Cross Ruff Cuts Losers

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

My analysis of the opening lead was that West probably had a lot of diamonds. My review of the bidding told me that I wished my partner had settled for a small slam. My count of losers were two hearts and three diamonds in my hand but since a trump had not been opened I had a way to eliminate all five of them.

One loser could go on the ace of clubs and I could trump the other four of them. Maybe everything was going to be all right after all.

Next I noted that every trump in my hand and in dummy was high. Once I started to ruff in dummy I could ruff back and forth and no one could overruff me.

An alternate line of play was to set up dummy's clubs. That looked more risky and I chose the cross ruff.

I could not afford a trump lead because I needed all dummy's four trumps for my losers. Therefore, I had to get in all my side suit tricks before going after trumps.

My ace of diamonds took the first trick. My next plays were the ace and king of hearts. I ruffed a diamond in dummy and cashed dummy's ace of clubs. I discarded a heart, but a diamond discard would have been as good.

When no one ruffed my worries were over. I spread my hand announcing that I would ruff back and forth for the remaining tricks.

GOP Chiefs Skeptical Of Denials

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican leaders maintained a skeptical view today toward disavowals of interest in the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

Among men regarded as possible contenders, only Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York is acting like a candidate. And he is holding his troops in check.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona has said he intends to run for re-election next year. But he has asked his supporters to give him until the end of the year before he makes a final decision on bidding for the nomination.

Govs. George Romney of Michigan and William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania both told the Republican Convention Site Committee Monday that they did not intend to become candidates.

Romney accompanied a Detroit delegation and Scranton a Philadelphia delegation making bids for the 1964 National Convention.

It was pointed out to them that political parties, in choosing conventional sites, generally avoided the home states of serious contenders for presidential nominations.

"Just think how uneventful your life would be without these little skirmishes!"

Hamburger Cake Pay For Research Dog Hero

PORTLAND (UPI)—He got a Medical Research. The school's hamburger cake topped with hot-dog candles. And a monogrammed silver collar and matching leash. And a gold trophy. And a new home.

Receiving this largesse today was a long-tailed mongrel named Duke, honored at the University of Oregon Medical School as "Research Dog Hero of the Year," a title bestowed by the National Society for Medical Research.

The black and brown mutt has been an important member of the open heart surgery research team at the school.

He had open heart surgery a year and a half ago to create an "atrial septal" defect—a small window between two chambers of his heart—with which many children are born. He then underwent tests to help doctors learn more about how the heart works with such a defect.

The collar and trophy were awarded Duke today by Dr. Henry Harkins of the University of Washington Medical School, representing the National Society for
