Stout-Kangun Vows Exchanged At Mt. Laki

Mt. Laki Presbyterian Church, land on their honeymoon before was the setting for the recent exchange of wedding vows between Kathleen Aulani Kangu and Floyd Taylor Stout. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine C. Kangu and the late Miles Jacques Kangu of Honolulu. Mrs. Catherine Kangu was accompanied from Hawaii by Mrs. Frederick W. Colburn, grandmother of the bride. Also present for the ceremony was the bride's only aunt, Mrs. Peter Rohn of Seattle.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Stout of Klamath Falls.

The bride chose a floor length wedding gown of imported French Chantilly lace with neckline and bodice accent of pearls and sequins. A jeweled crown held in place her fingertip veil of illusion. A strand of pearls was a gift of the bridegroom and pearl earrings were those worn by her mother at her own wedding. She wore two blue garters and carried a handkerchief which had belonged to her great-grandmother. The bridal bouquet was an arrangement of white feather chrysanthemums, lily of the valley and red anthuriums, flown from Hawaii and pikaki leis.

Charlene Highland, Medford, was maid of honor and Karen Thomas and Sylvia Glass, both of Ashland, were bridesmaids. They were attired in kelly green slipper satin sheaths with bell-shaped skirts. Matching headbands with short veils and slippers completed their outfits. Their asymmetrical bouquets were of green and white holly and red anthuriums.

Nicki Glass, flower girl, wore a white organdy frock with red and green flowers and carried matching basket of red carnation petals.

Mike Prindel was ring bearer and Sammy Stout and David Briggs lighted the candles.

Mrs. Kangu chose for her daughter's wedding a kelly green chiffon dress with complementary accessories. Mrs. Stout wore a blue lace sheath and matching blue hat.

Monte Dehlinger was best man and ushers were Dave Graham of Redding, Brad Planary of Bend and Joe Tacchini, this city.

A reception in the church parlors was followed by a champagne supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Dehlinger.

Linda Lorton attended the guest book; Georgia Pater served coffee; Mrs. Richard Poole, punch and Melinda and Marian Sonntag, the wedding cake.

The newlyweds went to Portland.
