Field Trip Scheduled

The Nature Society of the Klamath Basin will sponsor a field trip to the Tulelake National Wildlife Refuge on Saturday, March 30. All interested persons are to meet at the Tulelake National Wildlife Headquarters at 9 a.m.

The trip will be led by E. J. O'Neill, wildlife biologist of the refuge staff. O'Neill, who has planned the itinerary, believes that the trip should prove most interesting as this is the height of the northern migration season and some of our summer residents should be here by this date.

Anyone interested in such a trip is urged to attend, bring lunch and water.

Aluminum is one of the most abundant elements in the earth's crust, being exceeded only by oxygen and silicon.

ROLAND JAMES, owner of the Davis Creek Store, was helping a friend tear down an old barn at Orland, Calif., last Friday when he slipped from the top of his pickup, which he was using as a scaffold. Ligaments were pulled in his leg and he is wearing a cast.
