Solons Pass Measure Requiring Okay On All Governor Appointees

SALEM (UPI)—A bill requiring Senate confirmation of all the governor's appointments passed the Senate 22-8 Monday despite a warning it would let the governor evade responsibility.

Sen. Thomas Mahoney, D-Portland, one of its two sponsors, said the bill has the approval of Gov. Mark Hatfield.

The Senate now confirms appointments to seven boards and commissions ranging from the State Board of Higher Education to the Port of Portland Commission.

Mahoney said the bill, which now goes to the House, will apply to the members of some 171 boards and commissions, including such major ones as the Highway Commission and the State Tax Commission.

He called it a "matter of consistency" to confirm all appointments. All confirmations would be by simple majority of the Senate, instead of the two-thirds vote now required for some positions.

Sen. Alfred Corbett, D-Portland, said Oregon's hodge - podge of boards and commissions often is criticized now for diffusion of authority and responsibility.

"I fear by following this method we will diffuse to an even greater extent the authority . . . and responsibility," he said.

He said the bill was contradictory to Hatfield's pleas for a streamlined executive branch.

The Senate already has passed a bill calling for the establishment of an interim legislative committee with the power to suspend rules or regulations issued by boards of commissions.

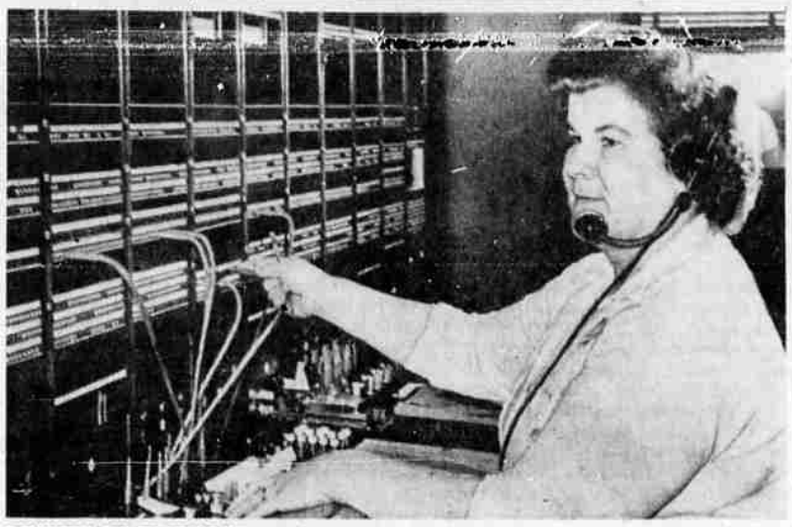
In the House, a bill to permit export of raw hemlock logs from Clatsop County and Port Orford white cedar was sent back to the House Natural Resources Committee.

Committee Chairman Clinton Haight, D-Baker, said the timber industry has proposed letting the State Forestry Department determine, under a formula, whether there is any market for processing the logs in Oregon. If not the department would grant an export permit.

The Senate confirmed the appointment of former mayor John Snider of Medford to the State Board of Higher Education.

After a wrangle, the Senate passed a bill to let judges impose smaller fines than at present for overloaded log trucks.

Rep. Don McKinnis, D-Summerville, introduced a measure calling for Oregon State University to make a comprehensive study of local property taxes. The bill would make $30,000 available for the program.



DELIVERY BY TELEPHONE — Above is Mrs. Della Chappelle, PTT operator, who became a long-distance Godmother Sunday morning when she gave emergency instructions for the delivery of a baby to a frantic father at Kekawaka, a nearly inaccessable mountain railroad stop 100 miles southeast of Eureka. The father, Walter Veilbig, successfully delivered his own six and one-half pound son.

Youth Hurt In Accident

One motorist received minor injuries when his automobile left the pavement, rolled over, and went into a ditch on the Old Fort Road, in one of two vehicular accidents reported to Oregon State Police during the weekend.

Injured was James Hatfield, 19, of 1915 Worden Avenue, who was treated for lacerations of the finger and shoulder at the Klamath Valley Hospital and later released.

Hatfield was northbound on Old Fort Road about 6 p.m., Saturday, when he lost control of his car on a curve. The vehicle veered across the highway and rolled over into a ditch on the east side of the road. It was removed by a local towing company.

Two other motorists escaped injury in a two-car collision on Highway 97, north of Klamath Falls, late Sunday afternoon.

The accident occurred as Ethel Hood, 33, 1734 Lark Street, was attempting to make a left turn from Highway 97 when the automobile she was driving was struck by a vehicle operated by Leo Vanwinkle of Fresno.

Vanwinkle's car was in the process of passing Miss Hood's vehicle as the latter was making the left turn, police said. The automobiles were northbound at the time of the collision.

Damage was major to both vehicles.

First New York Paper In 87 Days Hits Stands

NEW YORK (UPI)—New Yorkers scurried briskly to newsstands Monday to pick up their copies of the first major daily newspaper to be published in the city in 87 days.

The first 96-page edition of the New York Post rolled off the presses at 8 a.m. and were bundled into delivery vans for distribution throughout the city.

The end of the newspaper blackout was eagerly anticipated by commuters arriving at Hudson Terminal, Grand Central Station and other transportation centers in the city.

"Is the Post out yet?" was the question of the hour for those who arrived in the city a few minutes before the paper hit the streets.

The few copies that were available during the early trickle of distribution could have been sold for black market prices.

A batch of 50 Posts arriving at a Grand Central Station newsstand at 10:35 a.m. sold out in three minutes. Some customers bought as many as three copies, and a television commentator planning to exhibit a copy on camera found none left.

Robert G. Gray, assistant to Post Publisher Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, said today's press run would be around 500,000 copies. The prestrike sales circulation was 336,000 daily, Gray said.

The eight other major dailies, still closed by the city's longest and costliest newspaper strike, will meet today to resume contract talks.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner urged both sides "to accelerate the pace of negotiations."

Viet Nam Guerrillas Kill 2 Protestant Missionaries

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Communist guerrillas Monday wantonly shot and killed two Protestant missionaries, one of them an American, and seriously wounded two of their children along a highway 50 miles north of Saigon.

A U.S. spokesman said the incident occurred when seven persons from two missionary families were halted by Red guerrillas at a road block and ordered to get out of their car.

The missionary couples and their five children were waiting beside the highway while the guerrillas brandished rifles and submachine guns. Then, after they had been questioned by Communists for several minutes, Red guerrillas suddenly fired at the group, robbed them and made off with their Jeep-type vehicle.

A U.S. military spokesman identified the dead missionaries as Elwood Jacobsen, Foreston, Minn., and Gaspard Makil, Salcebo, The Philippines.

Two Children Wounded

He said the missionaries' wives escaped with their five children, including the Filipino couple's four-month-old twin girls. One of the twins and the Makil's 3-year-old boy were wounded but were expected to live.

Jacobsen was the first American missionary known to have been killed by the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in the past year.

Monday's shooting brought to three the number of foreign missionaries slain by the Viet Cong in the same period. A French priest was killed last spring near Kontun after he had warned Communist guerrillas to clear out of the area.

Three other missionaries, including a woman doctor, were kidnaped from a leprosarium near Ban Me Thuot last summer and are believed still to be in Communist hands.

Stopped at Roadblock

The two couples, the Jacobsens' were driving in a Land Rover—north from Saigon to Tung Nghia when they ran into a guerrilla roadblock.

Other cars, which the guerrillas had stopped, were queued up along the highway. The guerrillas, brandishing rifles and submachine guns, ordered everybody out onto the road.

The missionaries were questioned for several minutes. Then suddenly, there was a shot which appeared to be a warning then gun bursts instantly killed Jacobsen, Makil and a Vietnamese bystander from another car.

The 4-month-old girl, which Makil was holding in his arms, was wounded. Makil's son was hit in the leg. The others escaped injury.

The guerrillas robbed both families of all their money and some personal belongings, then fled into the jungle in the Land Rover, abandoning the vehicle later.

Pathologist Report Says Death Not Due To Cancer

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (UPI) — A pathologist's report Monday listed pneumonia "unrelated to lung cancer" as the cause of death of retired carpenter Otto Pritchard, who twice filed lung-cancer suits against a leading tobacco company.

Pritchard, 64, Pittsburgh, died late Saturday in Presbyterian University Hospital.

A statement by the hospital's pathologist issued following an autopsy attributed death directly to pneumonia. The statement said:

"The patient died of pneumonia unrelated to his lung cancer. In a preliminary examination there was no evidence of cancer or residual cancer. Microscopic examination will be held on tissues, but results will not be known for a day or so according to the hospital pathologist.

A federal court jury last Nov. 30 denied damages sought by Pritchard from the tobacco firm on the claim he had contracted lung cancer from smoking Chesterfield cigarettes for 25 years. However, the jurors decided cigarettes were one of the causes leading to cancer in Pritchard's right lung.

After the verdict, attorney James P. McArdle field an appeal for a third trial. Arguments on his motion have not yet been heard.

Pritchard's right lung was removed Dec. 11, 1953. He said cancer developed from smoking cigarettes. He originally sought damages of $1,250,000.

Shades Of Unlovely Past Come To Light

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I came from a family of nine children. My father was a drunk and Mom had a terrible time feeding us kids. When I was 15 I quit high school and left home.

I met lots of older men, and not of the highest type. I'm sorry to say I did some things I'm very much ashamed of. When I was working as a waitress I fell for a [illegible] who was separated from his wife. I lived with him for two years.

Then I met Dave. He was the first decent man I ever went with. Dave asked me to marry him even though he knew all about my rotten past. We've been married 12 years, have four children and I'm the happiest and most grateful woman alive. I came within an inch of being a rum-bucket and a tramp.

Last night Dave brought an out-of-town customer home to dinner. I almost died when I saw the guest. He's the man I lived with. I know he recognized me at once but he gave no hint.

Shall I tell Dave, or should I contact my old flame and beg him to keep his mouth shut? —LUCKY LEE

Dear Lucky: Keep your mouth shut. Unless the man is a miserable heel he'll do the same.

Dear Ann: I'd like to answer "Daddykins" — the father who wanted to know what to do about a teen-age daughter who wore his sweaters, jackets, shirts, socks —everything she could get her hands on.

You told him he wasn't doomed for life—just until his daughter got married. Well, I can tell him that marriage may end the problem for him, but it's just the beginning for his son-in-law.

My impeccably dressed son married a girl who is larger than he is. She was a tomboy who loved to wear her father's clothes. Her father was a large man and his clothes fit her fine. From the day she married my son she has been wearing his clothes and has wrecked almost every article in his wardrobe.

His sweaters are stretched out of shape, the sleeves in his jackets are popping at the seams. She stuffs herself into his jeans and slacks—even though they fit her like sausage casings.

So please tell the fathers who have this problem to knock the habit in the head early—and save some poor unsuspecting husband a lot of grief.—ONE WHO KNOWS

Dear One: Thank you for a most revealing letter. I didn't realize this habit was transferable. (Are you listening papa?)

Dear Ann Landers: My husband I had dinner at the home of friends last evening. When the hostess cleared the table she gathered all the meat scraps on her own plate and placed it on the floor. I thought I was hearing things when she shouted, "Here, Prince, come and get it!"

Much to my astonishment, the mutt came prancing into the dining room, and ate the left-overs right off the wedgewood.

[illegible] expression of astonishment on my face and told me in no uncertain terms that a dog's mouth is cleaner than a human's. She further stated that hot water and soap kill every kind of germ and that after the dish comes out of the dish washer it is safe for even a tiny baby.

On the way home my husband said he didn't think he would care to eat there again. I feel the same way. What is your opinion?—YONKERS

Dear Yonkers: Strictly from an esthetic point of view it would be better to keep the dog's dishes separate. Your friend's statements however were correct. So she'd be doing the dog a favor by not subjecting him to human germs.
