Split Schedule Plan Adopted For KUHS

split shift operation because they considered it the lesser of two evils and the best plan for education.

When the meeting was opened to audience participation, Mrs. Phyllis Wales, 4512 Clinton Avenue, said she felt monitoring the halls and some good firm discipline would probably solve most of the noise problem.

Board member Borsting said monitoring isn't the final solution. We're talking about just normal noise here, not rowdiness, he said.

McKinny added that he felt students must have a reasonable atmosphere to work in. There is a point where too much strong arm action makes a student rebellious and even harder to handle.

Herbert Breed, 2709 Derby Street, agreed with Mrs. Wales, saying he was sure more discipline could make the extended schedule work. "The split shift brings more problems, not less," he said.

Some students will be going to class in the dark and others will be walking home at the end of the day in the dark.

Mrs. Ted Hyde, 1320 Pacific Terrace, said that if there weren't enough teachers to monitor and if student monitors were unsatisfactory, monitors from the outside could be hired to keep the halls quiet. Truancy might be stopped by requiring a student to carry his schedule on his person.

Board member Margaret Sheridan added that there might be some way to affix the schedule to the back of a student's student body card.

One man in the audience said he personally knew two teachers who said they'd quit under the split shift plan.

McKinny answered that about 52 teachers have already told him that they'd quit if the high school continued on the extended schedule.

Dr. Robert Payne, 1707 Kane Street, felt that neither schedule was good, but that since he entrusted his children to these trained people (teachers) most of the day, he would also let the professional people who are aware of all the problems at hand make the decisions on school scheduling.

Frank Drew, 1919 Van Ness Street, said that the goal at the high school was a better education for the students and he felt we would fall short of the goal if students were limited to taking five subjects. He said this system would make it difficult for a student to prepare for college.

"We're thinking about the best education too, we also have children participating in the same program and we feel that we'll have a better educational program under a split shift. The students are handicapped now and are not getting the benefit of good working conditions. We feel that a student would end up better educated with five subjects," McKinny said.

All the academic subjects would still be available and the administration didn't feel that college preparation would suffer.

Mrs. Wales wondered where the children were going to go the other half of the day. She felt that there still would be a disciplinary problem and the children would still be free to cause trouble with the downtown merchants.

It was also suggested to the administration and board that portable classrooms be brought down from OTI to house the students.

"We could house them this way," Hunsaker said, "but the special facilities still wouldn't be available."

Three Klamath Falls men indicted by the Klamath County grand jury about 5 p.m. Thursday, were arraigned before Judge David R. Vandenberg early Friday and the arraignments of two others were continued until later the same day, it developed in Circuit Court.

Indicted were Robert Leon Chocktoot, 19, burglary in a dwelling; Hershel Earl Holloman, 45, burglary not in a dwelling; Eugene Samplauski, 29, obtaining money and property by false pretenses; and Stanley Allen Coon, 22, and James Allen Stone, 19, charged on the same indictment with burglary not in a dwelling. The arraignment of the latter two defendants was continued until 2 p.m. Set for the same time was the sentencing of Samplauski, who entered a plea of guilty to the check writing charge during his arraignment and then waived the 48-hour waiting period before receiving sentence.

Samplauski, accused of issuing a fictitious check in the amount of $10 to Clem Bortis, 2367 South Sixth Street, last Oct. 25, was also named on a not true bill returned by the grand jury and which involved another check writing charge.

In addition to the not true bill, the grand jury returned four true bills and two secret indictments. Judge Vandenberg then set 9 a.m. Thursday, March 21, as the time he would receive entries of plea from Chocktoot and Holloman.

Chocktoot received probation Feb. 14 for the burglaries of two local stores and was arrested by city police on another burglary charge when his probation turned into effect the same evening.

Erven Savio, 3339 Shasta Way, returned to his home that night to find Chocktoot in the house with two of Savio's watches and a pearl ring in his pockets.

Some time later police arrived and found a guitar and camera outside the house. They said the items had apparently been taken from the nearby Rosetta Crain residence, 1650 Homedale Road.

Holloman is accused of the theft of two chain saws and various other tools from the city street department garage, last Feb. 20. The defendant had been charged with vagrancy and later with burglary when police found that a missing saw and one in his possession had the same serial numbers.

Holloman told police that he purchased the saw in Silverton last December.

Three Arraigned In Circuit Court After Indictments By Grand Jury

Slayer Dies On Gallows

FORT MADISON, Iowa (UPI) — A condemned kidnaper-slayer, calm and composed until the last moment, died on the gallows today still maintaining his innocence.

Victor Harry Feguer, 27, showed not the slightest sign of fear as he mounted the 16 wooden steps before plunging to his death at the end of a rope for the 1960 abduction-slaying of a prominent Dubuque physician.

Barely 25 minutes before the execution went to his death at the Iowa State Penitentiary gallows, he joked with the two priests who sat with him during his final hours of life.

As he sat in a swivel chair in his "death row" cell, the chair suddenly snapped back. "If I'm not careful, I will break my neck prematurely," Feguer said to the priests.

A few minutes before, he made a reference to the dim hope that the President of the United States might spare him from his date with the hangman for the federal crime of kidnapping.

"Well, John F. Kennedy, if you're going to make any sudden moves, you'd better make them now," Feguer commented.

Father John B. Bremner said Feguer, a native of St. Johns, Mich., professed his innocence of the slaying of Dr. Edward Bartels, 34, until the end. "Feguer continued to maintain he did not kill him or that he was even present at the time the crime was done," Father Bremner said.

Feguer plunged through the gallows trap at 6:34 a.m. EST and was pronounced dead 9 minutes and 45 seconds later at about 6:44 a.m.

He had planned to go to his death nourished only by a single olive—"The fruit of the tree of peace"—as a sign of devotion during the lenten season. He held to this plan for his "last meal" at midnight but gulped down a cup of coffee about 3:15 a.m.

COMMUNITY SERVICE — Officers and members of Police Post and Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, recently presented a contract to the Curtis Publishing Company representative. Funds from the sale of national magazines are used to buy hospital equipment, beds and wheel chairs which are loaned to local residents on a first come, first served basis to VFW members and their families, other veterans and non-veterans at no charge. This is a VFW Post 1383 community service program. Left to right are Sam Haynes, Fred Mandella, post commander, Benny McDermott, Curtis Publishing Company, Robbie Corzett, Sophie Mandella, auxiliary president, Dr. C. W. Davis, Keith Walrath and Lazelle Rose.

Cars Crash After Skid

Slippery, snow covered streets were blamed for a two-car accident that occurred on Altamont Drive near Johns Avenue, early Thursday morning, and resulted in minor facial lacerations to the operators of both vehicles, the state police have reported.

Injured were Betty Menius, 1918 Summers Lane, and Daniel Doby, 927 Lincoln Street, both of whom were taken to the Kingsley Field Dispensary where they were examined and released.

The accident occurred as Doby, proceeding southbound on Altamont Drive, made a left turn in the vicinity of Johns Avenue and automobile driven by Mrs. Menius, who was travelling in the opposite direction on Altamont.

Both vehicles were removed by a local towing company.
