, Mrs. William Davenport.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Purl V. Helton of San Carlos, who were unable to be present for the wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry J. Marshall of Santa Barbara attended their son's wedding.

The bride designed and made her wedding gown of mauve imported Belgian brocade, fashioned with three quarter sleeves and scoop neckline. Unpressed pleats gave soft fullness to the short skirt. A net float veil was held by mauve feather clips. A double strand of pearls was a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds and feathered white chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Charles Heaton, wore a frock of mauve and off-white French imported brocade made similarly to the bride's gown, but with sheath skirt. Her nosegay was a smaller version of the bridal bouquet.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Dr. Harry H. Batey of Pullman. Ushers were John L. Christie of Astoria and Robert L. Pryor, formerly of Astoria, now residing in this city.

The bridegroom's mother chose for the occasion a pale green wool dress worn with flowered hat of green and amber tones and a green cymbidium orchid corsage.

The reception was held in the church parlors which were decorated in the pink and white wedding decor. A three tiered cake was decorated with pink roses and topped with pink bells. Pink candles in silver candelabra flanked the cake, which was served by Mrs. Lee Brasseur. Mrs. Sam Raymond presided at the coffee service and Mrs. Warren Pechman served punch.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Southern California. Mrs. Marshall changed to a travel outfit of chocolate brown double knit suit with white hat and white orchid corsage.

She attended Oregon State University and recently was an employee of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Drake University and Iowa State University and is a member of the Society of American Foresters. He is presently unit forester with the Oregon State Forestry Department. The couple will make their home at 4824 Laverne Street in this city.

Special guests at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. Harry H. Batey, Tom, Sheila, Ann and Barbara of Pullman; Mrs. Richard R. Schreiber, Malibu, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. John L. Christie and family, Astoria; Mrs. Douglas Dondson and family, Jacksonville, Ore.; Mrs. John Ward and Betsy, La Mirada, Calif.

Men's Tailors Preview Styles

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — A gallant little band of men's tailors got their chance today to display their wares in the feminine world of the Italian spring-summer fashion shows.

After five days of feminine finery, four tailors joined to give international buyers and the press some clues about what fashionable escorts will be wearing next season.

Even so, the men were not numbered two to one on the final day before the fashion scene shifts from Florence to Paris Friday.

Four designers of masculine high fashion — Brioni, Franconi, Letrico and Patti — vied for attention.

The Florence Hotel was the scene of the men's fashion show rather than the white hallways of Pitti Palace that serves as a showcase for dresses.

The Medici family, once the rulers of Florence and former residents of Pitti Palace, would have enjoyed the Giolcia collection Wednesday night. The Medici had a scientific turn of mind that led to hobbies like the study of poisons and mechanical toys.

Giolica gave careful study to the engineering problem of how to expose the maximum of bare back without having the dress fall down in front.

One solution was to construct bodices with fronts and a set of loops. The arms fitted through the narrow loops to anchor the dress in place and leave an uncluttered expanse of skin from the back of the neck to the waist.

Giolica varied the more classic solution of the halter neckline by suspending the dress from chunky Aztec necklaces.

Once the problem of baring the back was solved, Giolica's collection concentrated on a line of Aztec inspiration with capes.

Coats came in shades of apricot and amber or in big hooded steeple checks with neat cape-collars that covered the upper arm for evening.

Designer Eleanora Garnetti used tiny waists, full skirts and cape backs for a collection with an aura of floating femininity. She not only showed capes but capecoats, cape-jackets and cape-dresses.

Lions Aux. Sponsors Institutes For Blind

Two institutes for parents and visually handicapped children are being held in the Portland area. These are sponsored by the Oregon State School for the Blind and the Oregon State Lions Auxiliary.

The first "Living Skills Institute" will be held at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Beaverton on Jan. 28. Older blind students attending the Oregon State School for the Blind and their parents will be working together cooking on gas stoves, ironing, bed-making, and dusting. Younger children and their parents will work together to develop living skills in dressing themselves, brushing teeth, hanging clothes and playing games.

The second institute will be held at Mt. Tabor School in Portland on Feb. 9. Children attending public schools in Portland will be working with their parents at this institute.

Emphasis this year is on encouraging parents to work with their children in developing living skills to lead as normal a life as possible. "Strengths to be Developed" will be the topic for the discussion period.

Until three years ago these institutes were held in Salem, but now five are held each year in the different areas in the state. It is felt in spreading them throughout the state more parents have an opportunity to attend and learn how they can help their children grow into responsible adults.

Two institutes have been held so far. The first was on Nov. 3 at Medford with 22 attending where one little boy started teaching his father to play chess. The second was in Springfield Nov. 17 with 68 in attendance.

The final one will be held May 4 in Salem, at the Oregon State School for the Blind. This institute will include all pre-school children.

The Oregon State Lions Auxiliary adopted the Parents Institute program in 1950 and provides the luncheons, accommodations and baby sitting facilities. Mrs. Robert Scherrer is state Lions Auxiliary president and she is working with Mollie Vlasnik, parent counselor and C. C. Woodcock, superintendent of the Oregon State School for the Blind planning the institutes.

The clubs cooperating in the one at Beaverton are the auxiliary clubs of West Hills, Cedar Hills and Beaverton, Roseway and Columbia clubs are responsible for the institute in Portland.
