Teacher Pay Increase Voted Down

SALEM (UPI) — The Senate voted 16-13 today to kill a proposed increase in minimum pay for teachers.

The bill called for increases of from $3,700 to $4,000 for teachers with bachelor's degrees and from $4,000 to $4,400 for those with master's degrees. Both proposed figures had been cut $400 by the Senate Education Committee.

The minimum pay bill, similar to one the senate passed in the closing days of the 1961 session, would have affected only 12 teachers.

Sen. Al Flegel, D - Roseburg, strongly urged passage of the increased scales because "it could result in pressure to increase all teachers' salaries in Oregon."

He said it would indicate to prospective teachers that Oregon was willing to provide adequate pay.

Also speaking for the bill was Sen. Andrew Naterlin, D-Newport. He said his only regret was that the bill had been shaved in committee.

Sens. Ward Cook, D - Portland, and Walter Leth, R-Salem, voiced opposition.

Cook said the bill wouldn't accomplish anything and Leth said it would take authority from local school boards.

Voting against the measure in support of Cook and Leth were Sens. Eddie Ahrens, R - Salem; Harry Boivin, D-Klamath Falls; R. F. Chapman, D - Coos Bay; Robert Elstrom, R-Salem; John Hare, R-Hillsboro; Glenn Hinton, D-Lebanon; John Inskeep, R-Oregon City; Thomas Mahoney, D-Portland; L. W. Newberry, R-Ashland; Boyd Overhulse, D-Madras; Walter Pearson, D - Portland; E. D. Potts, D-Grants Pass; Daniel Thiel, D-Astoria, and Ben Musa, D-The Dalles.

Sen. Arthur Ireland, R - Forest Grove, was absent.

Two Jailed By Police On Weekend

The Klamath Falls Police lodged two Klamath Falls' men in jail over the weekend, one for drunk driving, failure to remain at scene of accident and no operator's license, and the other for drunk and disorderly conduct.

Bail was set at $400 on Edward Bryant Jr., 25, 734 Lark Street, after he was charged with traffic violations resulting from an accident he was involved in Friday at 8:10 p.m. on South Sixth Street near Martin.

Mrs. Crete Robinson, 73, 1433 Homedale Road, a passenger in the other car, driven by Melvin J. Robinson, 37, 2125 Homedale received minor injuries.

Robinson told police he was driving south on South Sixth when his car was hit from behind by the Bryant vehicle. Robinson said he pulled over to the curb, but Bryant failed to stop. Robinson then pulled out from the curb and followed the Bryant vehicle sounding his horn in an attempt to stop Bryant.

Both vehicles were stopped on Sixth Street by a city patrolman and Bryant was arrested for leaving the scene and not having a license.

At the police station Bryant asked to take a blood test, which resulted in a .20 reading. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication. At this time Bryant was arrested for drunken driving.

The damage to both vehicles was moderate, city police reported.

Zeima Ochito, 335 Commercial Street, called city police about 4:50 a.m. Saturday and said her husband, Burdette, was causing a disturbance.

Ochito resisted police when they attempted to take him into custody and he had to be put into the squad car forcibly.

He was placed in jail on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct and his bail was set at $300.

Wooly West Horse Rustling Charge Slated For Action In Circuit Court

By DICK BRIGGS

A horse stealing case with all of the dramatics of a TV story of the old West was to come to a climax in Klamath County Circuit Court at noon today, when Judge David B. Vandenberg was expected to arraign Wilbur Hickson, 42, and Perry Chocktoot, 30, on charges of larceny of livestock.

The defendants were among various others named on secret indictments returned by the grand jury to Judge Vandenberg last Friday. Three of those cited, including Hickson, were apprehended by sheriff's deputies last week. The other two were implicated in two unrelated shootings and are J. D. Kness, about 38, of Beatty, and Robert Hult, of Agency, both charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Hult, also indirectly involved in the horse larceny case, is accused of larceny of a horse in the thigh with a bullet fired from a large caliber rifle last March 1.

Kness was indicted for wounding his estranged wife, Gloria, three or four times with bullets discharged from a .22 caliber pistol and also for the beating of the victim's mother, Mrs. Doris Bell, during an incident at the latter's home in Beatty, Feb. 25.

The story of the horse stealing incident developed Oct. 2 when Monroe Faithful and Lavina Henry, both of Beatty, reported to Sheriff Murray "Red" Britton that two colts had been stolen from their property.

Sheriff Britton said Monday that Chocktoot and Hickson, both of whom have served prison terms for murder, were suspected of the theft at the time it was committed.

The report sent sheriff's deputies to remote parts of Indian Reservation Lands and public grazing lands in Klamath County, as well as other areas in the county and Northern California to seek the missing colts.

Meanwhile, the stolen animals were grazing unnoticed among other livestock about eight miles north of the scene of the theft.

Late this winter, as sheriff's deputies extended their search into Deschutes County in the north and Anderson, Calif., to the south, Chocktoot moved one of the colts to his residence at 1243 Kane Street and transported the other to the property of Bob Hult at Agency, according to the sheriff.

The first break in the case occurred about the end of February after Chocktoot, Hickson, and three others had been named on two indictments charging them with the larceny of two saddles and the beating of Francis Hutchinson of Beatty.

At that time the sheriff's office was informed that Hickson and Chocktoot, accompanied by four others, had stolen the colts and relocated them north of Beatty, before later transporting them elsewhere.

Acting immediately on the tip, deputies traced one of the animals to the Bob Hult home at Agency and located the other at the Chocktoot residence on Kane Street.

Hult told the sheriff that Chocktoot had presented him with the colt. To later interrogation by the sheriff, Chocktoot stated that he had purchased the animals in Idaho but was unable to name the seller.

Two days later, according to the sheriff's office, a shooting at Agency led the sheriff to believe that Chocktoot had dispatched a killer to slay Hult for implicating him in the theft of the colts, but a subsequent investigation by deputies proved otherwise.

Hult, indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon as a result of the shooting at Agency, stated that he was in his kitchen when he observed a man, later identified as Howard Wise, peering through a window from outside of the house. Hult said he picked up his .25-35 caliber rifle and fired through the window at Wise, who then darted away from the house.

As Wise was leaving the vicinity post haste, Hult appeared on the front porch and fired a parting shot at the runner.

The bullet struck Wise in the leg and he was removed by his assailant to the Hult house, where he remained until a Chiloquin ambulance transported him to the Klamath Valley Hospital the following day.

The story told by Wise was at variance with the one related by Hult. Wise said that he and some others were drinking with Hult at the latter's house moments before the shooting. Wise stated that Hult ordered him to get a bottle of wine from elsewhere in the house. He did so, but not quickly enough to suit Hult, who began firing the rifle at the floor near Wise's feet.

Wise rushed out of the house and seconds later Hult appeared on the front porch where the shooting occurred, according to the victim's statement.

Meanwhile, Chocktoot had come to believe that his ex-wife, Joyce, and her mother, Mrs. June Dunn, had been the informants who implicated him in the horse larceny case, after the shooting incident at Agency. Chocktoot, along with Hickson, appeared at the home of Mrs. Dunn, 1226 Kane Street, and threatened her with, "I'm going to kill you."

Chocktoot allegedly forced his way through the front door of the house and began struggling with Mrs. Dunn, who finally broke away and ran to her neighbors' harm.

City Police Investigate Weekend Burglary Tries

A break-in at the Pacific Linen-Mechanics Uniform Service, the theft of an automobile and a case of robbery by force were reported to the city police over the weekend.

Police reported that the back door of the linen cleaning service, 325 Market Street, was kicked in late Friday night or early Saturday morning and the office safe was broken into.

Apparently nothing was taken, however, police said. There are no suspects in the case so far.

Bryon Hall, 320 Upham Street, notified police that about 85 records valued at $85 were stolen from him while he was on his way home from a dance at the Klamath Auditorium at 9:45 p.m. Friday.

The robbery occurred on South Tenth Street, between Main and Pine streets. Hall said two young men wearing OTI letterman jackets jumped out of a 1949 or 1950 light green or yellow Hudson and threatened bodily harm if he didn't turn over the records.

City police are investigating the case, but have not made any arrests yet.

Lee W. Klinger, 4147 Douglas Street, reported to police that his 1961 two-door green Chevrolet was stolen from the Jukealand Used
