

TO WED — Judy Jane Fosner, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Fosner, this city, will become the bride of Tim Collingsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Collingsworth of Salem, on April 26 in Salem. The engagement was told during Sunday School session in the Assembly of God Church by the bride-elect's parents, who are pastors of the church. The news was disclosed by introduction of the bride-to-be's young brother, Verlon, and little Myra Frost, who were dressed as a bridal couple with the names of the betrothed pair on their backs. The future bride is a graduate of Canyonville Bible Academy and is now employed in Salem, where her fiancé is associated with a service station construction and sale firm.

Janice Parr Is Bride In Presbyterian Rites

The marriage of Janice Marie Parr and Edward Lee Jacobs was an event of Jan. 26 in the First Presbyterian Church, which was decorated in a pink and white theme for the 7:30 p.m. wedding ceremony. The Rev. Robert C. Groves officiated.

A white aisle runner led to the altar which was banked in back with woodwardia fern. On each side candelabra held azalea pink candles and were decorated with white standard chrysanthemums and azalea pink stock in Hogarth curves. Pew bows were two-tone pink satin with ivy streamers. Visualite lanterns hung from the windows along the side walls completed the pretty setting for the ceremony.

Mrs. A. R. Herringshaw was the organist. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davenport sang "O Perfect Love," "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Parr and was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of silk organza over bouquet tulle was made with scalloped necklines embroidered with sequins and baby seed pearls. Above the graceful bouffant skirt of unpressed pleats was the long sleeved fitted bodice of imported French hand clipped lace. A crown of seed pearls and tear drops held in place the veil of illusion, just below shoulder length.

The bridal bouquet, shaped in a Hogarth curve, was fashioned of white Hairsioniana orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Clear aurora borealis earrings worn by the bride were a gift of the bridegroom.

Carol Perkins was maid of honor. She wore a frock of azalea pink embossed satin with matching veil and slippers. Pink aristocrat roses and ivy were attached to a muff, the color of her dress.

Carol Shannon, Susan Hart and Joanne Miller, bridesmaids, wore dresses made like the honor attendant's, but of light pink shade. They, too, carried muffs with pink roses and ivy, and had matching slippers and veils.

Dale Gooding of Portland was best man. Ushers were Steve Shultz, Al McSwain and Joe Luczycki.

Candles were lighted before the service by Joyce Parr, sister of the bride, and Nancy Perkins, who were dressed in white brocade frocks with cuffs of fur. Pink veils, white slippers and pink rose wristlets completed their outfits.
