Two-Suiter Transferred

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
How does the Jacoby Transfer Bid handle a two-suiter opposite an opening no-trump? Is there any way to transfer to both suits?

The answer to the second question is "No." The answer to the first is that responder transfers to one suit and then bids the other. This bid of a new suit after a transfer bid is a further forcing bid.

Thus, South's two heart bid is the transfer to spades and a bid of three heart bid shows that he has hearts also, and is a further forcing bid.

North just has 16 high card points, but he notes that he may have just the right cards for a slam. His four diamond bid can't really be showing a diamond suit and must be a slam try of sorts.

South rebids four hearts confirming his two suiter and North goes to five hearts. He does not use Blackwood because it won't do him any good to know about one ace—he wants to know about South's club holding.

South looks at his singleton club and bids the slam which is a lay down.

Of course, the slam might be bid in any system. It just happens that the transfer bid made it easy.

Q—The bidding has been:
East South West North
1 ♦ Double Pass 1
Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦
Pass 2

You, South, hold:
▲A876 ♥A42 ♦42 ♣K76
What do you do?

A—Pass. You have good spades, but only 13 high points and no singleton. You have already done full justice to your hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding one spade over your double your partner bids two spades. What do you do now?

25 Attend Workshop

LAKEVIEW — Twenty five persons attended the one-day workshop conducted by Marvin N. Shearer, Oregon State University irrigation specialist, held recently at Silver Lake. John Kiewow, county extension agent, reports that the workshop method of extension teaching has gained much popularity in Lake County this winter.

During January and February an average of 65 farmers and interested agricultural businessmen and Forest Service personnel attended a five-week workshop on soils and fertilizer. The session ran for 2½ hours, one day a week, and was held at Lakeview with average attendance of 43 and at Silver Lake with an average attendance of 22.

Kiewow reports that participants were given an opportunity to evaluate the course and vote on types of workshops they would like for next year. Without exception participants indicated they like the workshop method. Livestock was voted number one on the list for next year. Following in order were farm management, irrigation, farm crops, range management, taxation, and weeds. Kiewow says his office will make every effort possible to have a livestock or farm management workshop for Lake County next year.

Aid Provided For Taxpayers

A. G. Erickson, director of Internal Revenue for Oregon, announced that additional assistance will be provided in Klamath Falls for taxpayers needing help in completing their 1962 Federal Income Tax Returns.

The office in the Post Office Building at Klamath Falls will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. on April 8, 1963 and on April 11 and 12, 1963. The telephone number to call is TU 4-8155.
