

SAFETY AT SEA—During demonstrations of life jackets in London, a new type was introduced, shown at right. It is a two-chamber, manually gas-inflated design, with high buoyancy. At left, the jacket's buoyancy is too low.

NEW FACE LIFTING—Rarely seen at such close range is the face of Lord Admiral Horatio Nelson, perched atop a 153-foot pillar in London's Trafalgar Square, which is getting its first wash in eight years.

'HI THERE' — A harbor seal at the Miami Seaquarium amuses visitors while performing a rudimentary trick.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

CROPPED TOPS—Girls being girls still doesn't stop them from trying a coif inspired by the boys. The boys being the "Oliver Twist" boys from the Broadway musical of the same name. Gal at top models the "Oliver Cut" introduced by a New York stylist. The five boys below her are in the show.

ON DECK — For decking out little boys this summer, a New York designer has created contrasting separates. The top is done in bright red knit duck fabric with detailed stitching in white. Neatly tucked under the top are white deck pants with rope-tie belt.

CUBED COMPOSITION—Square cubes and a round pipe caught the eye of Penny Leigh at a chemical company's display in New York. Cubes are vinyl compound that can be processed into multitude of products ranging from rigid pipe (shown) to baby pants.

HERE'S HOW—Taking time out during a television rehearsal, Buddy Greco, one of the best-dressed entertainers, shows Steve Allen how to adjust and knot his tie.

WINDING UP—Darryl F. Zanuck chats with Richard Burton's stand-in during the final shooting of "Cleopatra," on location in Almeria, Spain. The romantic spectacle is being set for showing.

BUSY BALLERINA—New York City Ballet soloist Melissa Hayden limbers up on the exercise bar. A dancer for 17 years, Miss Hayden also keeps busy taking care of her family and revising a book she has written on ballet.

HAPPY TIME FOR ALL—With seemingly joyous expressions on their faces, Tibetan refugee children arrive at London from Delhi. They are to live at the British Pestalozzi children's village at Battle, Sussex.

BENDING HER EAR—Every dog needs his own cat, and Puss is handy when Rover feels like bending someone's ear. According to the Pet Institute's annual pet population census, nearly 34 per cent of the nation's family-owned dogs share their homes with feline friends. The average cat-dog family has two cats for every dog.