

I was just thinking...

WHEN YOU REMEMBER how far a bug has to crawl to get anywhere at all, don't you feel tall?

Poetry is dreams set to music.

You don't need to be rich if you own love, a child's laughter, supper on the table, and a flower by the doorstep.

What America lacks
Is a tax
On women in slacks.

Who else but a dog will still love you after you've forgotten to feed him and spanked him for crying about it?

If you stand on a corner looking up at the sky long enough, everyone else will look up, too. Why can't we apply the same principle to living?

Tolerance is a stupid word—or would you like to be tolerated?

We outlast everything except our beliefs, but we're less careful of them than the perishables.

Self-pity is the only sorrow in which we take a certain amount of pleasure. That, in itself, is the greatest pity.

THE ONLY TIME it's wise to mind everybody else's business is while driving down a highway during the rush hour.

If we had a nickel for every worthwhile thought or deed we've contributed to humanity, most of us would be on relief.

The day inevitably comes when Peter Pan flies out the window for the last time, and we are home in the nursery forever. But every man should be permitted his own Never-Never Land and allowed to visit it now and then all by himself.

Courage and bravery are seven-letter twins born of a four-letter parent: fear.

The naïve believe in magic, the wise believe in God. Each is a wondrous joy, and the only difference between them is that magic is fantasy clothed in truth and God is truth clothed in faith.
