

Grasping Secretary Grasps Boss, Too

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm engaged with that secretary who was ready to flip because her "bright, attractive, well-educated" boss closed his business conversations on the telephone with "bye bye."

It's sickening the way secretaries move in on a man's life and take him over.

She starts by reminding Mr. Worthington of his luncheon appointment. Then she reminds Mr. Worthington of his barbershop appointment. Next she tactfully suggests that he buy Mrs. Worthington something special for her birthday. (He had forgotten, so of course he's grateful.)

The next thing you know she goes along with him to select the wife's gift. After shopping they stop for a few martinis. Suddenly, Mr. Worthington becomes "Hal."

The rest is easy, Hal can't seem to get his work done during office hours—so he must work evenings. The night work doesn't sit very well at home and his wife begins to complain. This, of course, makes her a nag. So after 20 years and three kids, Mr. Worthington decides his wife doesn't understand him. They have nothing in common. She is a bore.

Don't tell me my imagination has run wild, Miss Landers, because it just happened to me.—MRS. WORTHINGTON

Dear Mrs. Worthington (which as everybody knows is a made up name): The secretary has an inside track but so does the nurse or the dental assistant—any female whose activities bring her into close contact with a male.

Familiarity does not always breed contempt. Sometimes it breeds other things. I've said it before and I'll say it again—no man ever listened to the siren's call unless he was ready to hear it.

Dear Ann Landers: You were right when you told "Irate Reader" that floors were made to walk on and she should not ask guests to remove their shoes even though the spike heels were ruining her vinyl entrance-way.

This is what the floor covering industry has to say: "Spike heels are causing the biggest headache in years. They not only leave noticeable indentations in hard-surface floors, they also cut the pile and puncture the backings of carpets. What can be done? Nothing. We can only hope for fickle fashion to dictate a change."

The woman who is considering a new floor should be told that there is no way to protect that floor against spike heels. Even asphalt and hardwood floors can be damaged.

A 112-pound girl wearing athletic heels exerts static pressure of 4,000 pounds per square inch every time she takes a step. A 224-pound man wearing the conventional shoe exerts 23 pounds per square inch.

So please urge women to demand saner heels, Ann.—A.P.

Dear A.P.: I'm torn, my friend. I like the athletic heels and I also like vinyl floors. Incidentally, I have both and they seem fairly compatible.

Dear Ann: Help! I have a chance to attend the Baptist Youth Conference next July in Palestine. I went to the Toronto Conference in 1968 and it was the most inspiring experience of my life. But my husband says he will divorce me if I go.

I would be attending as a representative of my parents' evangelistic organization and they would pay my expenses. Glenn and my parents do not get along. He says this trip offer is an effort on their part to cause trouble between us.

Please, Ann, tell me what to do?—REBA

Dear Reba: It would be nice if somehow you could get Glenn's blessings, because if you can't I say don't go.

He resents your parents' part in this, and he may have a valid point. Either persuade him or stay home and save your marriage.

Stanley Named President Of Chiloquin Pilot Group

CHILOQUIN — Bert Stanley, rancher and realtor, was named president of the Chiloquin Chapter of Oregon Pilots' Association at the last meeting, replacing Fred Markwardt. Stanley, who had served last year as vice president, gave that post over to Ted Markwardt, and Lindy Rogers is the new secretary-treasurer, taking over from Mrs. A. N. Starkey.

The association will have another active year for 1962, and is planning to construct restrooms at the airport this spring. During the summer the annual fly-in breakfast will be held.

Association members now number 15, with nine associate members. Five planes are stationed permanently at the airport.

There comes a time in every man's life when it's hard to justify those old-car repair bills. When you reach this point, come in and see us. With a tape measure, if you wish.

“What a work out! I must've climbed into twenty different wagons with my tape measure. But it got us what we needed. A COMET—with 4 doors and nothing but room! I even got their fancy model without stretching our budget. And they threw in the chrome baggage rack to make a deal. Well, what do you think of your husband. Pretty cagey buyer, eh?”
