"HEY! COME BACK HERE AND TAKE THIS DARN BALLOON WITH YOU!"

Girl Dancer Loses Legs In Accident

WATERLOO, N.Y. (UPI)—How does a father tell a seven-year-old daughter whose legs are missing she will never dance again? The heart-tearing decision is what faced Orazio Marcuccelli today. He must tell his daughter, Deborah, she has no legs.

Debbie was one of 11 children in a school bus bound for Waterloo Central School last Wednesday morning when it was slammed into a utility pole by a skidding tractor-trailer.

Bus driver Ralph Worden, 32, and 30 of the children were injured. Debbie was sitting at the point of impact and lost her right leg. Doctors at Taylor-Crown Hospital here were forced to amputate her other leg below the knee Monday because of gangrenous infection.

State police said the truck driver pleaded guilty to running a stop sign and paid a $5 fine.

Hospital officials said the little brown-haired, brown-eyed girl from Seneca Falls is unaware of her condition.

"She has never complained," one said. "Her main worry is what happened to her five-year-old brother, Dale. He had a bruised forehead."

Two brothers, Danny, 12, and David, 10, also were on the bus. "I know how much Debbie loved dancing," her father said. "I don't know how I'm going to tell her she can't dance any more. We told her that some people had lost her money and asked what she wanted to do with it."

"She said she wanted a pocket book, a pair of gloves and a new pair of dancing shoes. What do I tell her? It was her greatest pleasure."

Men Date Blondes But Marry Brunettes

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: A woman who wrote to you wanted to know why blondes have a reputation for being sexier than other women. Because they are sexier. A blonde will attract more attention from men and I have proved it.

I am a beautician, 41 years old. Ten years ago I decided to make a personal survey. I dyed my hair every color on the chart—from midnight blue-black to silver blonde. I got lots of whistles and propositions as a red-head, but believe me, Ann, when I went blonde my popularity zoomed.

I noticed, too, that the blonder I got the more popular I became. As a honey blonde I did well, but when I hit the platinum shades—wow!

I married my present husband when I was an ash blonde. Two months later he asked me to go back to my natural shade—plain brown. He said, "Men like to date blondes but they don't want to be married to them." I agreed and we are getting along fine. No other man ever looks at me now—THE OLD RESEARCHER.

Dear Researcher: I am happy to have the results of your survey. A woman who has dyed her hair every color on the chart is fortunate that she has any hair left. If you had continued your research, you might also have learned how men feel about bald-headed women.

Dear Ann Landers: Two weeks ago I married a wonderful fellow. We spent five glorious days in Florida on our honeymoon. We never had any serious spats during our two-year engagement, so I believed this was good evidence we would get along well together after marriage.

Well, maybe I was wrong. We had the biggest fight of our lives on the third day of our honeymoon. The reason: I telephoned my mother three times.

My husband said he had no idea I was such a mama's girl. I'm very close to my parents and see no reason for him to be upset. I just wanted my folks to know I was thinking of them.

Is it wrong for a girl to be considerate of her parents after marriage?—R.N.C.

Dear R.N.C.: It's indeed admirable of a bride to telephone her parents while on her honeymoon.

but three calls in three days are two calls too many.

You overdid it, Chicken. He's got a right to wonder about such frequent contact.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a soldier who is stationed near a small town. I met a girl at the USO Center and we had one date.

Unfortunately, I brought her home two hours late. Her parents were waiting up and they were boiling mad. I had an argument with her father and swore at him a little. He told me to get out of the house and never to show my face around there again. The girl was grounded for a month.

I see the girl at the USO Center very often and I'm dying to take her out again. She says her folks would never allow it. I'm willing to go to her house and apologize but she says I had better stay away because her Dad is still sore.

Must people pay forever for one little mistake? I'm sorry and I want to square things. Can you help?—P.F.C.

Dear P.F.C.: Sorry, but I can't work up much sympathy for a guy who brings his date home two hours late and then swears at the girl's father.

Everything has a price-tag and you'll have to pay for your big mouth. Next time don't let your tongue go on active duty when your brains are on furlough.
