AROUND THE WORLD

SETTING THE STAGE—Groundskeepers at New York's Polo Grounds line out the bases as they prepare the field for the start of the baseball season. Opener had the Mets taking on the St. Louis Cardinals.

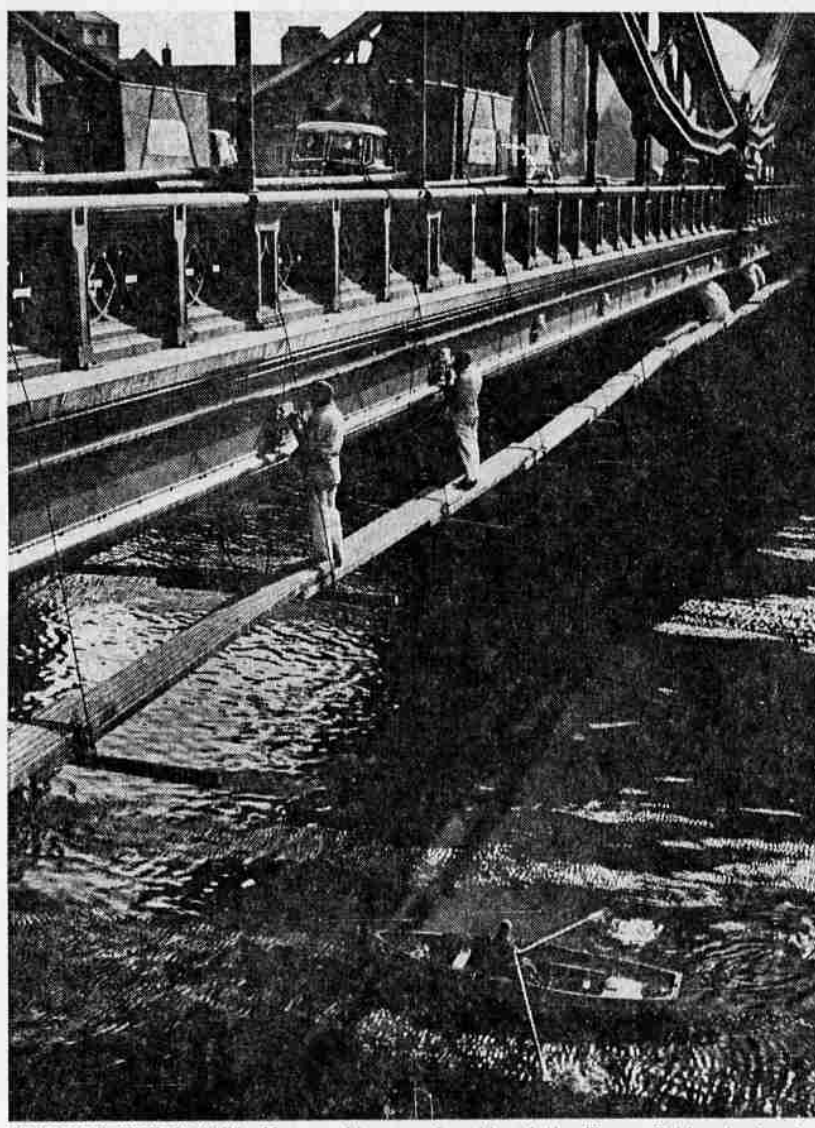

EYE TO EYE—Faye Emerson has to fight her way through the "needles" of the porcupine-like hat worn by Patrice Munsel as they meet at a film premiere in New York.

FINE WORK—Fung Shiv Wing works on a portrait bust of Queen Elizabeth II in London. The Chinese craftsman works from photographs of the Queen to get almost an exact likeness in ivory. Fung originally is from Hong Kong.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN—"Oops!" was all Paul Neal, 6, could think to say after giving his sister, Carla, 5, the brush-off the hard way in Salinas, Calif. Busily engaged in family spring cleaning, Phil sighted his sister too late to stop the brush—or so he says.

WALKING THE PLANK—Men working on the side of the Tower Bridge in London walk the plank. The two men, gilding the rosettes on the balustrade of the famed bridge that crosses the Thames, stand on narrow planks suspended along the side. The man below them in the rowboat stands by just in case one of the fellows should make a misstep and plunge into the fast flowing waters.

WATER PATROL—Three boats race along the Thames in London with river policemen at the helms. The patrol boats are new on the watery beat. Made of fiber glass, the boats are cheaper to maintain since the material is almost resistant to water.

A 'MAIL' DOG—Seemingly on post to guard the mail, Scamp sits atop a street corner mailbox in Lima, Ohio. Although he may look vicious, he's not. He lets everyone drop in their letters and lets the postman pick up the mail. Why is he sitting there? He just likes it. That's why.

THREESOME—For spring this year, a three-piece suit creates a splendid silhouette with chic. Designed by Ferreras, it is done in black and beige, silk and wool.

CHIEF SCOUT—Talking to Boy Scouts in Zanzibar, Chief Scout of the Commonwealth, Sir Charles MacLean, wears traditional attire—kilts in the family tartan. Sir Charles was making a tour of Scout areas throughout East Africa.

SEEING DOUBLE—These students at Mansfield Woodhouse, England, are 11 sets of twins, and 10 of them are identical. Teacher may get confused but it's probably worth the confusion to be greeted by these happy faces at the start of each school day.

OUT TO SEE THE PEOPLE—A 7-year-old gorilla named Knorke takes his friend, Horst Wiebach, for a promenade through the West Berlin, Germany, Zoo, at the first sign of spring weather. Actually, Horst is a zookeeper at the Berlin menagerie, but Knorke appears to be leading the way. Maybe he gets a kick out of watching the antics of the visitors.
