Legislative Reform Bill Entered By Edith Green

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., said Monday "major surgery" is needed not only to keep Congress honest but to make sure everybody knows it is honest.

Mrs. Green dropped in the house hopper a legislative reform package including a bill to set up a 15-member commission on legislative ethics. It would study such problems as conflicts of interest and outside income of House and Senate members.

In another development, Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., of the House Administration Committee submitted for printing in the Congressional Record a report on overseas spending by house members on foreign travel last year.

Among items to be listed are outlays last summer by Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., of the education and Labor Committee on a much-publicized European trip that has become a focal point of much of the current concern about the congressional image.

Caution Note Sounded

Speaker John W. McCormack meantime sounded a note of caution about the development of anti-travel sentiment. While avoiding comment on the reform movement generally, he told newsmen legitimate travel by congressmen is "very important" and is in the best interest of the taxpayer.

Mrs. Green, without mentioning Powell by name, said it was a mistake to try simply to analyze or restrict an individual member for sime alleged abuse of Congressional privilege.

"I suggest we must go deeper in order to reach the major underlying problems, and perhaps perform some major surgery instead of applying the band - aid to cover and protect the wound that has been inflicted and is so painful at the moment," she said in a speech prepared for the house.

Mrs. Green warned against the danger that "erosion of public confidence" in Congress may become a real threat to the democratic process.

Financial Reports asked

In addition to her proposed commission on legislative ethics, Mrs. Green introduced bills to require members yearly to report on their outside financial dealings; to put legal ceilings on spending in primary, convention and general election spending; and to open to publication records of oral or written communications between members of congress or their staffs and agencies of the executive branch of government.

Doctor Fills Primate Job

PORTLAND (UPI) — Dr. William Montagna, 50, professor of biology at Brown University, Providence, R.I., has been named director of the Oregon Primate Research Center near Beaverton.

Dr. Montagna will assume his new duties Aug. 1, according to Dr. W. E. Baird, dean of the University of Oregon Medical School and administrator of the center.

Dr. Donald Pickering was head of the research center until recently when he resigned in a dispute over administrative policies.

Dr. E. S. West, acting director, will remain a the center as senior scientist. He is a professor of biochemistry at the Medical School.

Dr. Montagna also has been appointed professor of experimental biology at the medical school, subject to confirmation by the State Board of Higher Education at its meeting March 12.

Demented Father Beats Wife, Children To Death

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — A demented father beat his entire family—his wife and four children—to death with a hammer early Tuesday, police reported.

The father, Joseph M. Simichak, 39, a former mental patient and onetime Connecticut policeman, gave himself up to police. He was booked on five counts of murder.

Police said he battered his family with a claw hammer because he apparently was in financial difficulty and unable to support them.

Dead are his Japanese-born wife, Nobuko, 38, and their children, Franklin, 4, Patricia, 3, Elizabeth, 2, and Katherine, 6 months.

"I have hurt my family," Simichak told the desk officer after walking into police headquarters. He was wet and disheveled from walking in the rain. His clothes were stained with blood.

At the Simichaks' first floor apartment in downtown Manchester, police found three of the children dead in bed. The wife and another child, Franklin, were on the floor near by, mortally injured. They died a short time later at a hospital.

Simichak, unemployed and a former airman, was treated nearly three years ago as a mental patient. He was described then as a "schizophrenic, catatonic type." Doctors said he had a split personality that bordered at times on imbecility.

A few hours before the killings, Simichak went to a corner store to buy food for his family.

The grocer, John Damalas, said Simichak told him:

" 'I have to look after my kids. If we have to, we'll eat corn bread and water. I brought them into the world, I got to take care of them.' "

Knowledge Of Communism Called Great Weapon

SALEM (UPI)—"Our ignorance of the communist system could well be the greatest single weapon in the arsenal of our mortal competitors."

So states the teacher guide "Understanding the Nature of Communism" which was considered last week by the State Board of Education. Scheduled approval of the project was postponed to June to give board members more time to study the guide.

"As Americans we have often been slow and apathetic in our reactions to this new menace because we have failed to understand the nature of the aggressor," the teacher guide explains.

Teachers are warned "communism and democracy need to be presented accurately and fairly; otherwise, what is presented will be discounted by youth and considered as propaganda."

It is recognized there is the danger of adverse public reaction to such a course.

Teachers are cautioned to spend considerable time previewing classroom exhibits and films for "content, vocabulary, and controversial issues in order to be better prepared to give direction to discussion by the students."

Instructors are asked to keep watch on the community pulse. After completion of the course, teachers are advised to determine if the reaction of parents has been understanding and favorable. Has the general public of the community received the study favorably and supported it? If not, upon what factors has this unfavorable attitude turned?

Work on the course began in 1961, shortly after Supt. of Public Instruction Leon Minear took office.

The guide was prepared by teachers Robert L. Frantz and Wesley F. Johnson of Parkrose High School in cooperation with the State Education Department.

The guide was referred to patriotic, professional and civic organizations and groups during the 1961-62 school year. The work was then revised to incorporate suggestions.

Dr. Ben Simmons of the Department of Education said about a dozen states now offer such courses. He said such courses were required in Florida and Louisiana.

While the course is designed for high school seniors, a companion work was prepared for use in the lower grades.

It is titled "The American Heritage," and is now required of all eighth graders.

Trusty Grabbed After Shooting

EUGENE (UPI) — A state policeman exchanged shots with a man at Goshen south of here Tuesday morning. Neither was wounded and the man surrendered after other officers arrived.

The man was identified as Thomas Edwin Elliott, 29, a trusty who walked away from the Eugene-Lane County jail Monday.

State Policeman Russell Marsh said he was checking a suspicious person near the Goshen fire hall shortly before 7 a.m. when the man pulled a pistol and began firing. Marsh ducked behind his police car and returned the fire. He said the man surrendered when three other officers arrived.
