

COUPLE OF CUTE CHICKS—Donned in all his feathered finery, a Belgian bantam named Barby D'Uccle sticks his chest out and his tail up as he meets pretty Stephanie Hill. The rooster was appearing at a three-day international poultry show being held in London. Stephanie seems to think he's a prize.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

CAPTIVE AUDIENCE—Peggy Marsh finds herself a captive of a master slave manipulator in Washington. The electronic "monster" is used for handling radioactive materials. Peggy doesn't appear very frightened.

SHIMMER DELIGHT—Stepping into the spring evening limelight is this shimmering sheath gown designed by Philip Hulitar. The designer scattered delicate yellow roses, embroidered on white chiffon. Gown has neat yellow satin bow.

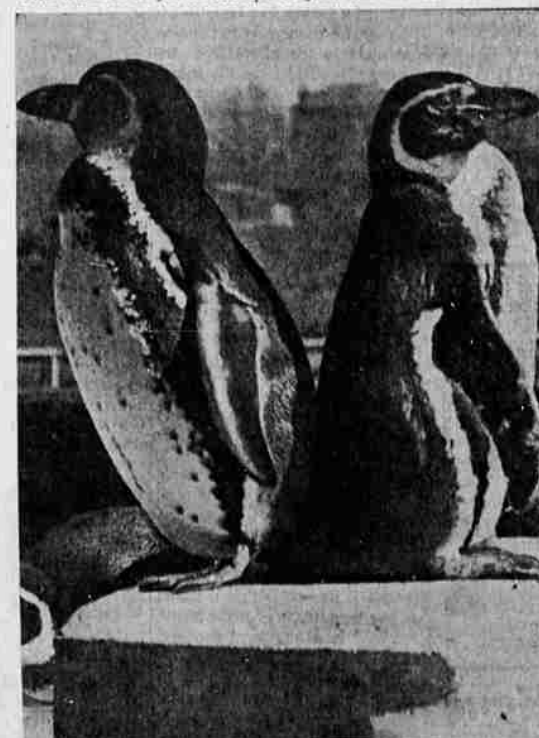

FROZEN STIFF—The cold wave that hit England certainly made it difficult for people to perform even the more simple chores. Wearing plenty of warm garments, Mrs. Janet Eggitt, 22, just laughs it off as she takes her frozen laundry off the clothes line at New Malden, Surrey, England.

A BIT OF OLD FRANCE FOUND IN THE OLD SOUTH—St. Louis Cathedral provides the background as a tourist takes a snapshot in the New Orleans French Quarter. The area still retains some of the atmosphere of the days of pirate Jean Lafitte.

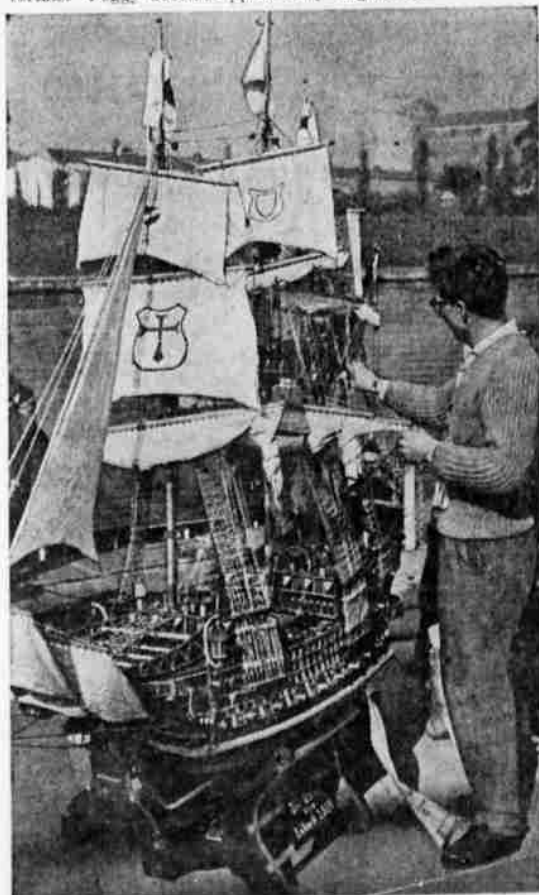

'BYE, NOW'—Susan Kirkland, 14 months, gives some last minute farewells as she talks on the telephone in New York. She was set to jet to Europe to join her soldier father.

PARDON MY BACK—Tweedie-dee and Tweedie-dum, a pair of penguins in the Cologne, West Germany, Zoo, apparently decided they'd make a terrific set of bookends. Or, perhaps, they are looking for the man who feeds them.

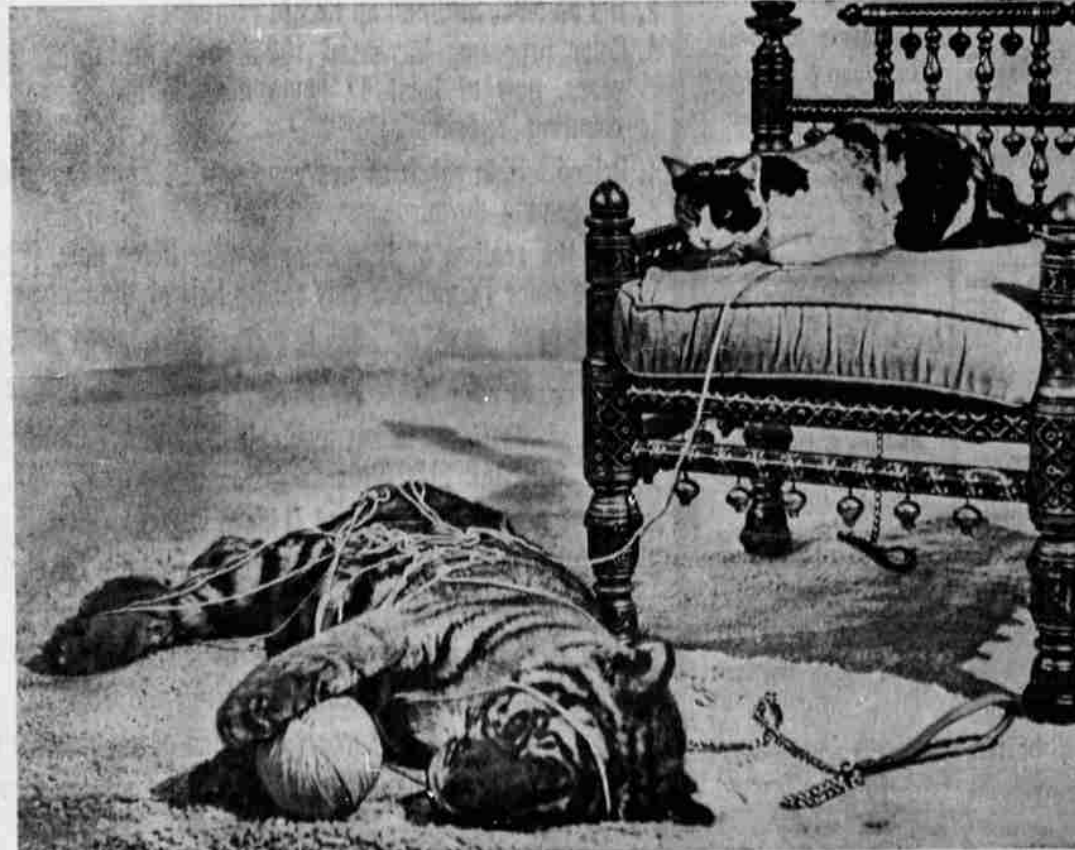

LAZY DAY—Passersby pay no attention to a water buffalo who is relaxing on the street in Katmandu, Nepal. This is typical of the casual atmosphere of the Nepalese capital.

THE EAGLE IS READY FOR LAUNCH—Arno Meyer stands by a pond in West Berlin and puts the finishing touches on the model sailing ship, Eagle of Lubeck, which took him about three years to build in his spare time. The ship is approximately nine feet long and eight feet high.

THAT'S THE BREAKS—Roberta and Robert Wolnitzek certainly got a couple of bad breaks in Covington, Ky. The 13-year-old twins both broke their left arms 11 days apart.

WATCH THAT TIGER—A four-month-old tiger rolls on the ground as the cat on the chair keeps a close watch in Hollywood. The tiger will begin his career as a film star in "Black Zoo." He's a very playful fellow when he is off the set, but a demon once he gets in front of those movie cameras.