Salvage Week Slated By SA

MOUNT SHASTA—The Salvation Army Men's Social Service will conduct a salvage week April 22-26 in communities in Northern California, according to an announcement by Mrs. John Jensen, Mount Shasta representative.

Mrs. Jensen said the annual event is to collect clothing, repairable furniture, housewares, and other discards, and to emphasize the Salvation Army's rehabilitation program for socially handicapped men.

The rehabilitation program helps men with temporary handicaps such as drinking, wanderlust and emotional disturbances caused by domestic problems or other misfortunes. It also aids parolees in readjusting to society. Local residents may call Mrs. Jensen at Walnut 6-4993 for free pickup of donated articles.

BAN DISCRIMINATION

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—All fraternities and sororities at the University of California, the nation's largest university, were ordered Tuesday to drop their discrimination clauses by Sept. 1, 1964.
