The land which now has a race track and spectator stands will be refurbished for a model quarter horse show arena, according to association head, William "Red" Foster. The land was owned by Russ Enderlin of Alturas and had been used by the racing association over the past three years on a free use permit.

Construction will begin immediately on new white fencing around the grounds and on a "horse motel." The 30 box stalls will be open to free use of any member of the Model Quarter Horse Association when traveling through this area. A new well and sewer facilities are being installed for stock and will also be available for house trailers. An aluminum roof will be built over the grandstand.

Foster stated that the first horse show for the new arena, sponsored by the Model Quarter Horse Association, will be held the first Sunday in June. This show will include all working events and halter classes. It will be open to all horsemen regardless of registry of their horses.
