

Coquille Dumps Henley For First Cage Loss 67-62

By JERRY WAGGONER

COOS-BAY (Special)—The proverbial roof caved in on the Henley Hornets Tuesday night as the white-hot Coquille Red Devils shot the eyes out of the basket to hand the state's top-ranked Hornets their first defeat in 24 games to eliminate them from the tourney finals 67-62.

The Hornets met the Vale Vikings tonight at 7:30 for third place.

There was little the Hornets could do with the Devils because a fired-up team from just 18 miles south of Coos Bay hit virtually every shot they put up, falling down from near mid-court or under the basket.

The percentage chart had the Red Devils connecting on 31 of 64 shots for 48 per cent, a fabulous percentage for a high school team. The Hornets weren't cold from the field, either. They hit 23 of 65 for a good 43 per cent, but it was a mighty cold Hornet team in the first half. They got only 11 points in the first period to 14 for the Red Devils. The second period was the straw which broke the camel's back. The Henley quintet canned only 12 points to 19 for the Coquille team, and that was the difference.

GOODING STARS
The Hornets outscored the Devils in the final two periods but couldn't make up the margin although they made a valiant attempt.

The Red Devils tore a page from the book of Elmira's strategy of Monday night when they piled two and three men back on big Kent Gooding and kept the ball from getting to him. This worked to a degree in that they held the 6-8 giant to "only" 20 points. He was the leading scorer in the game. He hit on 10 shots but got off only 19 in the contest. He also got only one free throw in the game, which is the lowest total of his career at the charity line.

The big Henley lad led the rebound charge for the Hornets. This is what makes the outcome of the game appear so ridiculous. The Henley team pulled down 32 rebounds while the Red Devils had only 24. That speaks for the accuracy of the Devils' shooting game. The Hornets were taking rebounds off the boards when the Red Devils missed, but that was not often enough as far as the Hornets were concerned.

It was apparent that the pressure of winning 23 straight games was heavy on the shoulders of the Hornets. Time and again they lost the ball on bad passes, let rebounds slip through their hands, travelled far too much and just didn't play up to their potential in the first half. The Hornets got only 23 points in the first half.

guard got the Hornets off to a good start with a long jump shot for the first two points of the game. But that basket was to be the lone two-pointer for him during the night. He hit only one of eight shots as compared to the 14 points he made Monday night.

HORNETS HOT
The game remained on an even keel until the Red Devils took charge on a long jump shot by Leatherwood. He emulated that shot 30 seconds later to give the Devils a 14-10 lead. Earl Albritton hit a free throw with three seconds remaining in the period for the 14-11 first period score.

The Hornets began the second period as though they were on their way when Albritton swished two long set shots from the wing and Gooding tipped in an errant shot for a 17-14 Henley lead. Gooding then left the game for a brief rest and that was the turning point of the game. With the big center on the bench, the Devils got the message and put together 11 straight points. Before Gooding could get back into action they had a 25-17 lead, but the Red Devils were charged up to a fever pitch by that time.

Gooding and Beymer hit three buckets between them but the Devils remained hot and hit eight points to take a 33-23 lead into the dressing rooms at the half.

The puffed Marshfield gymnasium was buzzing at the intermission that the Devils couldn't possibly keep up the fantastic shooting in the second half.

They had hit on 15 of 33 in the first half for a high 42 per cent. They not only didn't cool off, but got hotter. The Hornets also got hotter, but the heat came too late and there wasn't enough of it.

Steve Reiling connected for three points to open the third period and slashed the margin to 33-26. The Devils opened up their big guns again and hit for seven straight points to build their lead to the biggest margin of the game—40-25. After a brief exchange of baskets, the Hornets put on a spurt in the final minute and 14 seconds of the period to split the nets for eight straight points by Gooding, Sanders and Albritton. They trailed by eight points 40-40 going into the final period.

SEMI-STALL
The Red Devils got the opening bucket on a fall-away jump shot by Shely but Gooding hit two baskets in a row for a 50-44 score. The Devils went into a semi-stall with 6:16 remaining in the game. The Hornets, a tired group by this time, relaxed somewhat and the Devils matched them bucket for bucket on a brilliant display of pressure shooting from outside to hold onto the precious margin. Workhorse center Ed Metcalf kept the Devils alive with two baskets for a 58-49 lead with 4:02 left.

The Hornets put together six straight points with 1:34 left in the game to slash the lead to six points and the crowd came to its feet. Metcalf hit a free throw for a 63-56 lead and Dave Wood got a wide-open layup to give the Coquille team a 65-56 lead with only 45 seconds left.

The Hornets tried desperately in the closing seconds by stealing the ball twice with Gooding hitting a pair of buckets and Albritton another with 15 seconds left and cut the margin to three points, 65-62. But in that scramble John Snider had slipped down the court. A full court pass was made to him and he hit the final bucket with 10 seconds left.

Four Red Devils hit in double figures with Leatherwood connecting for 17 points. Shely popped 16, Metcalf 15 and Wood 12 for the winners.

Gooding again led the Hornets with 20 points and Albritton notched 15. Beymer connected for 12.

FINALE TONIGHT
Coquille and Central meet at 8:45 p.m. today for the A-2 championship.

Central held down a cold-shooting Vale for a 57-46 victory in the other semifinal game Tuesday night to gain the championship round.

Vale and Henley fight it out for third place at 7:30 p.m. today.

In the consolation bracket, North Catholic defeated Yamhill-Carlton 71-53 and Elmira beat Newport 63-51. North Catholic and Elmira met in the consolation finals at 2 p.m. today.

Central splurged for 15 points in the third quarter to hold Vale and move into the finals. Greg Hartman paced Central's attack with 16. Vale's Ron Smith had 17.

Elmira entered the consolation finals in a rough game against Newport. Officials counted 51 fouls. Elmira led at the half 36-26. Henry Drummonds of Elmira was high with 22. Dick Welk led Newport with 16.

The Royals of North Catholic swamped Yamhill-Carlton in Tuesday's first consolation game, 71-53, stepping out in front in the early minutes. They shot .500 for the first half. Ed Gorman and Don Adams shared North Catholic's scoring honors with 14 apiece although each played only half a game.

Bill Jones was the bright spot in the vain Yamhill-Carlton attack with 18. Half time score favored North Catholic, 38-22.

Providence, Marquette Advance To Semifinals In National Tourney

By DICK JOYCE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ray Flynn, a protege of former pro star Bill Sharman, has advanced Providence College into the semifinals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament against Marquette and bolstered the Friars' chances of winning the classic for the second time in three years.

"This is a better team than our team that won the NIT in 1961," said the 6-2, 180-pound Flynn, who scored 38 points in second-seeded Providence's 106-96 victory over Miami of Florida Tuesday night.

"We're better this year," chimed in little Vinnie Ernst, who contributed 11 assists. "We're better balanced. Everybody can do everything."

Marquette Routs St. Louis

Third-seeded Marquette shot 51 per cent from the field and routed St. Louis, 84-49, in Tuesday night's other quarter-final game before 15,589 fans at Madison Square Garden. After Providence meets Marquette Thursday night, Villanova takes on Canisius in the other semifinal.

"I used to watch Bill Sharman all the time as a hall boy with the Boston Celtics," Flynn said. "I don't think Red Auerbach (Celtics' coach) even knew who I was. But Sharman perfected my shooting and told me my mistakes. Since I'm not so tall he showed me how to get those quick shots off."

"It also took a lot of hard work," he added.

Jim Stone scored 26 points and grabbed 12 rebounds while Jim Thompson had 17 points and Bob Kovalski added 14 for the free-wheeling Friars from Rhode Island.

Glaser Scores 23

Ron Glaser, who shot 7 of 10 from the field in the first half, finished with 23 points in pacing Eddie Hickey's Marquette team to victory. He connected on 11 of 15 field goal attempts all told.

"This club is equal to any team I've brought into the NIT," said Hickey, who, ironically, led St. Louis to the title in 1948 and is making his 10th appearance in the event.

Bob Hornak scored 20 points and Dick Nixon tallied 18 to help the Marquette attack. Marquette, which made 19 of 34 from the field to open a 40-26 halftime lead, continued its hot-shooting to finish with 33 for 65 from the floor.

Saturday's final will be held at 4 p.m. EST and will be nationally televised.

NCAA Cage Teams Rated Among Top Fives In History

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Officials of the NCAA pointed with more than a little pride today to the national collegiate basketball finals coming up here this weekend, with a four-team field for the silver anniversary tournament that might be the best yet.

In defending champion Cincinnati, Duke, Loyola of Chicago and Oregon State, the finals have the nation's first, second and fourth ranking teams in the UPI ratings; while Oregon State, ranked 14th, knocked off No. 3 Arizona State to get here.

All told, the four have won 100 games and lost but 12. Cincinnati comes in with a 25-1 record, Loyola at 27-2, Duke at 26-2, while Oregon State has lost more than the other three combined, a 22-7.

Top Offensive Club

Loyola is the nation's top offensive club with a 92.9 per game scoring average; Cincinnati is the national defensive leader, holding its opposition to a 52.8 average; and Duke had the best shooting average in the nation this season at .517.

Individually, the field will include four of the five members of this year's UPI All-America team — Ron Bonham and Tom Thacker of Cincinnati, Art Heyman of Duke, and Jerry Harkey of Loyola.

Tournament chairman B. A. Shively of the University of Kentucky pointed out one reason why the quality of the field is so high. "This is the first year," Shively noted, "that every team eligible and invited to play in this tournament has accepted."

Shively didn't mention by name the National Invitation Tournament which for years battled the NCAA for the top teams, but he said, "before this year some teams have accepted bids from another tournament, and in some cases we had a racial problem."

Box-Office Bonanza

The tournament has become a box-office bonanza, too. All of Freedom Hall's 16,500 seats were sold within hours after they went on sale — weeks before any of the contestants were determined.

Shively noted, "Not even Oregon State has turned back a single one of its ticket allotment. They're coming in here in several plane loads with a pep band and the whole works."

The Oregon State delegation, in fact, was scheduled to be the first on the scene, flying in from the coast this evening in time to work out on a local college floor. The others will be in Thursday afternoon, Duke and Loyola by air, Cincinnati by bus.

Loyola and Duke meet in the first game — The Eastern semifinal — Friday night, with Cincinnati opening its national title defense against Oregon State in the second game, the Western semifinal.
