"Never use self-polishing wax on wood floors!"

... says Henry M. Tobey, Research Director of the world's largest hardwood floor maker

"Self-polishing waxes are great for linoleum, tile, and vinyl floors—but not wood. That's because most of them are made primarily of synthetic plastics. They simply cannot be removed from your wood floors without damaging the finish or the wood.

The layers of old self-polishing wax pile up until your wood floor darkens and discolors!

For this reason, we recommend the use of Bruce Cleaning Wax or Bruce Floor Cleaner on your wood floors. Both contain a combination of removable liquid paste wax and waterless wood floor cleaner. They clean; remove the old wax; and leave a rich, new coat of gleaming paste wax protection—all at the same time.

If you want a heavy coat of wax, use Bruce Cleaning Wax. For lighter waxing and badly soiled floors, you'll prefer Bruce Floor Cleaner. It's the right way, the easy way to keep your wood floors clean and bright."

KUHS Graduate Returns From Peruvian Tour

LAKEVIEW — Myrna Frewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darroll Frewing of Lakeview, and a graduate of Klamath Union High School, is one of a group of 23 students who returned to the United States on Jan. 10 following a trip to Lima and other portions of Peru.

The trip was sponsored by Lewis and Clark College in cooperation with "Experiment in International Living" which has headquarters in Putney, Ver., and has trained the Peace Corps members. The program, which has been going on for about 35 years, usually promotes a summer trip in sending groups to European countries. However, the combined sponsorship with the Oregon college offered one semester credit in academic work for the four months that the students were gone, with the requirement of papers to be submitted on returning to college.

The group consisted of seven boys and 16 girls, accompanied by Dr. Clifford Hamer, professor of literature and drama at Lewis and Clark, and Patricia Lewis, official chaperone and guide from the experiment. This situation was unique in that seven college freshmen, who had had merely two days orientation on the college campus, were included, and they were found to adapt even better than the older students. Expenses for the trip were the amount for a term on the campus plus $250. Selection is through interview by faculty members and personnel from the experiment.

Departure was by bus from Portland with a stop in San Francisco to pick up some California students, and from there to El Paso, Tex., where they boarded the train for Mexico City. After boarding a plane for Lima there was engine trouble that forced them to stop at Tegucigalpa, Honduras. While shopping around there briefly they met a storekeeper who spoke some English. His first statement was that he had a son in Klamath Falls, which was almost like speaking of home for Myrna. The man's name was Ernesto Martin and the son, who worked for an architectural firm in Klamath Falls, was Mario Martin. He called his son, who, in turn, called Myrna's parents in Lakeview to give them news of their daughter. They later tried to contact him, but he had moved and it was thought that he might have gone back to Berkeley where he had been taking courses at the University of California.

On arrival at Lima each student was quartered with a Peruvian family, adopting the members as father, and mother, brothers and sisters, as the case might be. Myrna's "mother" was Italian who lived with a daughter in the city while the "father," of Indian extraction, ran a general merchandise store up in the Andes Mountains. The mother was an architect and had designed several houses there. The sister, 23, was studying pharmacy at San Marcos University with plans to go into the research field. A brother, who had left just the week before is working for an architectural firm in Washington, D.C.

This family would be designated as upper middle class, which is a group of mostly professional people which is emerging from the formerly distinct upper and lower classes, as a result of better economic conditions induced by outside trade.

After thoroughly enjoying the home stay of about a month they left for a resort, Wampaji, about 20 miles from Lima. A swimming pool and other diversions made difficult the concentrated study necessary for the preparation of materials for the papers to be written. They had garnered considerable knowledge of Spanish through the necessity of speaking it.

On Nov. 4 they left for what was known as the Cuzco trip, two weeks into the Andes. Mountains by bus and train for a study of the ancient Inca ruins. They visited Puno on the edge of Lake Titicaca for a couple of days and then on to Cuzco, which was the capital of the Inca Empire. Here they bought decorative hats and llama and alpaca sweaters that were handmade.

The ultimate of this portion of the trip, Myrna declares, was Machupicchu, the ruins of the Inca city on the top of the Andes. The green spot nestles among the towering mountains and the views were spectacular. This is a world famous route and hotel accommodations are available. The highest point of transportation by train was 14,966 feet.

The return trip to Lima was by plane where they stayed in pensions, somewhat like rented houses. Here was the time of concentrated study interspersed by interviews in the fields of politics, economics, education and religion. Then they met in seminars for interchanges and discussion of ideas. The only formal class was Spanish.

There was sorrow in parting from families and friends as they left Lima on Jan. 2 and made the trip home by plane, train and bus.

Myrna's family picked her up in San Francisco and she remained in Lakeview until Jan. 26 and then returned to college for the beginning of the semester.

Darroll Frewing works on the supervisor's staff at the Fremont Forest, in charge of grazing. The family has been in Lakeview for two years. Previously they lived in the Klamath District of the Rogue River Forest and later on the Willamina. There are two brothers older than Myrna, and a sister, Ellen, who is graduating from Lakeview High School this year.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Protects Your Hats

POLLY CRAMER
Wash and Dry, To bring back the softness, brush gently. Fabric softeners are wonderful for this. Now you are all set with a new and delightful hand puppet for the children. This is a wonderful way to make a new toy from an old, discarded one, if not for your own child, then for one less fortunate.

MRS. P. J.

DEAR POLLY—I liked the idea someone sent in for teasing the hair with toothbrush and want to share with you my uses for a toothbrush. I have found it is very handy for plumping up the pile on "fur" hats and collars because it pulls out less than a regular clothes brush. Toothbrushes also are great for "combing" stuffed animals so that they look like new.

If you carry a glove in your purse or the glove compartment of the car, it will wear nicely as a small area clothes brush. You could use another one for a shoe brush for suede or corduroy shoes. They take up little space.

MRS. J. D.

More Pep in the POP!

put together sandwich fashion. Really works fine as the frosting does not pull off on the waxed paper wrapping. MRS. R. M.

This I like. If the frosting is gone, you may keep my cake.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When washing fragile glasses, remember not to put them into the hot suds bottom first. Both glasses and suds are safer slipped into the hot water lengthwise. MRS. B. J.

DEAR POLLY—Don't be too hasty in throwing away those soiled stuffed animals. Remove the stuffing and hem in opening.

Tense Nerves Block Bowels

New laxative acts on colonic muscles...de-constipates overnight.

The muscular wall of your colon contains nerves known to medicine as Auerbach's Plexus. In regular people, these nerves tell the colon muscles to propel and expel waste from the body. But tense nerves or emotional upset can block your normal bowel habits. Your colon muscle impulses are no longer strong enough to eliminate waste—which dries and shrinks, further aggravating the condition.

The most effective relief, many doctors say, comes from a bulking action combined with a colonic nerve stimulating action. Of all leading laxatives only a new tablet called Colowax gives you this special combination for 1-way overnight relief:

- (1) Colowax stimulates colonic nerve network, to further activate and regularize its muscular "movement".
- (2) Colowax's unique re-bulking action helps re-tone tense colonic muscles.
- (3) Colowax moisturizes for easy passage without pain or strain.

Colowax even relieves chronic constipation overnight; yet it is clinically-proved gentle even for expectant mothers. Get Colowax today. INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢.
