

GASOLINE ALLEY

Panel 1: Sarge: "Bitter cold, eh, Sarge?" Chip: "Yes, it's nasty, Chip."

Panel 2: Sarge: "I got a call early this morning. A guy's car wouldn't start. He's got plenty of battery."

Panel 3: Sarge: "Check the plugs, check the points, can't find a thing. I'll give you one guess." Chip: "No gas."

Panel 4: Sarge: "Right, no gas! Another guy has a flat. His tire is so thin you can see through it. No wonder it's flat!"

Panel 5: Sarge: "Seems like the colder it gets, the more inconsiderate people get, Chip!" Chip: "Same thing in the drug business!"

Panel 6: Sarge: "This kind of weather they phone in for a magazine or a package of facial tissues." Chip: "You can't be serious!"

Panel 7: Sarge: "Sure. I keep expecting some babe to want a hot chocolate in a paper cup, delivered!"

Panel 8: Sarge: "Well, it's like I say, the colder it gets, the more... well, doggone it!" Chip: "What's wrong, Sarge?"

Panel 9: Sarge: "I'm all out of tobacco, Chip, would you mind—" Chip: "Why, of course not, Sarge."

Panel 10: Sarge: "And I'll bring you some matches, your trading stamps, and it'll be our greatest pleasure to charge it to your account!"

LITTLE BROTHER HUGO

by Bill Perry

Panel 1: Hugo is building a snowman in a snowy landscape.

Panel 2: Hugo looks at a large snowman with a question mark above it.

Panel 3: Hugo uses a mallet to hit the snowman.

Panel 4: The snowman has a hole in its side.

Panel 5: A girl's face is visible through the hole in the snowman.

GLAMOR GIRLS

Panel 1: "AW, STOP WHINING--- YOU NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD." A woman scolds a dog.

Panel 2: "HOLD IT, MOMMY! THAT ISN'T DADDY!" A woman scolds a man.

Panel 3: "JUST A MINUTE THERE--- I HAVEN'T FINISHED MY SPEECH!" A woman scolds a man at a party.

Panel 4: "A PARTY? I'LL HAVE TO ASK MY FATHER. HE HANDLES MY PUBLIC RELATIONS." A woman scolds a man.

Panel 5: "IT'S A GREETING FROM THE BOYS AT THE LODGE." A man in a hospital bed is visited by a woman.

Panel 6: "GET WELL BERT" Three women hold signs for a man in a hospital bed.