

House Repays Patient Funds

SALEM (UPI) — A bill to repay $16,293 that was embezzled from patient funds at the State Hospital passed the House today and went to the Senate.

The embezzler since has been convicted and served a sentence. Part of the money was recovered from bonds.

Rep. Beulah Hand, D-Milwaukie, said if the state did not repay the rest, the Board of Control would have to proceed against a bonding company, which in turn would have to try to collect the money from the hospital superintendent, even though he had nothing to do with the embezzlement.

Rep. John Mosser, R-Beaverton, said steps have been taken to revise fund and bonding procedures to prevent a similar occurrence.

Lad Has Big Problem—How To Get Rid Of Girl

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old high school senior. I can't talk to anyone about this problem because I'd feel like a heel saying these things about a girl.

I've been dating Miss A. for almost a year. At first she was a lot of fun but after a while she began to get moody and act weird. She cries over nothing and withdraws into silence for hours at a time.

Last week I told her I thought we'd better call it quits. She went into a crying jag and began to pull chunks of hair out of her head. She said if I ever quit her she would kill herself.

I'd hate to be responsible for anything like that and yet I don't want to go with her anymore. My folks have been opposed to Miss A. from the first because she telephones me about three times every evening — sometimes after midnight.

I need advice—WANT OUT.

Dear Want Out: The girl is mentally ill and needs professional help. Ask your mother to speak to Miss A's mother about putting her in the hands of a doctor.

Don't allow yourself to be threatened into maintaining a relationship you don't want. You are not responsible for this girl. Be gentle and kind, but unwind the relationship—and quickly.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an active mother 28 years of age. My two children are 2 and 8.

My husband travels five days out of the week and I was going nuts being alone so much. Then I discovered bowling.

Sitters are expensive so I have arranged to leave the key to my apartment with the woman next door. In case of an emergency she can always get in.

My husband told me he tried to phone me from Orlando last week and when nobody answered the phone he became frantic. My 8-year-old is a sound sleeper and he didn't hear the phone ring. When I told my husband where I was he got mad and said I can't leave the kids at night anymore.

I see nothing wrong so long as the neighbor lady is willing to help out. She insists it's no trouble. What do you say?—LEADER OF THE LEAGUE

Dear Leader: The neighbor woman wouldn't be of much help, in case of a flash fire. Small children should not be left alone.

If you can't afford a sitter, ask the neighbor if you can put the kids to sleep on a cot in her apartment and collect them when you get home. If she is unwilling, stay home.

Dear Ann: My husband and I bought an enormous old house three years ago and converted it into a small hotel. We can accommodate 15 couples and we run about 80 per cent capacity from September through April. Beginning in May we are jammed.

The problem is my husband's relatives. They pile in at the height of the season and call it a "family visit." They sponge two and three week vacations, complete with free room and board and maid service. They write in advance to "reserve" their favorite rooms and we are sick of it.

When they return home we get a thank-you card. Not one of these relatives has left a dollar tip for the maids who kept their rooms in order. My husband says if we refuse to let them continue to visit, his name will be mud with all the family. Is it worth it?—UP TO HERE

Dear Up: These free-loaders know you are in the hotel business and that their visits are costing you cold, hard cash. But, obviously, they don't care.

Since you do care, tell them when they write for "reservations" that you are filled up. If the only way to hang on to their friendship is to give them free vacations, their friendship isn't worth hanging on to.

Pope's Busy Life Contradicts Failing Health Report

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII today made plans for a busy schedule of public appearances and meetings which appeared to contradict reports that his health might be failing.

One of the Pope's most important matters of business in the coming days is a conference with Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, on the possibility of closer relations between the Vatican and Soviet bloc countries.

The unofficial and unconfirmed reports about the 81-year-old Pope's health stemmed from a story in the Rome newspaper Il Tempo and the cancellation Wednesday of a trip the pontiff had been expected to make.

Il Tempo claimed that Pope John had suffered a relapse of the gastric trouble and anemia which confined him to bed last November. The newspaper said the relapse occurred Tuesday.

All available Vatican sources denied the Il Tempo report. A UPI reporter who attended a general audience in the Vatican

Wednesday said the Pope spoke in his normal firm voice and there was no indication he had suffered a relapse.

Later in the afternoon the Vatican announced that Pope John would not make an expected visit to the Abbey of Montecassino, 100 miles south of Rome, May 23.

There also had been reports he would visit the sanctuary of Pompeii before returning to the Vatican.

Various Vatican sources gave the pontiff's advanced age and have won."

different versions of why the trip was cancelled. One said the relatively long and rigorous Pope's doctors, concerned about trip and "apparently the doctors
