

One-Time Santo Tomas Prisoner Recovers Mobility After Delicate Brain Surgery

By RUTH KING
A former Klamath Falls resident, Mrs. Esther Sevcik, is making a speedy recovery in Portland from the dread Parkinson's disease, a malady which has invalidated her for seven years, destroying use of her left side.

Doctors at Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland, who performed a special brain operation, relatively new in medical annals, two weeks ago, attribute the disease to her long confinement during World War II in the notorious Santo Tomas concentration camp near Manila.

Mrs. Sevcik is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Bellant who lived in Klamath Falls for many years. She graduated from Klamath Union High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Bellant are returning from a winter vacation in Albany, Ga., to be with their daughter in Portland. Mrs. Sevcik's 1-year-old adopted daughter, Helen, remained with her mother's sister, Mrs. Clarence Cooper of Portland, during her hospital stay.

Dr. Ben W. Blackett, who performed the surgery, described it as a "chemothalamotomy" during which alcohol is injected through a plastic tube to destroy nerve tissues which produce the tremors and rigidity of Parkinson's disease.

The operation has restored use of her arm and leg and she is returning home, able to use both, and to a normal life.

Esther Bellant Sevcik has no self pity. Before leaving the hospital, she said, "I am glad to be alive. After the last 21 years I consider myself very fortunate. It's wonderful to be alive and kicking. I can do that now you know."

A lifetime filled with events that would have developed a defeatist complex in the average individual has not embittered Esther Bellant Sevcik.

As a child of 9 years she went to a Minnesota hospital for tuberculosis. Nine years later she recovered after surgery removed one lung.

Her father, a railroad man, had been transferred to Klamath Falls. Esther Bellant graduated from Klamath Union High School and met her future husband here, Paul Sevcik, a graduate of Notre Dame, then working in Phoenix, Ariz.

When the two were married their two chief objectives were to see the world and to have a family.

They wrote to mining companies which had operations in foreign countries. Two openings interested them, one on the island of Cypres, the second in the Philippines. They chose the Philippines because things looked too hazardous in Europe. They left the United States in the fall of 1937.

In June of 1940, a son was born. They named him Alan Laird. When the baby was 17 months old his mother took him to Manila to do some Christmas shopping for their home at a mine site in the mountains. They planned to fly home on a Monday, Dec. 9, 1941.

On Sunday, Dec. 7, the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

Caught by the war, Paul Sevcik took a commission in the Army Engineers, fought through the Battle of Bataan and was killed by the enemy on the infamous March of Bataan when he was unable to keep up with those stronger.

In Manila, Esther Sevcik eluded the Japanese who had ordered her to report to a concentration camp with her small son and went into hiding with a friend, Marcia Barrett, daughter of the chief Barrett, chaplain on Corregidor and her three children. Fifteen months later they were discovered and threatened with death if they did not this time turn in at Santo Tomas, the prison camp.

During the 15 months they were in hiding, the bombs which they lived was used for the storage of guns and ammunition for the underground.

They also rescued the baby son of a Jewish-German couple killed by the conquerors.

It was then that Esther Sevcik learned of her husband's death.

She walked into the prison compound, her son in her arms in April, 1943, to join the thousands of others, suffering from malnutrition, overbearing guards and lack of privacy.

Her son became ill. He was unable to assimilate the food provided by the captors... aspirin was the only medicine available. Two weeks after he became unconscious she was permitted to take him outside the confines of the prison to a leper hospital. It was two years before he was 2 years old Alan died.

Unable to buy a plot of earth in which to lay him, the baby was cremated illegally between two Japanese soldiers.

For two years she endured the horrors of Santo Tomas. Every scrap of vegetation had long ago been eaten. There had been no provisions for bathing or for laundry. Guards refused to allow the meager sleeping accommodations to be closed to the ground.

Esther Sevcik, weighed 70 pounds when American forces reentered Manila. She was decorated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur for her part in the underground. She still had Lindsay, the orphan boy. She knew he was not an American citizen. Fearing he would be taken from her she concealed these facts and brought him as her son to the United States. The little boy was adopted after Mrs. Sevcik had him for six years and had succeeded in obtaining his legal entry.

Her brother's wife, an English girl, died, leaving a 22-month-old son. Her brother, still abroad in the U.S. service, placed the child on board the Queen Mary, an identification tag about his neck, and sent him from England to New York alone. Esther cared for him for three years until her brother remarried.

Her fourth child was a girl of 16, abandoned in Mexico by a Greek father. Through relatives she learned of the girl's plight, drove to Mexico and brought the girl home. She sent her to school in the United States and she married an Air Force man.

She worked for a time at the atomic plant at Richland, Wash., but became restless, took a three-months leave of absence and went to Europe to see friends of Santo Tomas days.

She met a soldier brother and during their tour reached Greece. Previously Esther Sevcik had tried to adopt a child but had been unsuccessful. Adoption authorities all over Europe had told her "widows don't adopt children."

They reached Athens where orphanages were filled to overflowing with pathetic babies. It was the poorest country on the continent.

She went to the American consulate who gave her permission to visit the orphanages. She was still seeking a child. There was little or no food, no clothing, no beds. She found an infant girl, wrapped in newspapers, lying unattended on a stone floor so frail and tiny there seemed little left of life.

With the aid of the American consulate, the legal adoption was completed. But trouble was ahead. She learned that the officials had changed their minds. The immigration officer refused to issue a visa for the baby. She refused to give up, wrote letters to the U.S. Immigration Service, and finally to President Dwight Eisenhower.

Three weeks later she received confirmation from the United States of America that she could bring the infant to this country.

By that time, Helen Sevcik, brown-eyed victim of abandonment was growing plump. Mother and daughter boarded a plane with eight bottles of prepared formula... they changed planes in Paris. Several hours later, well out over the Pacific, it was feeding time but there were no bottles of formula to be found. Even the carrying case was gone... but Helen of Athens nursed and forward to washing dishes and sweeping floors with the anticipated six small cans of evaporated milk and two odd-shaped bot- every storm. She holds no animos- on a world tour.

The plane landed in 60 below ity toward her Manila captors. For the first time in several zero weather and a 40-mile wind She seeks no sympathy. She looks years she can wiggle her toes.

UNDAUNTED — Mrs. Esther Sevcik of Portland, who lived in Klamath Falls with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bellant, has made a miraculous recovery from crippling Parkinson's disease, following brain surgery in Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland.

Public Opinion Poll Shows Support For Drunk Test Bill

Overwhelming support for legislation requiring chemical testing in all arrests for driving while intoxicated has been expressed in a poll of more than 10,000 Oregonians.

The public also expressed support for maximum speed limits, a requirement for seat belts in new cars, arrest on reasonable grounds, and periodic vehicle inspection.

The Traffic Safety Division of the Department of Motor Vehicles said 78.1 per cent of those completing questionnaires favored chemical tests. About 12 1/2 per cent had no opinion and 7 per cent did not respond on the question.

The public supported adding maximum speed limits to the basic rule by a vote of 50.8 per cent to 38.3 per cent with 10 per cent expressing no opinion and 3 per cent not responding on the question.

A seat belt requirement on new cars received 61 per cent yes an-

School Sets Study Dates

MOUNT SHASTA — According to a news release from Carl Hoberg superintendent, Siskiyou Union High School district summer school will run from June 17 through July 26. Transportation will be provided from McCloud and Dunsmuir to the school in Mount Shasta. Any student entering high school next fall or now wishing to complete graduation requirements is eligible.

Summer vacationers and students from other districts are welcome. Preliminary information to the office of the Siskiyou Union High School on E. Castle Street, Mount Shasta. There is no fee for the summer session, and enrollment will be taken in May.

One-year credit will be allowed to students of Siskiyou Union High School district, but this credit cannot be used for early graduation purposes. A minimum of 20 students is required for each subject.

Pharmacist Seminar Set

Pharmacists from in and around Klamath Falls have been invited to participate in a seminar, "Current Developments in Pharmacy," which will be held at the Winema Motor Hotel in Klamath Falls Wednesday evening, April 10.

Three speakers will be scheduled for the evening program, including an instructor from the School of Pharmacy at Oregon State University in Corvallis, and two professional pharmacists.

Dr. Robert P. Knott, instructor in pharmacy at OSU, will open the seminar with a discussion of "Antihistamines and Motion Sickness Drugs." Second speaker will be Clifford D. Rose, Bend pharmacist, who will speak on "Surgical Appliances in Relation to Professional Pharmacy." The final topic for the evening, "A United Effort in Pharmacy," will be presented by E. Byron Smith, chief pharmacist at Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland.

A host-dinner will begin at the hotel for seminar participants at 6:30 p.m. Registration will start at 7:30 p.m. and the seminar at 8:15 p.m. Registration fee is $10.

The seminar is being offered cooperatively through the General Extension Division of the Oregon State System of Higher Education, Klamath Falls area pharmacists, the Oregon State Pharmaceutical Association, and the School of Pharmacy, Oregon State University.

Enrollment Up

ASHLAND (UPI) — Spring enrollment at Southern Oregon College has set an all time high of more than 1,900 students, President Elmo Stevenson announced Thursday.

Total enrollment last spring was 1,327.

The milk snake is named for the thorough belief that it milks cows, though it frequents barns, it is attracted by mice, not cows.

Chief Talks On Juveniles

MOUNT SHASTA — Police Chief Harold Barnum was guest speaker at the Rotary Club meeting April 2. He spoke on the juvenile program sponsored by the Mount Shasta police department and the Mount Shasta auxiliary police. Barnum outlined the goal the department is trying to reach to establish wholesome recreation programs for the children.

The auxiliary police raised $382.10 for the Little League Ball Club in 1962 and sponsored the elementary school basketball tournaments at a cost of $50. Every year they take the Junior Traffic Patrol boys, whom they sponsor, on a three-day outing at the end of the school year at an approximate cost of $125.

Other programs sponsored by the groups include the bicycle safety program and the Santa Claus float. They obtained a total of $1,329 in 1962 and spent it on programs to benefit youths of the Mount Shasta area.
